Said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. McVICAR. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill which in its terms repeals eight hundred and fifty-three obselete, superseded, repealed by implication and unconstitutional bills, which are now on the Statute books of our State. If this bill has been prepared with care, there is no doubt but what it will accomplish a good purpose, for the reason that any one interested in any one of these eight hundred and fifty-three bills, by reference to the law of 1915 will know whether it has been repealed or not. This bill was prepared by the Legislative Reference Bureau. That the work was done with care is evidenced by the exposition which I hold in my hand containing notes of each bill, showing how it was repealed, or how it became unconstitutional by a decision of the courts. This bill was referred to the Committee on Judiciary General and by it referred to a sub-committee of five, which checked the data contained in these notes with the original data and found it to be correct. There were some four bills in the list, about which there was thought to be some doubt and therefore they were excluded by amendment.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

BILL ON THIRD READING (SPECIAL ORDER).

The SPEAKER. The Special Order on third reading at 10:30 is House Bill No. 624.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 624, entitled:

An Act taking away from the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania Jurisdiction over counties cities boroughs towns and townships school and poor districts in certain matters relating to their duties powers contract and public service and vesting the same in the courts of common pleas

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. VICKERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise at this time to ask for the support of these two measures, House Bill No. 624 and 1487, which were made a special order at this time. These bills are for the purpose of amending the Public Service Commission Act of this State. We believe they are very important. Two years ago this House passed the Public Service Act, and it was then passed by a practically unanimous vote. I understand that the Republican Party and the Democratic Party and the Progressive Party all endorsed this measure, and they all voted for it. I am not here to make any complaint about that matter whatever. I am here to offer no criticism of anybody for voting for that Act. But since it has been enforced it has proven a great hardship. It has proven to be unwise in many of its features. Therefore, we have come back to ask you to amend it and ask for relief on some of the things which we deserve at this time.

In my own borough, Bellevue, adjoining the City of Pittsburgh, in Allegheny county, before this Act went into effect we paid twenty cents a thousand gallons for our water. To-day we are paying forty cents a thousand. In 1913, the Ohio Valley Water Company advanced the rates and from their office announced the fact that they would increase their rates from twenty to forty cents a thousand gallons. Therefore, we are now paying double the price for water which we paid formerly. We went into our county courts and asked for redress. They told us to come back here to Harrisburg and appear before the Commission, which we did, and we have been here ever since but we have secured no relief, whatever, and to-day we are paying the same rate for our water as we did in 1913. Only a few months ago it happened that the mains of this company were burst across the river and they were compelled to get their water from the City of Pittsburgh and paid twelve and a half cents a thousand gallons for that water and sold it to us for forty cents a thousand gallons. Since then the engineer said that they are able to pump this water for less than twelve cents a gallon while we are paying forty and forty-two cents a gallon for our water. We are not allowed to even make a contract for a water plug or for an electric arc light without first coming to and asking consent from the Commission. We believe this to be unjust, unfair and un-American. We desire to have you give us home rule for our own communities and ask you to amend this act and give us a law that will apply to our boroughs and give us protection. All over the State, you will find examples of this condition. We have gone over this matter very carefully in the Municipal Home Rule League. The matter has been taken up which covers thirty towns in this Commonwealth. We took up this matter. We have held conferences for months and months in consideration of this subject and for five weeks this has remained with the Judiciary Committee. We tried to satisfy the men who made it reasonable to be satisfied and we come to you and ask you for justice and for home rule. I have in my hand here a letter sent by the Chairman of the Public Service Commission of this state in which he says, "House Bills 23, 596, and 624 have been considered together and since they are objectionable we ask for relief from the Public Service Commission and for some supervision of the contracts before the public service companies and if anyone of thees bills were repealed it seems to us that the Public Service Commission would be relieved from a serious duty and a troublesome duty." The Commission does not object to this legislation. I therefore ask your support for these two bills.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to these bills and I think whatever may be your disposition of this matter in voting upon it I will at least have performed my duty by getting up on the floor of this House and telling you what I believe this bill will do. This bill will practically put the Public Service Commission out of business. If we want to do that then let us have a repealer to repeal the utilities bill entirely. This bill takes away from the Public Service Commission the regulation of contracts between municipalities and public service companies. Now, I am not interested in what the members of the Public Service Commission want. The State of Pennsylvania is paying each member of that Commission a pretty good salary and it seems to me they ought to be willing to work and earn it so that when we refer to any individual member and get the idea that the member is willing that this should be taken away from him, we may answer and say "Yes, we are willing to have two-thirds of your work taken away from you" but he will not be willing to have two-thirds of his salary taken away from him. We are not very prone to run into new legislation. This State has always prided itself on being a conservative State. As a general rule we permit our sister States to pass laws and try them out and afterwards, after examining them and testing them we try them and adopt them and then they are better than in the first place. We are just as prone not to repeal a law until we have given it a fair trial. The Public Service Law was passed two years ago and went into effect in January 1914. It has therefore had about fifteen months of trial, and I submit that a law that has had but fifteen months trial cannot be passed fairly. We cannot judge its results properly and cannot tell whether it is a good law or a bad law. To my mind the Utilities Law is a good law. I believed that it was a good law when I voted for it two years ago and I believe that it is a good law to-day. I am not here to quarrel with or to defend the Public Service Commission. I am not interested in the members of that Commission one way or the other. I am not trying to support their method of enforcing the law, but I submit that the law should not be changed without a fair trial. There was a demand for this law two years ago. All the parties asked for it. There has not been any such popular demand for its repeal. I do not see one party who has put in their plank any request to repeal it. And now to come down to what this bill does: I will tell you what it does do. It takes away the protection that the public has with respect to preferentiation in rates. Under this bill the Public Service Commission so long as it clothed its action in contracts with municipalities and discriminates in rates as they say it does in this water question in regard to competition with what has been known as exclusive companies—I refer to companies that have had franchises prior to 1874. These companies, my reason of contracts have acquired an absolute franchise, and so far as these companies are concerned this bill does exactly what it is supposed to remedy. With this bill the individuals of municipalities and the municipalities themselves are absolutely at the mercy of those companies which have perpetual and absolute franchise. There is no power to regulate them. As it stands now the Public Service Commission does not give any company a monopoly; what it does do is to regulate if you don't behave yourself, no matter whether you are an exclusive company or whatever you may be. There is the chief objection to this bill. Furthermore gentlemen, I submit that under this bill they purport to put the law as it was prior to the action of the bill, in the Court of Common Pleas. Under the provisions of the Public Service Act any public service company advancing its rates in a most formal manner the Commission shall investigate and the burden is on the public service company to prove or to show that the rate advanced is reasonable. The one object of the Public Service Act, in forming the Commission, the idea was to get away from the fixed and infallible rules of the law. They are not bound by any rules of evidence. There is a defense in this 624 bill a defense of rates. What is the result? A man comes in court and complains of the rates. He has made objection and he is met by the rules of evidence. He can only prove it under the rules of evidence. There is the same formality; it is considered technical, a cut and dried legal trial. It is a fundamental rule of all that he who attacks must prove and the burden is not on the company but on the one who attacks. Furthermore, another thing this bill will do. Under the rule of the Commission, the rights of the Utilities companies, the Commission is not bound to take into consideration an adequate return from the investment on the capitalization. If you find the company over-capitalized and there is an application by that company to defend its rights the Commission must take into consideration the value of their plant as a going concern, including the franchise and under the record that capitalization, if this bill goes through, we return to that law an application to the courts upon the ground that the rates are unreasonable and the courts must consider and have determined that the question of reasonableness of rates depends entirely upon the capitalization of the company.

There was a reason for this popular movement in 1912. Why did all the people demand it? Why did the three political parties pledge themselves to it? Why did we have public hearing after public hearing advancing one question and another for months and finally this law was passed, an agreement by all the people interested? Now, gentlemen, I submit, that there is no failure of competition under this law, the field is open to competition. That is the most you are asked to do. This law, itself, is to prescribe a manner suggested by his Excellency the Ex-President of the United States, the other day, to take a service and see what it is reasonably worth to the community, and then see that it is paid. This submission of that question to a semi-judicial body—a body that is absolutely uninfluenced or unbiased by local conditions and, under the law and in theory, an ideal body to pass upon such a thing. But, then, take the phase for which our friends contend here, namely, that this is a complete abolition of competition. Now, gentlemen, I submit that is not a fair statement; any one who reads this bill will see that it does not abolish competition but it does regulate monopoly. Now, prior to this, companies that were franchised were saved from competition; they could charge what they pleased and when they pleased without any fear of regulation. Now, under this law, they are regulated, and every modern economic thought is in favor of regulated monopoly. If we have regulated monopoly, we do away with the worst evils of public service companies, namely, the ruinous competition between two competing companies, a destruction of one company or a merger of two, and the raising of rates for the public to pay the piper. Now, gentlemen, I venture to say there is not one of you in this room that does not, of his own knowledge, know of just such a condition of affairs. Any one of you can go back to your own home communities and call to mind a competition of electric companies or water companies that have resulted in the destruction of one or a merger and the advance of rates to the public. As has been said by one of our great authorities on this question that, "from the very nature of things, from the kind of work that we do and from the amount of capital needed, every one of these utilities companies is in the nature of a monopoly." A large corporation, involving thousands of thousands of dollars as it does, must be a monopoly, and for the same reason there is not room for two of them in the same field and you cannot raise the money for two. Mr. Henry Wilson, who was formerly a member of the Public Service Commission of Washington where I might say a similar act has been in force for many years, says "These industries are essentially natural monopolies and competition as a regulative force is worse than useless."

Now, gentlemen, after many years the people of this State have determined that a competition or regulation of these companies was absolutely of value. They found that they could not do anything; they found that they were at the mercy of these companies and the result was there was a great popular demand for a Public Utilities Commission. Now that law has been in effect for one year or one year and three months; one year it has been working and we are asked now to repeal this laf, or practically repeal it, because you do not leave anything for the Commission to do except to regulate railroads and telephone companies. we are asked now to repeal this law, of practically repeal and go back to a condition of affairs which, after fifty and sixty years of trial, had been found a failure. I ask you, gentlemen, to consider what you are doing before you take a vote on this question.

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I regret very much ot this time, that I have to take exceptions to the gentleman from Philadelphia. The gentleman from Philadelphia has pictured and portrayed to this House what a sad state of affairs it would be to take away from this Commission all of its powers excepting the regulation of railroads and electric franchises. The gentleman from Philadelphia, is the House representative of that Commission, and on account of the friendly relations existing between him and one of that Commission—

POINT OF ORDER.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his point of order.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I submit that the gentleman's remarks are out of order. I am not under discussion. The merits of this bill are under discussion.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will confine himself to the bill under consideration.

Mr. STEEDLE. I will, Mr. Speaker, but my remarks were only intended to show to this House that the gentleman came here in 1913 and on the floor of this House voted for the amendment to that bill which would have made for the State of Pennsylvania a bill of respectability and not one of offensive odor, one that the State now has to put up with in a ridiculous manner and in a manner of apology to the people of this State. If the bill was right, we would not be here to-day asking for these amendments. It is because the bill is unjust, because it has taken away from the people of the smaller communities the right to own their franchises on the question of water rights and the question of electric lights. This bill, gentlemen, does not affect the City of Philadelphia. It does not affect the City of Pittsburgh, but it does affect the little community, the boroughs and townships and the third class cities of this great State. Now, fifteen months is not a long time; possibly that is true, but that same old story has been fought on the floor of this House on many propositions. Take our chool code; in 1911 it was passed under an agreement that if it is not right, we will come back in 1913 and amend it. The Governor of this State in his message to the House in 1913 said, "We will not amend it, it has not had long enough time. In 1915 likewise. Now, the gentleman from Philadelphia believes that fifteen months time is not long enough, yet it was long enough for the corporations to increase our water rate one hundred per cent. We paid in my community forty cents per one thousand gallons. What redress have we? None. Then we appeal to that Commission, and tell them that it is exorbitant, that we cannot afford to pay that price. They laughed at us. They said you have got to pay it or we will shut off your water. And they did shut off the water from many families in my community. The corporation that stood so high above the level of the people shut off that water, and those families could not even maintain their own livelihood and health and attend to their physical condition. I trust there isnt a man here will not give this question serious consideration, but not along the lines as laid down by the gentleman from Philadelphia, and vote against this bill. Let me recite another instance in my borough. For ten years we had a contract with the water company which is now about to expire. It calls for twenty dollars per plug. Now, they come along and tell us we have got to pay forty dollars, and yet if we had one hundred to two hundred thousand dollars lying in the banks, drawing interest, this mighty Commission would tell us, you cannot build your own water works, because we will not permit it. Does it do away with the competing with an organized capital of one million dollars? He tells us that it is protecting the people. I say that it is absolutely untrue. It is not protecting the people, but it is protecting the large corporate interests. Why should we not have the right to construct our own water works if we see fit. The needs of a Utility Commission are beyond question in the minds of every fair-minded man. We are not going to ask to repeal this bill in its entirety, but God knows it would not be a mistake if this House would repeal the Commission of 1913.

Ex-Governor Pennypacker, a member of this Commission, to-day, wrote this letter himself,—a member of that Commission, who has stated that this burden should be released from the Public Utility Commision. He states, speaking of the several bills upon this subject, since they are all intended to take away from the Commission the supervision of contracts made between public service companies and municipalities. Should any one of these become a law, the consequence would be that the Commission would be relieved from the burden of a serious and troublesome duty. The facts with respect to the exercise of this function by the Commission are set forth in its annual report, to which you are referred. The Commission does not object to this legislation, but feel that the matter ought to be determined by the Legislature from the view of the interests of the people of the Commonwealth. In the opinion of the Commission the Bill No. 624 pursue a better course than that suggested in House Bill No. 23.

Now, if a member of that Commission says that and recommends the release of this burdensome duty why should not any man from any section of the State that is not affected by it, barring cities, vote to repeal—why should we not repeal—a few sections of this and restore back to our little communities "Home Rule."

Let me say that gas companies mail your bill and you mail a check in good faith, and if that check and that bill do not get in their office during office hours, you lose your discount, and they never could do that unless they are protected by this Commission; they only preserve that prerogative, and tell you what you must do, and then if you are honest and send your check in before the expiration of the time, and even before it is due, you lose your discount, because it did not reach the office during business hours. No gas company, no water company or no electric light company, before the protective rights of this commission, would have dared to send such a letter to the people of this State. The gentleman would have us believe that if this bill is voted upon and likewise the following bill, we would be repealing the public Utility Commission.

That is not the intention. It is only asking that this House be fair to us, to we of the smaller communities, and restore to us that which we enjoyed prior to the act of 1913, the Public Utilities Commission Act; and that is all that we are asking and we trust, gentlemen of the House, that you will give this matter sincere consideration and find your way clear to not only vote on this bill but to vote on the bill that follows, because they each dove-tail into each other; and therefore I ask the members of this House to vote for this bill and the one to follow.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Steedle.

The SPEAKER. Will be gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Steedle, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, during the course of his remarks the gentleman from Allegheny made the statement that I had voted to support amendments to this bill. Will the gentleman from Allegheny tell us what amendments I voted for?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, I do not recall the amendments. If I remember right, when this bill was under discussion two years ago—and I believe we sat here for two days discussing that Utilities bill—the gentleman from Philadelphia, like myself and the gentleman who occupied that seat during 1913 and lead the way for some of those amendments, the gentleman from Philadelphia, the Hon. John R. K. Scott, now a member of Congress, likewise to fight for several amendments to this bill, and if I recall correctly I think the gentleman from Philadelphia voted with the forty-six who stood by those amendments. If the gentleman did not, then I apologize to him; and if he did, I dare say he owes the State of Pennsylvania no apology.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I regret very much that the gentleman from Allegheny has sought to inject into this discussion personalities. I did vote to sustain one amendment which was offered which I thought at the time and still think would have been an improvement to this bill, and that is the bill which sought to strengthen the power of the Commission with respect to the issuance of stock and securities by Public Service Companies. I believed and still believe that this Commission should have the power to say in the beginning of any stock issue, "it is fraudulent," or "it is not fraudulent;" that the value is there for which the stock is issued or it is not there. The Commission has not sufficient power in this respect. With respect to all other amendments, I personally voted against them; and since the gentleman from Allegheny has called attention to it evidently the consensus of opinion of all or practically all the members of this legislature two years ago, representing communities of all sorts in the State, was opposed to this very suggestion that he is now making.

Mr. McVICAR. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, the bills which you have now under consideration, in my opinion are of vast importance as they affect every city, borough and township within the State, and involved in these bills is the question of home rule for municipalities. The bill, which is known as the Vickerman Bill, is very short and simple in its terms. It provides two things: That the Public Service Commission shall not exercise any jurisdiction over a contract made between a municipal corporation, of the one part, and a Public Service Company, of the other part; also, that the Public Service Commission shall not exercise any jurisdiction over any service rendered by itself, such as the furnishing of water or light. But it does provide that in those matters the jurisdiction of the Court of Common Pleas of the proper county shall attach. Now, that is the whole of this bill under consideration. It does not affect the Public Service Commission's jurisdiction over any private company or companies but it remains the same as before.

It has been argued by our friend from Philadelphia that the Public Service Commission should have jurisdiction over municipal corporations in order to prevent ruinous competition; but let me answer that proposition by saying, as I have already done, that this bill does not affect a Public Service Company in any way whatever. Any Public Service Company that is hereafter incorporated will have to receive the approval of the Public Service Commission before it can procure its charter and before it can enter into any municipality; consequently, this competition or this ruinous competition—and it is doubtful in my mind whether it is a true principle to start with, is not involved in the terms of this bill, and before a municipal corporation, a city or a borough, can enter into business in competition with a public service company it must first procure the consent and approval of the Court of Common Pleas of the proper county. Now let me ask you this question: Why should the Public Service Commission exercise jurisdiction over a city, borough or township? The State creates these municipal corporations for the purpose of local self-government. It endows them with sovereign power and therefore it would mean that the State would be supervising the State, in effect. But more than that, in the Constitution of this State, it is written, in Article 2, Section 20, that the General Assembly shall not delegate any special power to make, supervise or interfere with any municipal improvement or perform any municipal functions whatever. So, in asking that you leave the municipal corporations where they are today, we are simply asking that you obey the spirit of the Constitutional provisions which I have referred to. This Public Service act, in my opinion, has a strong tendency towards the creation of monopolies and unfair dealings by the Public Service Companies. In the good book it is written about men that you shall know them by their fruits. Let us judge this Public Service Commission, so far as it affects municipal corporations, in the same way. I know a borough that made a contract with a railroad company to lay a water line under its tracks, in which the actual physical work cost twenty-five dollars and yet it cost that borough one hundred dollars for attorneys' fees, engineers' fees and advertising to procure the necessary approval from the Public Service Commission. Again, the borough of Bellevue in my district, where my colleague, Mr. Vickerman, lives, was paying under a contract, a water company the rate of twenty cents per one thousand gallons of water for a period of about twenty years. The day preceding the day on which this Public Service Law went into effect the company raised from twenty cents to forty cents for one thousand gallons. They raised it on that day because they knew the Court of Common Pleas could not get jurisdiction in time and the Public Service Commission would get jurisdiction of the case. I know a case in Armstrong county where the decision of the Court of Common Pleas was affirmed by the Supreme Court, fixing the rate of water for the Borough of Leechburg and as soon as this act went into force they raised the rates and that borough has spent thousands of dollars in fighting it up to the present time. I know and I have the data here showing that there is a large class of municipal corporations which wanted to make contracts with new companies at a lower rate for water which in every case, so far as I have found, were refused by the Public Service Commission; and I have not got any doubt but that there are a large class of municipal corporations where the rates have been increased or the service has been changed, but by reason of the cost and expense of coming here to Harrisburg they have not invoked the remedy, if there is any, from the Public Service Commission.

I submit, gentlemen, under the terms of this Public Service Commission act it is a denial of justice to the municipal corporations and the people of this State to require every township or borough, whether removed three hundred miles from Harrisburg or not, to submit every contract, whether it is removal of a telegraph pole or whatever it may be, to the approval of the Public Service Commission. If a borough at the present time has any litigation with a Public Service Company it means that they have to bring their attorneys, their engineers, their experts, down here to Harrisburg, in most cases several times. Now what does that mean? It means delay in the making of municipal improvements. It means that these municipal corporations must either violate the law or else do without the right.

I was not in the session of 1913 but I have no doubt this was the fact: That the members who sat here at that time were doubtful of the propriety of including the municipal corporation; but they put it in knowing that it could be amended if necessary. Since the passage of this act three hundred municipal corporations, having a population of over 1,700,000, have passed resolutions asking for municipal home rule.

Do you find a public service corporation here that is asking for a change? I would say no. They are under the disadvantage of the supervision and regulation of this Commission, but whatever disadvantages they are under, they have secured the advantages which have been lost by the municipal corporation. In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, let me say to you that if you believe in the sovereign rule of the people, if you believe in the emancipation of municipal corporations, if you believe in home rule for your cities, and boroughs, and townships, if you believe in justice, administration by the courts of common pleas of our respective counties, then vote for these bills.

Mr. KUHN. Mr. Speaker, I only have a word to say in regard to this measure. I wish to heartily endorse the sentiment as advocated by my friend from Allegheny. The little district wherein I live is not paying forty cents a thousand gallon for water, but is paying one dollar and twenty-five cents. Have I not, as a member of that body, a right to come here and say to you that the measure as it stands on the statute books today is an obnoxious measure. Some time ago there was sent forth in our borough, a petition to the water company to reduce the water rate and I believe, sir, that that petition was signed by at least ninety per cent. of the voters of our town, praying for this relief, and when it was sent to the water company, they hurled it back upon us, it came back to us like the hissing of a shell from one of the German guns. They gave us no relief; they said there was nothing to say, and when they were threatened to be taken into court the reply came back to us "We have the Public Service Commission with us." Gentlemen, I feel, as I believe the majority of this House feels, that this measure as it stands upon the statute books today, is an obnoxious measure, and that the amendment or the repeal, as advocated by the Vickerman bill, should pass. I want to say that I am in hearty accord, and I believe that every member coming from a small town, or small municipality, should vote in favor of this measure.

Mr. HARPER. Mr. Speaker, I was a member of the committee to which this bill was originally referred, and also a member of the sub-committee, to which it was referred by the Judiciary General Committee. In both of these committees a hearing was held. We found that there were over three hundred municipailties in this State in favor of this measure and not one opposed to it. The only opposition we found was from the legal end of the Public Service Commission. Now, the Public Service Commission itself is in favor of this bill and I hold in my hand a copy of a letter wrtten by this Commission and on file in the Attorney General's office. It has reference directly to these measures you are now discussing.

"House Bill No. 23, House Bill No. 596 and House Bill No. 624 may all be considered together, since they are all intended to take away from the Commission the supervision of contracts made between public service companies and municipalities. Should any one of these become a law, the consequence would be that the Commission would be relieved from the burden of a serious and troublesome duty. The facts with respect to the exercise of this function by the Commission are set forth in its annual report, to which you are referred. The Commission does not object to this legislation but feel that the matter ought to be determined by the Legislature from the view of the interests of the people of the Commonwealth. In the opinion of the Commission the Bills Nos. 596 and 624 pursue a better course than that suggested in House Bill No. 23."

Mr. MILLIRON. Mr. Speaker, when a measure comes before this House that affects the very town in which you live, it brings home to you your duty to your constituency. This ought to resolve itself into an old-fashioned Methodist class meeting, where every man could tell his experience with this Public Service Commission, as applied to his own borough and town. We have in the borough of Kittaning, the county seat of our county, a water works owned by some corporation. Last August that corporation closed down its filtering plant, without notifying the citizens or officials of that borough and allowed it to be closed for some weeks. During that time we had a siege of typhoid fever, resulting in a number of deaths. The superintendent of the water works was appealed to and if I am correctly informed he told the officials of our borough that what the people did not know did not hurt them, and yet this same corporation had the O. K. and approval of this Public Service Commission, about which there has been so much said. We immediately, in the borough of Kittaning, advertised and voted for a bond issue, which was voted in favor of by ninety per cent. of the voters in that borough. Since that time the borough of Kittaning has spent thousands and thousands of dollars trying to get a hearing with the Public Service Commission. We have had our experts here time and time again, but yet we have received no relief. We have had no decision. They have told us that we are not allowed, on account of some technical point, to build a municipal water works.

In the same county in which I live, in the boroughs of Apollo and Leechburg, they joined issues and voted on this question of raising water rates. They were charged nine hundred dollars a year for water and fire protection. A short time ago they raised it to three thousand dollars. These people have had their experts here and up until this time have spent seven hundred and eighty dollars coming here to Harrisburg, to get relief. How much time did the Public Service Commission give them? Two hours and a half during that time. If it cost seven hundred and eighty dollars to get the ear of the Public Service Commission for two hours and a half, how long and how much money would it require to get a decision from that Public Service Commission? I am not able to figure that out.

I want to say to you gentlemen that this is a humane proposition. If I could paint to you this morning a picture of the homes in which those children were sick from impure water in our borough last August, if I could take you in there and show you the deathbeds of those children, and show you those weeping mothers, you would not wonder why we are here to-day asking for relief so that we may have some protection to our own families and children. Furthermore, I wish to say that every man who votes against this bill, or for this bill, will place himself on record on one question,—whether he is for Home Rule, or whether he is opposed to Home Rule; whether he is in favor of the borough or municipality in which he lives ruling, or whether he is in favor of the corporations of this State.

Now, you know much has been said here that we have only tried this fifteen months. There has not been anything that brought as much distress and hardship upon the boroughs of this State in fifteen months, in the history of the State, than this Public Service Commission. There were a lot of things, a lot of commissions, passed by the reform legislature of 1913, that should never have been signed by the Governor,—a lot of things that should have been repealed the next day, and now that things have come back to normal conditions, with two great sane political parties, the Republican party and the Democratic party, it is our duty as sane people to repeal those obnoxious laws that were wished upon us by that great Bull Moose Reform organization, here in 1913.

Mr. BRUMBAUGH. Mr. Speaker, I am glad to raise my voice to-day in behalf of this splendid measure. It does seem to me that it is unreasonable that we should expect the people of the municipalities to come on here to Harrisburg to find out whether they will be permitted to do things in their own municipality, and then many times they are denied the privileges, as in the case in my own county. Gentlemen, if we take away a great deal of the authority which is now given into the hands of this Public Service Commission, we take away a great deal of the dissatisfaction which is so extremely manifest in this Commonwealth today. Gentlemen, I say we ought to give back to the people the rights which rightfully belong to them.

On the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

BILL ON THIRD READING.

The SPEAKER. The Special Order at 10.35 is House Bill No. 1487, on third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 1487, as follows:

A supplement to an act defining public service companies and providing for their regulation by prescribing and defining their duties and liabilities prescribing defining and limiting their powers and regulating their incorporation and to a limited extend regulating municipal corporations engaged or about to engage in the business of public service companies creating and establishing a Public Service Commission for the regulation aforesaid prescribing and defining the powers and duties of such Commission and its officers including the exclusive power to regulate the construction alteration relocation or abolition of the crossing of railroad corporations street railway corporations or other public service companies and of public highways by the tracks or other facilities of said companies providing for the ascertainment by the Commission of the expense and damages resulting from such construction alteration relocation or abolition and for the payment of such expense and damages severally or proportionately by the public service companies interested the State or municipal corporation concerned and giving persons whose property is thereby taken injured or destroyed authority to sue the Commonwealth for damages in such cases providing for the terms salaries and compensation of the members of the Commission its officers counsel and employes prescribing and regulating the practice and procedure before such Commission and upon appeal and judicial review of its orders and determinations by the courts of common pleas and giving the court of common pleas of Dauphin county exclusive jurisdiction of such appeals in certain cases and of all injunctions mandamus or other appropriate roceedings to enforce the provisions of this act and the orders of the Commission and to restrain such orders subject to an appeal to the Supreme Court prescribing penalties fines and imprisonment for the violation of the provisions of this act and for the violation of the orders of said Commission making it the duty of the Public Service Commission to enforce the provisions of the act approved the nineteenth day of June one thousand nine hundred and eleven entitled 'An Act to promote the safety of travelers and employes on railroads by compelling common carriers by railroad to properly man their trains by amending section nine thereof repealing the act approved the thirty-first day of May one thousand nine hundred and seven which provided for the appointment of the Pennsylvania State Railroad Commission and sections one and two of the act approved the fourth day of June one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three entitled 'An Act to enforce the provisions of the seventeenth article of the Constitution relative to railroads and canals' and an act entitled 'To provide the maximum car service charges including car storage charges that railroad companies and corporations or associations may charge and collect on each car loading and not unloaded within the free time for unloading cars and fixing the free time that shall be allowed for unloading cars' approved twenty-fourth day of May Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven and the proviso of clause three and the proviso of clause seven of section thirty-four of the act entitled 'An Act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of certain corporations' approved the twenty-ninth day of April one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four and all other legislation inconsistent with or supplied by this act" approved the twenty-sixth day of July Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and thirteen

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That wherever and whenever in any municipality within the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a public service company within the meaning of this act has constructed and is operating such company within the limits of said municipality or any part thereof that such municipality shall not be permitted to construct and operate an independent plant or works for the furnishing or supply of a utility of the same character as that already being furnished by the said public service company within the limits of said municipality or the portion thereof which may be served by the said public service company until and unless the said municipality shall offer to purchase and acquire the property and plant of the said public service company within the limits of the said municipality or any part thereof upon the terms hereinafter provided and if the said municipality shall at any time offer to purchase and acquire the property and plant of the said public service company within the limits of the municipality at the price as hereinafter provided and the said company shall refuse to sell the same at the price hereinafter provided then the said municipality shall have the right thereafter to construct maintain and operate a plant or works for the purpose of supplying or furnishing the said utility Nothing contained in this act shall in the case herein provided require any municipality to secure from the Public Service Commission a certificate of public service convenience as provided under any provision of this act

The price to be paid for the plant or works of the said public service company shall be fixed and determined as follows namely whenever the said municipality shall desire to acquire the plant and property of the said company as hereinafter provided it shall make application to the Public Service Commission to determine the reproduction value of the plant or works to be acquired based upon the fair average price of labor and materials taking into account only the physical properties of the company actually used by the company in furnishing the said service or at the request of the company the Commission shall ascertain and fix the actual cost of the physical properties of the company actually used in furnishing the said service The Commission shall also ascertain and determine and make an adequate deduction for the actual depreciation of the plant or works and shall add to the net price as so determined ten per centum to cover the value of the plant as a going concern and said award shall be the price as hereinbefore provided

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the Commission in any given case where the plant of any public service company extends beyond the limits of such municipality from requiring the said municipality or other municipalities acting jointly when in its judgment it would be impractical to separate the portion of the plant within such municipality from the portion of the plant outside of such municipality to acquire and purchase the entire plant of the public service company or so much thereof as could be practically and reasonably separated and removed from the remaining plant of the company Provided further That nothing herein contained shall in any way interfere with or effect the right of municipalities to maintain jointly or operate existing plants or extend the same or to construct maintain and operate plants and works in territory not actually supplied by any public service company Provided further That nothing herein contained shall prevent a municipality from purchasing the property and plant of a public service company at terms mutually agreed upon between such a municipality and public service company and in such event it shall not be necessary to petition or receive the approval of the Public Service Commission before making such purchase

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, I will only ask you to vote as you did on the other bill. The bill which has preceded this one. I ask you to vote likewise. I trust every member of this House will vote the same.

Mr. McCLINTOCK in the Chair.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Steedle, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, yes sir.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr Speaker, I desire to ask the sponsor of the bill which provides for the application to Public Service Commission. Under that bill what provision is made for the acquiring of water rights?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, none.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to ask, in other words, whether a municipality that purchases the plant of a company that has a pipe line or a pumping station or anything at all whether they acquire the water rights?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, my interpretation of that act is that in the event of any municipality wanting to purchase this water right they would have to pay for everything that would be specified as a part of that corporate interest, subject to viewers' opinion as to the relative value of that property, plus a profit of ten per cent.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, the tangible water rights you believe then to be part of the physical property. The right to take water from the streams. Your bill says "They shall take over the visible property." Is water included in that?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, take over everything that it has. That is the intent of the act, to buy everything and not to steal anything from anybody.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, my objection to the bill is that I don't understand what they mean. Probably if I did, I would vote for it as it is, but as I understand it I must vote against it. I don't believe any body here wants to buy only the physical plant without also having the right to operate it and if they don't have the tangible water rights, for instance, there is something lacking. In other words, they will have here a pipe line and a public station, but nothing at all to supply the borough. I would like to ask the gentleman from Allegheny in respect to that part which says that the company shall ascertain the value of the properties actually in use and paying ten per cent. for the going value. How does that provide or how will that take care of the bonded indebtedness of any public service company?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, if that company is so heavily loaded with bonded indebtedness I think the people of the community will take care of it. This is only the actual cost of ten per cent. It takes in all the bridges, right of ways and all concerns of the company.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, you mean by that the cost of the plant under the present conditions or under the original conditions?

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, under the present conditions.

Mr. FORSTER Mr. Speaker, the company which lays its pipe under a paved road would be based on the cost of laying pipes under a paved street.

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, no. Just according to conditions. This matter of subterfuge and argument with the intention of trying to impress upon this House that any municipality is going to take undue advantage of anything is uncalled for.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, if I was clear and knew just what this bill meant I would not interrogate the gentleman. It seems to me that it is not a case of original conditions, but under present conditions. On the other hand where we have the doors open we have here something said about inalienable rights under the constitution, which has been quoted and the question has been raised as to the bonded indebtedness. We are not aiding a service corporation by taking a plant away from them and if one thing is guaranteed under our constitution it is the right to protect private property. I think this bill inasmuch as it does not take care of anything of that sort strikes at the very fundamental provisions of the bill of rights.

Mr. McVICAR. Mr. Speaker, in regard to the bill now before you for consideration, it is a companion bill to the bill which just passed. The former bill provided that whenever a municipal corporation shall enter competition with a public service company that it must first procure the permission of the Court of Common Pleas of the proper county. Now this bill adds in addition to this after that permission has been had, that municipal corporations must first agree with the public service company as to the purchase of its plant; failing in this, the Public Service Commission of the State shall fix a price on the actual value of its physical properties, and that includes every property of a physical nature together with ten per cent. added thereto as a running concern; if the Public Service Company accepts this price, then the matter is closed; if it does not, the municipal corporation may construct its water plant, or its electric light plant itself.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE.

Mr. McCAIG. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote by which House Bill No. 1038, File Folio 4335, entitled:

> An Act to provide for the modifiction of the plans of the new Western Penitentiary in Centre county so as to provide larger or additional buildings in order to accommodate the inmates of the Eastern Penitentiary as well as of the Western Penitentiary for the consolidation of said institutions into one to be known as the State Penitentiary of Pennsylvania was defeated on final passage, April 13th, be reconsidered.

Mr. WHITAKER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. HESS. Mr. Speaker, and gentlemen of the House. I wish to call your attention to the title of this bill and have you distinctly understand what this bill seeks to accomplish. You will notice that in the title of this bill it sets forth that the bill is to provide for the modification of the plans of the new Western Penitentiary in Centre county so as to provide larger or additional buildings in order to accommodate the inmates of the Eastern Penitentiary as well as those of the Western Penitentiary for the consolidation of said institutions into one, to be known as the State Penitentiary of Pennsylvania. All of this will not be affected for at least six years, possibly not for eight years, and possibly not for ten years, but the purpose of this bill is to accomplish that consolidation ultimately. Now, in order to do that every one of us, as good business men, knows that this is the time when the management of that institution, when the ground plan is just being laid, ought to know what the future demands of that institution, so that they can so arrange their plans that they can economically build an institution large enough to ultimately take care of the inmates of both of these institutions.

Those of us who were members of the session of 1911 have not forgotten, I am very sure, the occasion on which the warden of the Western Penitentiary, John Francis, came before this House and asked that he be given the privilege of a confidential talk with its members. Do you remember, those of you who were members of that session in this House, that he asked that the page boys be excluded, and that all ladies be excluded from attendance at that meeting, and that he be given the opportunity of a confidential talk with this House of Representatives? Do you remember that he said in reference to conditions as they then existed right under his own eyes, conditions over which he, as warden, had no control in the institution over which he presided? Do you remember what he said to us, that solitary confinement meant? Do you remember that he proved and showed that solitary confinement in his own institution meant mental, spiritual, physical and moral degeneracy? Do you remember that he proved to us that men would come to him in that institution and never left better than when they entered? Do you remember how he said to us after he had done his best and after the men had gathered together the remnants of their manhood and they had formed a resolution to go out in the world and lead better lives, they turned away with light and elastic steps and when they rapped at the door of industry, it was closed to them? Do you remember that when he said they rapped at the door of industry for a job, the pallor that sedentary confinement had fixed upon their cheeks would debar them from securing employment which would give them their livelihood. Can you picture them as they go out in the world, not a dollar in their pockets, practically all hope gone, just a little remnant of their manhood left, and they rally, and they attempt to come back.

I fancy I see them going out with all the cheerfulness they could muster, as they rapped at the first place and the results of separate and solitary confinement stamped upon their faces, and the man of whom they inquire for employment, says to them, No, No, and they pass on to the next, and they get the same answer and the forces of evil, seeing them defeated, laugh, as they finally deter and fail in their resolutions to live better lives, and there is just one more success on the part of the forces of evil to overthrown a human life.

Do you remember how he prayed that this House, how he begged of this House that they should give to him some of those broad acres up there in the center of Pennsylvania, out on the mountain, broad acres of which the State has a plenty. Let me take my guests up there into those mountains; let me put them out there on the farm; let them enjoy God's very sunshine and inhale the incense of spring flowers; let me put upon their cheeks the flush of health; let me make of these men better and stronger men; let me learn these men to do something well,—for we all know that the reason why many of these men are confined in this institution is because they were never learned to do anything well, is the aim of the management of that institution to not only farm those three thousand acres—they have more than five thousand, three thousand of which is agricultural land—it is not only their aim to farm that land and make this institution self-sustaining, thereby saving to the State a vast sum of money; but it is the aim of the management of that institution to do more than farm, to make of that farm a veritable experiment station, a veritable scientific school, so that these men who go there will learn to do something well and when they leave they can come to themselves and they will know that they can do something well by the result of their own effort.

Now it has been whispered about—and I am sure that it did not come from that splendid man who today presides over the institution in the eastern end of the State—that if this bill becomes a law by consolidating with the Western Penitentiary and make up by consolidation the most splendid penal institution within the confines of any State—it has been whispered that there is a fear because of the fact that certain employment would be disturbed. Gentlemen of this House, I want to say to you that I know Bob McKenty of the Eastern Penitentiary. I know him to be one of the most splendid men. I know him to be a man who seeks earnestly to improve the men under his charge and given into his keeping, and I know that no much small, selfish, narrow motive as that will ever deter so splendid a man as Robert McKenty, of Philadelphia, who has the welfare of the men in his charge so close to his great heart; no such incentive as that will ever deter him from supporting this bill so as to enable the combined managements of these two institutions to some day create up on the slopes of the Nittany mountain, across the babbling brook of Spring Creek, an institution to which we cannot go without being inspired and having our lives stirred. I ask you gentlemen, in the name of humanity, in the name of these men whose welfare I champion, I ask you in their name to place this bill back on the calendar and I have given you my word, if you do, that I will move for its further postponement before it is given final consideration.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

Mr. HESS. Mr. Speaker, I move that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr McNICHOL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask Mr. Hess to fix a definite time when this bill may be called up in order that we may be prepared to give it further consideration.

Mr. HESS. Mr. Speaker, the suggestion of the gentleman from Philadelphia will be satisfactory. Next Monday night at nine thirty o'clock will probably suit.

HOUSE BILL NO. 1038 MADE A SPECIAL ORDER.

I move that this bill be made a special order for Monday evening, April 26th, at nine thirty o'clock and withdraw my previous motion.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE.

Mr. WALTERS offered the following motion which was twice read and considered:

Moved by Mr. Walters, seconded by Mr. Stone, that the vote by which House Bill No. 1077 (Senate Bill No. 404), File Folio 799, entitled:

An Act regulating the practice of veterinary medicine including veterinary surgery and veterinary denistry or any branch thereof and establishing as incidental thereto a State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners and defining its powers and duties was defeated on Wednesday, April 14th, 1915, be reconsidered.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. WALTERS. Mr. Speaker, I inadvertently voted against this bill. I was unfamiliar with the merits of it and a number of the members seemed to think there was something wrong with it and voted "no" and I followed suit. I have since examined the bill with some care and I believe that it ought to be considered on its merits. It provides for no new offices or no new boards and is simply a consolidation of existing laws and requires some education on the part of the veterinary surgeon.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. WALTERS. I move that the further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 1227 (Senate No. 549), as follows:

An Act to fix salary of court criers and tipstaves in judicial districts containing more than two hundred and fifty thousand inhabitants and less than one million inhabitants

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That in all the judicial districts of this Commonwealth containing more than two hundred and fifty thousand and less than one million inhabitants the court criers of the several courts shall be paid a salary of thirteen hundred and fifty dollars per annum and the tipstaves a salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum The court interpreters shall be paid a salary of twelve hundred dollars per annum the said salaries to be paid out of the county treasury monthly

Section 2 All acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. W. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to offer amendment at this time.

The SPEAKER. The amendment will be read by the Clerk.

The Clerk then read the amendment as follows:

Amend title by inserting after the words "court criers" the words "court interpreters"

The SPEAKER. Will the House give unanimous consent to insert the amendment as read? Is there any objection? The Chair hears none and the amendment will be inserted in accordance with the instruction of the House.

The bill as amended was then agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended lie over for printing.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 610, as follows:

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I would like the sponsor to explain this bill.

Mr. BODY. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, This bill makes but a few changes in the Commodity Act passed here in 1913. It changes apples from fifty to forty-five pounds per bushel; beets from sixty to fifty six, lime from seventy to eighty and popcorn is cut out altogether for that is sold mostly by the dozen. That is all the changes made by the bill.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up at this time from page 24 of today's calendar, Bills on Final Passage Postponed, House Bill No. 563, File Folio 5491.

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 563, entitled:

An Act to amend the second section of an act approved the thirteenth day of June one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three entitled "An Act for the promotion of medical science by the distribution and use of unclaimed human bodies for scientific purposes through a board created for that purpose and to prevent unauthorized uses and traffic in human bodies" by providing that bodies of honorably discharged soldiers sailors or marines of the United States and of the militia of the State of Pennsylvania shall not be delivered to said Anatomical Board and further providing that there shall not be delivered to the said board any body claimed by relatives or representatives of fraternal society or charitable organization within seventy-two hours after death

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, in the Act of 1883 this bill will repeal certain sections. In one clause it makes the period twenty-four hours, and this will make it forty-eight hours. The bill has been gone over thoroughly by a sub-committee of the committee on Public Health and Sanitation, and is agreeable to the Anatomical Board and also to the people interested in the bill.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. STEIN. Mr. Speaker, from page 23 of today's calendar, Bills on Final Passage Postponed, I desire to call up House Bill No. 1224, Senate Bill No. 503, File Folio, 2163.

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1224 (Senate Bill No. 503), entitled:

An Act making mortgages given by benevolent charitable philanthropic educational and eleemonsynary institutions corporations or unincorporated associations for permanent improvements and refunding purposes prior liens to the liens of the Commonwealth for the appropriation of moneys providing for a method for the giving of such mortgages and fixing the duties of the Auditor General and Board of Public Charities in connection therewith

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STEIN. Mr. Speaker, I wish the gentlemen of the House would please refrain from their usual morning frolics for about two minutes, and give me a chance to explain this bill, which is of direct benefit to every member of this House. I cannot understand why the bill was defeated when it came up for consideration last week and I cannot understand why any member would oppose the measure, because, as I say, it is a direct benefit to every individual measure . The bill prosides simply this: As you know the law now stands that when the State of Pennsylvania appropriates money to any charitable institution for the purpose of extension or improvement, the amount of money so granted by the Commonwealth becomes a first lien upon all the real estate of the corporation. Of course it is a perpetual non-interest bearing lien, but it is nevertheless a valid first lien, and the effect of such lien is to prevent such charitable institution from borrowing money from any other source, such as a bank, trust company, or private individual in case the corporation needs and desires money for other improvement or extension.

Now, gentlemen, you can see the result. The State has a first lien and the hands and feet of that institution are tied and crippled, and they cannot borrow money elsewhere because the State comes in with its lien ahead of all others. Now, gentlemen, the proposition in this bill is simply this: in all such cases where a corporation or an eleemosynary institution desires to enlarge or extend, and desires to mortgage its premises, it shall first notify the State Board of Charities, the Auditor General and all other departments of the State, and if they get the consent of the Board of Charities and the Auditor General and all other parties in interest, that in such event only, they are authorized and permitted to execute a valid first lien upon the property and the Commonwealth will postpone its lien in favor of the other.

Now, as I said before, I do not see why anybody should object to this, yet on its first consideration we only got twenty-five votes. If I have not fully explained this matter, or if there be doubts in the minds of any of you gentlemen who are not lawyers, because I am satisfied that a lawyer would see through it most easily, I should be only too glad to answer any questions, but for your own best interests and those of the State charitable associations, I ask you to vote this bill through the House, as it has already passed the Senate.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL RECOMMITTED.

Mr. POWELL. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill No. 993, Senate Bill No. 379, entitled:

An Act to amend section one of an act entitled "An Act regulating the method and procedure in the erection of line or partition fences" approved the fourteenth day of April one thousand nine hundred and five (Pamphlet Laws one hundred sixty-two) on page 32 of today's calendar, be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General, for the purpose of a hearing.

Mr. HERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON THIRD READING.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up at this time, from page 22 of today's calendar, Bills on Third Reading Postponed for the Present, House Bill No. 1237:

Agreeably to order,

The House resumed the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 1237, entitled:

An Act to amend section one of an act entitled "An Act to designate the several judicial districts of the Commonwealth as required by the Constitution and to provide for the election appointment and commissioning of judges learned in the law for the said districts in cases where such judges are not provided for by existing law" approved the eighteenth day of July one thousand nine hundred one

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. CORBIN. Mr. Speaker, I wish the sponsor of this bill would explain the purposes of it.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, Judicial District No. 20 is composed of Mifflin, Huntingdon and Bedford counties. The three counties make over one hundred and eight thousand people. Our judge is overworked to the extent that our court is congested for more than two years. As a matter of fact the cases of 1912, for trial, were 133, and 31 of them were tried; 1913, 120 and 35 of them were tried; 1914, 92 and 23 of them were tried, and in the February term of 1912, 18 cases were up for trial and 10 of them were tried. That congests our court until the litigation in our district is more than two years behind time. As a matter of fact we have had important cases that lingered as long as six years before we could get to them. Notably among these was what was known as the Alexandria water case. We have one in the borough of Huntingdon today that has lingered for four years simply because the court is so congested that we cannot get to it. The three districts lie in such a position that it is just ninety miles from one county seat to the other. Because of that prolonged litigation not only annoys our citizens, but causes the county great and unreasonable expense. As a result of that the bar of Huntingdon county unanimously, almost,—as a matter of fact with two exceptions, the bar of Huntingdon county has signed a petition, petitioning that the judicial disrict, No. 20, be divided; that Mifflin County and Bedford County be allowed to constitute the 20th District and that Huntingdon county be stricken off to make the 57th District. This petition, as I said before has been signed by all the members of the bar, regardless of politics, the moral issue, or any other issue.

It has been circulated on the floor of this House that the object of asking for this separation is because we have a grouch against our President Judge. I want to denounce that most emphatically; it is as untrue as it is ridiculous. We admire our judge; he is my personal friend. I have not the breath in my lungs to condemn him for anything, but the man is unable to discharge the duties of a district as large as that scattered over as much territory as Huntingdon County is and give us efficient service. This report forces me to say one thing that I am loath to say: In sixty-six cases that were appealed from the lower courts from Huntingdon and carried to the higher courts, thirty-three of them, or just fifty per cent. of them, were reversed and the explanation was that we are so overworked that we don't have time to go into the cases sufficiently and carefully so as not to make errors. This is the condition, gentlemen of the House, that compels us to come and ask for this separation. We have the required population. We have over forty thousand people. The census has been taken and properly sworn to and that demonstrates that fact. Not only that there are eight districts in the State of Pennsylvania having a separate judge or having their own judge that are decidedly smaller than Huntingdon county. Among these are the 41st district composed of Juniata and Perry with a combined population of 39,149 people. The 43rd district, Monroe and Pike having 30,931. The 7th district, Union and Snyder, having 33,049, according to the census of 1910. Greene county with a population of 28,881 has its own judge. Clarion county with 36,638 has its own judge. Wayne county with 29,236 has its own judge. Susquehanna county with less than 38,000 has its own judge. Potter county with less than 40,000 has its own judge. Northampton county with a smaller population decidedly in one county than our judicial district has two judges. Erie county with 10,000 people less than this county in the 20th district has its own judge. If 98,000 people, living in one county necessitate two judges to take care of the business why should not the 20th district, covering three counties, large counties, require two judges. Besides that, gentlemen of the House, Huntingdon has decidedly more business than the business of the other two districts, the two counties of our district put together. Practically all the railroad business from Altoona to Dauphin is done at Huntingdon and then also the business of the East Broadtop railroad and the Huntingdon Broadtop railroad is practically done at Huntingdon. That makes the conjestion of our court so immense that our people, as a unit almost, are in favor of this measure. When I introduced this bill, gentlemen of the House, the newspapers of my county with two exceptions—and one of them fights every measure that is introduced by either of the two great parties—the newspapers come out with strong editorials commending the move because as they said "It is a much needed proposition; a proposition that will give us better service; a proposition that will save the county very decidedly in expenses in the matter of litigation because of the crowded condition." Now, gentlemen of the House, since our attorneys living in Huntingdon as a unit, from Mount Union to the other towns, see the necessity for this; since the farming element of our county see the necessity for this and have written letter after letter asking for it; since the newspapers of the county see the necessity for it and have been urging it, I appeal to you to come with us and give us this much needed separation. Huntingdon county, Huntingdon borough, the Governor's old home wants it. The Governor's old home is anxious to have it and we appeal to you to help us to get it.

Mr. CORBIN. Mr. Speaker, I cannot refrain from raising objection to this bill at this time. The 20th district composed of Bedford, Huntingdon and Mifflin, with Huntingdon lying in the center of our district, he wants to cut this out; cut the heart out of our district. This bill was introduced without consulting either one of us, Mr. Blackburn or myself. He states to you that our judge is overworked. Our judge told me last Monday morning before I came down here that he has done the work for ten years and is willing to do it ten years more. The secret of the thing is this. We have got a judge who has served almost ten years and next fall we elect a new judge. The Attorneys of Huntingdon County are afraid they cannot put a man to defeat our man. If you want to aid to this extent vote "Aye"; if not vote "no".

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Mifflin.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Mifflin, Mr. Corbin, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. CORBIN. Mr. Speaker, yes sir.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman from Mifflin County, tell me how many cases are tried in Mifflin County in a year?

Mr. CORBIN. Mr. Speaker, I am not able to tell that.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, that is a matter he should know. The representative of Huntingdon County knows the condition. He has it from the Judge's own transcript It has repeatedly been referred to and answered in the county that the reason for this prolonged litigation and for these many reverses comes from the fact that he has been overworked and been unable to inquire into the technique of the law. Besides that, Mr. Speaker, it is not a matter of election ;it is nothing of that kind. If it were we would go into the field and defeat them. That is what we would do if it were, but I appeal to you if we cannot with forty thousand people out-vote them certainly by the unit on election day that we have to-day in the county, for decidedly the largest population of the district is a unit on this measure to-day, with one or two exceptions, and I want to say one other thing since I am forced to say it, I want to say something more of this: It is a matter of personal relationship on the part of the gentleman from Mifflin County; nor on his own particular part, but there has been lobby work done from one higher up on this floor simply because of personal relationship. I admire the spirit that tries to take care of these men but I feel when it comes to a matter of so great importance to he people of the Commonwealth as to the judiciary, matters of this character should never enter into it. From the time of King John back at a time when he was forced to sign the Magna Charta the defense of the people has been the court and to-day the defense of the people is the court. We heard to-day in the prolonged speeches we had in favor of restricting the Utilities Commission that the court should be the deciding power; that the court should govern the conditions of the people. If the court should govern the conditions of the people give us ample service so that we may be governed right.

On the question recurring.

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No 1226 (Senate Bill No. 538), entitled:

An Act to amend an act entitled "An Act regulating the publication of advertisements and notices required by law to be published in counties of this Commonwealth in newspapers published in the English language and newspapers published in the German language" approved the thirtieth day of April one thousand nine hundred and one

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SNYDER. Mr. Speaker, I have had no opportunity to examine this bill with care, but it does seem to me it is a dangerous bill. It provides that wherever there is a population of 40,000 Italians, Yiddish or German, in any one of those cases you have got to advertise any sale or any court advertising in all of those languages,—Yiddish, Italian and German and English. It does seem to me it would inflict upon our people an enormous lot of costs and unnecessarily so. It does seem to me that the way to correct that would be to teach these people the English language rather than advertise in all these papers. In other words if we want to make a sale of some real estate, it may be there are no Italians interested in any way whatever, yet this bill would require the advertising of that sale in the Italian and Yiddish language. That surely would be a great hardship. It does seem to me that this is not a good bill.

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, this bill provides that advertising of a legal nature shall be put in the Yiddish and Italian newspapers in counties having a population of over forty thousand of such Yiddish and Italian-speaking people The district that I come from, and its surrounding territory is very largely populated by a great many foreigners, who speak these languages. We are attempting to educate them and we believe if these constitutional amendments and other legal advertisements are printed in these foreign languages, it will go far toward making these people better American citizens and I ask the House and my friends in particular, to vote for this bill.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MAURER. Mr. Speaker, this is the Constabulary bill in pretty much the same form that it was before us two years ago when it was defeated. The bill provides for an increase of salary for the captain and an increase in the force. At the present time Captain Groome's salary is three thousand dollars a year. The bill now, as amended, provides that his salary be increased to four thousand. That surely is not a very large salary if we got service for it, but it may be news to some of you to know that the captain of the State Constabulary, the head of the department, is not like the head of other departments you see here in the Capitol.

Any other head of a department puts in a certain number of hours every day here on the job; but not so with the head of the department of State police. It is seldom he is ever here, very seldom that he ever comes to the Capitol. It is seldom that he is ever anywhere on the kind of work that he is being paid for. The captain of the State Police, —the head of the State Police is, as some of you may know, a business man of Philadelphia. Mr. Groome is in the wholesale liquor business, and he is not giving his entire time, as some of you may think, to this office as head of the State Police. I therefore think that since Superintendent Lumb does the work, and Mr. Groome is merely a figurehead, I really think he is getting plenty to have his name at the head of the State Police and believe it would be wrong to increase his salary, as this bill provides, at a thousand dollars a year more.

The next feature of the bill is that we increase the department by adding one hundred and sixteen more men to it. This, my friends, is a mistake. I can hardly understand what use we have for one hundred and sixteen more State policemen. The present force, as now constituted, costs the State three hundred and thirty thousand dollars a year. If this bill passes it means an added burden of close on to two hundred thousand dollars a year more. It means that the State Police will cost the State over a half million dollars a year. And now, gentlemen, in the face of the fact that the State revenues are falling off, and the Appropriation Committee, and the Committee on Ways and Means are trying to find how to make the funds at hand reach to meet more worthy cases,—the appropriations for deserving institutions must be cut down,—and then to bring a bill in here asking that a special appropriation of nearly two hundred thousand dollars be granted for something that we do not need, I think, indeed, it would be a great mistake if we should vote for this extra burden.

I want to remind you of the fact that about five weeks ago we passed here in the House a bill that allows the District Attorney to appoint four special detectives in their counties. That bill passed this House and that means this: that where the county feels it has not got the proper police protection, the bill that was passed here will allow the District Attorney to appoint four special detectives beyond what he is allowed to appoint now to give you police protection in the county where you live. That bill passed, therefore, why do we need an increase in the Constabularly now. I can see no earthly use for it.

Two years ago the bill was not passed because the members of the House at that time could see no excuse for increasing the Constabulary. It has been costumary, gentlemen, for the chief of the department of police to make a statement or report to the Governor every two years. We have got these reports for the past ten years. This report was always laid on our desks. This year, however, there was no such report, at least none that I could find. Yesterday I sent up to the Department of State Police and asked for the latest report, as submitted to the Governor, and this is the report they gave me—this is a report for 1912. This is the latest. Now, why does this Department fail to make a report this year. Why, it is obvious, gentlemen, the report would be of such a nature that the members of the House would refuse to act favorably upon the bill which is before you tonight. The report would evidently show they have been doing less in the last two years than what they had in the two years previous. Therefore, gentlemen, I ask you, to not give us this increase in the Constabulary.

I have many other reasons but I shall not take up your time because I believe most of you have read my book that I have sent you and I believe you understand my views in accordance as I express them in that book. However, I might mention that Captain Groome's report of the book in answer to my question which some of you may have read, perhaps, all of you was based upon this one point: That the District Attorney need these police. I wish again to remind you that you have just five weeks ago given the district attorneys the right to have their own detectives in their own counties. Therefore there will be no further excuse for the district attorneys drawing on the State Constabulary for extra detective work in those counties. Besides that question some of the people living in the rural districts would like to have those police; I mean those living in small towns. In our own county we have a town by the name of Hamburg which is quite a large place. They don't have a local policeman there but they want the State Police there. Why? Because they get the State Police for nothing and have the pay the local police and, therefore, they say that the State Police is a splendid thing. Just last week one of the State Police on duty at Hamburg was taken before our local county court and found guilty for false arrest and fined fifty dollars. He locked up a boy in the station house for twenty-four hours for no crime. In spite of the fact that this boy's relatives appeared, this boy's father a farmer there and a wealthy farmer was there and offered bail in any amount. His relatives could have offered a hundred thousand dollars bail to have this boy released. The boy was timid and he was scared and was locked up in the station house over night. The women folks at home were excited and the whole town of Hamburg was aroused by the action of the State Officer having put him in without a warrant. There was no redress in the case and he refused to liberate the boy and he was kept there until the next day late when they got him out. The court, Judge Wagner, heard the case and found the officer guilty for arresting without warrant and accused him of making a false arrest. This is one of the many cases that have passed. I could keep this up all night, Gentlemen, and show you that the Department has been partial in its conduct. I disapproved of that and I offered my grievance to Governor Tener and gave my reason and Governor Tener listened to the charges and said, "It cannot be; the State Police are not partial in their conduct toward our citizens." He said that I was wrong and that he was right. However, he ordered Secretary Lumb to go over to his office and there, in my presence, he said "Make the charges to Secretary Lumb just as you made them to me." I repeated the charges and then the Governor said, "Mr. Lumb, I want you to investigate these charges." Mr. Lumb and I went to Hazleton together and in the parlor of the Hotel there Mr. Lumb by order of the Governor conducted a hearing and investigated the charges as they were preferred by myself. There was present Mr. Thomas Kennedy, President of the District Mine Workers, and fifteen witnesses were heard. These witnesses were from among the best citizens of Hazleton and several other towns, and there were, besides the fifteen, thirty more witnesses waiting below to be heard. What were the charges that I preferred? The charges were that they were partial in their conduct in the strike situation at Hazleton. The further charges were that they were drunk and disorderly. And the charges were that they arrested men in Hazleton and railroaded them into Pottsville and Wilkes-Barre to have a trial when there were courts in Hazleton where they could have been tried. But the purpose was to railroad these men to jail, for they had committed no crime. That was the charge that the Constabulary acted in as detectives for the strike-breakers, and that they were employed by the Lehigh Traction Company. Every one of these charges were proven by the investigation, conducted by Secretary Lumb of the State Police. Each witness as he came into the room to testify did not know what the previous witness had said. We did not allow the witnesses to hear what was said and they did not see each other until after they had testified. Every witness was put under oath by a Notary Public. We proved these charges and to prove that they were considered seriously one of the men, Mr. Haney who was the chief offender for drunkenness, has since been relieved from the Department. At this investigation, conducted by the Department of the State Police by order of the Governor, Captain Groome referred to it and he would have you believe that the investigation was not a thorough investigation. But Secretary Lumb himself conducted the investigation and at this investigation one stenographer was taken from the Capitol—taken along down there and we also had a stenographer of our own and we had a verbatim report of the hearing and I have it in my possession, word for word, which any of you can see. I mention that to assure you that I have a reason for opposing this Department. It is not a personal grievance; it is one that means more than my personal feelings. In conclusion, let me say this; The greatest danger is the trend toward militarism. I tell you, gentlemen, it is not a good government that must hold its people down with a bayonet. We got along in this great Republic for a cenutry without a standing army.

Mr. RONEY. Mr. Speaker, on a matter as important as this I think the speaker should have the undivided attention of the House.

The SPEAKER. The House will be in order.

Mr. MAURER. Mr. Speaker, when the Constabularly was first created it was under a salary of forty dollars a month for each trooper, very cheap and consevative, but from that day on it commenced to grow and salaries increased here at each session and there were efforts to make it bigger and bigger and it has grown until to-day the troopers get nine hundred dollars a year and if this bill goes through it means five dollars a month more and it means that we may be allowing to grow upon us a military condition. Europe has paid its price for that. What a sad spectacle there is in Europe to-day. To-day they are paying the price and they are at each other's throats and already there has been an expense of eight billion dollars with six millions dead. Think of it. Are we going to foster such a spirit in this building. An official, not more than six weeks ago, said to me, "Maurer, I tell you what I believe; I believe it would be better than anything else if we now had a benevolent monarch." That is the talk we hear. I told him, "Who is going to be your benevolent monarch?" He said, "Well, we will have to find one." I said, "If you did find one and he died, what then? Then you might get a despot." But that is just what that thought means. The military and the man who controls the military rules the people. I, therefore, hope, Gentlemen, that you will vote this bill down to-night. There is no excuse for it. Why do we need more State Troopers? Now, Gentlemen, just tell me why do you need them? Is there any public demand for them? Positively, no. Is there one of you that feels that you are justified in increasing this Constabulary force? You say they are good in the rural districts. If this bill passes you know what the farmers could get. If this bill pass you will add 116 men to the force with which you mean to control the rural districts, and if you want to cover or control the rural districts you would have to cover 135 square miles. When you talk of giving the farmers police protection, why cannot you see how foolish that is? Where are the police? Are they among the farmers? No, they are in the industrial centers There is where they are and everyone of you know it. They are trying to make the farmers believe that they are going to profit by it. If the farmers were the ones to be profited by the State Police you would never had gotten them. They don't love the farmers enough for that. If they were intended for the farmers' benefit the constabulary force would never have been created. I have here the original act and I tell you why they were created. Here is the kernel. When they created this Department they promised the people that they were going to repeal the coal and iron police laws and the private detective law and here is what it says, and this is the act signed by Governor Pennypacker in 1905, "They are intended, as far as possible, to take the place of the police now appointed at the request of the various corporations" That is what they are here for. The bill itself tells you and there is no use talking about it. Don't give them 116 more men at our expense. That is all I have to say and I will rest my case with you in the hope that you will vote this bill down.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, really my friend from Berks blew hot and then blew cold so quickly that I scarcely knew where he was. First, he complained that there were too many and then that there were not enough. It reminds me though in his complaint of there being too many, of an argument that took place in Congress some twenty-five or thirty years ago when the same cry went up and down over this country bearing on the National Military forces. It was a political squabble just similar to what is going on here. My friend belongs to a political party whose platform is against organized society, against proper police protection. He belongs to a political faith and thinks that the people ought to practically do as they please and be without the police force and believes that it is a menace to the welfare of the community. That is all right, he enlarges on it of course and he has a right to. If I believed in that political faith, I would talk just like that. They just have a faith and the more they think of the faith, the more they think of something that will reinforce that faith. Now, my friend knows just as well as I do, that a wise government has to have a police force. As I said, his remarks remind me of an argument that took place down in Congress when they were complaining, or rather one political party was, they did not happen to be in power, about the military power of this government, and in answer another very eminent statesman, on the other side, to illustrate the insignificance, of the argument, said, "if we were to proportion to the State of Delaware her share, we would have one corporal and two ragged privates to march three abreast over the State of Delaware, dominating and tramping upon the interests of the people. Now, I have just figured out that there will just be one state police to each twenty-five thousand of the citizenship of the State of Pennsylvania. Now don't vote against this bill because you fear military dominance, and that this great and powerful military arm is going to take from the people their rights. I think that perhaps there are a number of new members in the House who have never looked into this question of our State police or have a knowledge of its history. This history began about ten years ago. It was in the minds of men who had given these subjects some consideration, that the expenses of frequently calling out the State Militia when disturbances occurred in the State of Pennsylvania was a very onerous burden on our people. Sometimes and naturally, the militia were untrained men. You do not have to go back very far in the history of the State of Pennsylvania. I well recollect the famous strike in Pittsburgh, when the militia was called out and when hundreds of lives were lost, likely unnecessarily destroyed because of the untrained condition of the military forces that were sent out there to quell this great disturbance. It was then thought that it would be wise for the State of Pennsylvania, after careful observation no doubt, of the way these matters were handled in older and foreign countries, to have what was konwn in Europe as a "constabulary," composed of men of large experience; men with steady nerves; men that were immured to danger; men that were trained to act on the moment so as to prevent the conflagration that might get beyond the local authorities, and require the great military arm of the State. It has not been long since we saw what occurred in the State of Illinois. The chapter has not yet been closed as to what occurred in the State of Nevada. The result of that, was there was a gentleman in the State of Pennsylvania, asked by the Governor if he would accept the position after the Legislature had passed the act creating this police department. He at first refused to accept the position, realizing that it was one that called for a skill and a training that no man in the United States had, based on experience, but the Governor insisted. He insisted, he being as well trained military man as was available in the State of Pennsylvania, so he finally accepted the position, and went to Europe. He studied the constabularly of Europe, Switzerland, Germany, France, and the English Empire, the Insular Empire, and he concluded that in Ireland was the best system of all that he saw. The result of that was that he came back, and he accepted the position of organizing and putting into active operation, the arm that is now known as the State Constabulary. Now, I do not believe that it is necessary for me to say to you gentlemen anything about this man's personal business. He became the head of the State Constabulary. My friend, no doubt, from misinformation leads you to believe that the gentleman at the head of this department, Major Groome, is now engaged in the wholesale liquor business in the city of Philadelphia, and that he is giving his time to the wholesale liquor business. I have no doubt that he had in his mind the sting that might be contained in that charge, which might, perhaps be used effectively on this legislative body. I want to say to you that it is true that Major Groome was a member of an old wine importing family, the Groomes in the City of Philadelphia. Major Groome has not now, nor has not had, for years in any way, charge of the active operation of that wine importing house, but is simply a partner in the business that was handed down from his family before. He is giving to his department, I will venture to say that I am speaking within the bounds of the absolute truth, more personal supervision of the department over which he presides, at least as much as the head of any department in the State of Pennsylvania. Imagine that in the ten years at the head of that department, dealing with the things that every man knows constitute it the most difficult position that a man can be called upon to perform, namely to ferret out crime; to stop in its inception disturbances. Why is it difficult? Because every criminal is shrewd and evasive, hard to lay your hands upon; because in the inception of a disturbance, the people are excited; men lose their minds; men do things that in their normal conditions they would not do. It is for that reason, that it requires a trained and skilled man to make due allowances for the condition of the minds of the masses that he is dealing with. In those ten years this department has made over 25,000 arrests for violations of the laws of the State of Pennsylvania; over 300 murderers have been arrested by this department; over 1,000 violations of the Game and Fish laws; 120 arrests for highway robbery; 284 arrests for robberies; 187 for rape; 477 for burglary; 569 for violations of liquor laws; 324 for conducting bawdy houses; 130 for receiving stolen goods; has secured and returned to the owners 59 horses, 36 vehicles and 17 automobiles; has prevented serious trouble for a decade of ten years, and that is a decade, through all of the various disturbances in the State and relieved the State of Pennsylvania from calling out the State militia. If we were to take the history as it presents itself to us in the past; the losses of the State of Pennsylvania, of the citizenship of the State of Pennsylvania, more especially the citizenship of the great City of Pittsburgh in the famous riot of the '70s, when the City of Pittsburgh was compelled to come down here or at least did come down here and ask for many millions of dollars from the State Treasury for the purpose of recompensing themselves for the losses that were incurred by that great riot. It is the only law that has been placed upon the statute books, I think I can say in the last fifty years, that has attracted the attention of the legislators of every State in this Union. It is the only law that has been placed on the statute books in the last fifty years that has been considered as much and has been as much copied after and that has been copied after by so many States in the Union. It is not surprising to me, nor do I believe is it surprising to you that those who are not in sympathy with our system of orderly government should complain because of one of the most efficient police propositions that has ever been introduced into the State of Pennsylvania. Notwithstanding the fact that in the various boroughs and various cities with the police as provided for by the local authorities, notwithstanding the fact that throughout all the rural districts we have a constabulary elected by the people, it is a fact that over 6,000 requests last year had to be refused by Major Groome, on account of demands made upon him by borough authorities, township authorities and city authorities throughout the State of Pennsylvania.

The Grange organizations of our State and the commercial organizations are asking and demanding the assistance of this arm of our State and why? The answer is given by looking at the history of ten years. When this proposition was first presented to the people of Pennsylvania they, without the knowledge, because being without the experience, feared that it was a waste of the State's money, but today from every quarter of our State the people are asking for the protection that this arm has given them because they have heard what it has done in neighboring communities and it has spread in the ten years until it has reached throughout the length and breadth of the four corners of our State. And let me say to you members of this House that the people of the State of Pennsylvania consider this one of the most economic laws that has ever been placed on the statute books and that the people of Pennsylvania are asking for this increase. This increase does not eminate from Major Groome. This increase eminates from the voice of the people of Pennsylvania. It is because he has been unable to fill one-half of the requests made to him by the people of Pennsylvania.

I do not believe that it is necessary for me to say a word more about this proposition. I do not believe that any man can rise here and show that this has not been a wise move upon the part of the State and that it is not a wise move to add to that force the additional one hundred and sixteen men that this bill asks for, and I believe that the House will support the bill as it is now presented.

Mr. MAURER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Baldwin.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BALDWIN. Certainly, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MAURER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman referred to the number of arrests made by the constabulary in the last ten years. I would like him to tell me of that number arrested how many were convicted.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, the only reason I gave you the number of arrests and did not take the trouble to go into the details of the number of convictions was to convince the House that this Superintendent and his force of men have not been asleep in a beer saloon down in the City of Philadelphia as the gentleman has tried to make the House believe.

Mr. PHILLIPS. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I have been asked by one of the members of the House to relate a little incident that happened since I came to Harrisburg, in regard to the State Police. I want to say that on January—I lost the paper by the way—I think it was on January 20th or 22nd I received a letter from one of my constituents stating that his daughter had been taken away from home and he wanted me to go to the State Police and ask if they could locate her. I immediately took the letter down to the headquarters here in Harrisburg and asked them if they could locate this girl. They immediately got her description and got her picture printed and started on the hunt. This man also said that he had used all his means in trying to find his daughter and that he feared that she had become the victim of white slavery. As I said, I took up this matter with the Department and they secured a description and a picture and they told me each morning just what progress they were making. This man lived in Madeira, a town in Clearfield county and they traced the girl from there to Cambria county and found that she went to the postoffice and refused to lift the mail; and they traced her further on, and on the thirty-first day of January this State Constabulary brought that girl back to her parents to Madeira; and, of course, that gentleman could not get through thanking the Constabualry or me for what had been done for him.

That is one case to show the gentlemen that it is not only the efficiency of the State Police we are after to-night, but the one question I believe before us is the increase of the Constabualry and the increase of the salary. Now, Mr. Speaker, and gentlemen of the House, I had a little occasion last week—we passed a bill through here asking an increase in the number of game wardens of the State and an increase of salary. This bill was taken to the Governor and I had occasion to call on the Governor in regard to this bill and he said that owing to present conditions in the State of Pennsylvania he thought it was wise to refuse any increase of salary along this line or any other line during this term. I think so far as the efficiency of the Constabulary is concerned that nobody can say anythig, but if the Governor is so inclined not to increase salaries I doubt whether it is wise for us to put this increase in number and salary up to the Governor when he has said in the veto of this bill last week that he was opposed to the increase of salaries. I thank you.

Mr. SULLIVAN. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, the very fact that I appear here to-night inadorned with my red vestment is sufficient proof that I did not intend to make a speech, but I could not sit here and see the attempt made to increase this damnable State Constabulary without raising my humble voice in protest against such action. The police authority, as I understand it, is invested in the judicial districts of the county and I do not think, although I am not learned in the law, I do not think that this legislation would be doing a justice to the people of the industrial sections of the Commonwealth, of which I have the honor of representing one of the districts, by passing this bill or increasing this State Constabulary. It was not my intention to rise, only to utter my humble protest against the increase of this constabulary and I would ask the members and my colleagues from Allegheny to vote down this measure.

Mr. WALTERS. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, it has been asserted with a great deal of vehemence that this force of State Police are of no use to the farmers. I am in a position to contradict that statement by the experience of our county which is largely agricultural and not industrial. A detachment of the State Police cleaned up a lawless district of that county very effectively. It reduced crime enormously. It protected property and restored order. Now, that is the record of the State Police in Franklin county. My constituents are in favor of this bill because they realize that a few more are needed. It is idle to talk about the oppression of the people because a body of a few hundred men cannot oppress the people. These State Police are under the authority of the executive officers of the Commonwealth. The Governor of the Commonwealth controls the State Police just as much as he is Commander-in-Chief, ex-officio, of the militia, and it seems to me that this body of men which has acquitted itself so well, so often under trying circumstances, ought to be supported by the members of this House.

The increases of salary are modest. Any man that can create and maintain and discipline a body of men such as Major Groome has made of these State Police is mighty cheap to the State of Pennsylvania at four thousand dollars a year.

Now, Mr. Speaker, any one who happened to visit the encampment at Gettysburg saw the usefulness of this excellent body of men. They were the admiration of all the veterans of the North and South in the courteous and kindly and efficient way in which they maintained order and handled that enormous crowd. They controlled at one time—there were between twenty-five hundred and three thousand automobiles at night and they passed them to their positions and they saw that they got out without a single accident. They conducted themselves admirable and they bring credit to the State and to all wherever they happen to appear. They are not a menace to any law-abiding citizens of the Commonwealth and I trust, Mr. Speaker, that this House will go on record as favoring this increase.

Mr. CHARLES A. SHAFFER. Mr. Speaker, I think that most everything has been already said by the gentleman for and against this bill but I wish to be true by telling you that I stand for this bill and the reason for it. I have been in position for the last six years to ask for the State Police from this State for certain quarters. They have come and they have given to this State, to our country section where we called them, the most valiant service and never had any trouble. About eight years ago in my own city, where a riot, more or less, had occurred, we were asked by the sheriff of the county which I represent, for assistance. The State Police sent there the number required for the place and in less than two weeks the riot which was then looked upon to be very serious for the time, had ceased. I can tell you that the constituency which I represent in this part of my district are unanimously for the State Police. One hundred and sixteen men additional are asked for. Consider this when you take it from their statistics that they are unable to meet the request, because of the lack of men, from all who ask for them; and I do not wish to go further than this, more than to say this, gentlemen: When the State Board of Agriculture of Pennsylvania and the State Horticultural Society and the Agricultural Societies of the whole State, as far as I know, are for this bill, if you give them one hundred and sixteen men almost every county in this State can be given a permanent force in their district of from at least three to five men. It is a meritorious bill. We stand for law and order. The gentleman from Clearfield has given you a statement to-night and I tell you I think that they have done service in this State which is a credit to their body and we should support this bill.

Mr. RONEY. Mr. Speaker, I did not intend to discuss the merits of this bill because in 1911 I voiced my ideas and thoughts about the merits of this whole institution known as the State Constabulary. At that time I said that I thought this whole institution violated the very fundamental principles of our Constitution. As I understand, Mr Speaker, the Constitution of 1874, the Supreme police authority of this Commonwealth was vested in the various counties. As I understand the principle of the constitution of 1874 involved and it was established by a decision of a Judge from the county from which the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Baldwin, comes, if a police officer of Philadelphia without a warrant from Delaware county court or Justice went into Delaware county and arrested a man, he could be convicted for assault and battery. And why, because the Constitution says that the various judicial districts of this Commonwealth within themselves are supreme, but it seems that the State Constabulary is higher than the Constitution.

I have no particular grievance against the State Constabulary I am perfectly willing that the Governor of this Commonwealth shall have at his beck and call a great body of police that can preserve peace and order for his personal needs, but I do protest and I do decry that in this democratic form of government, there shall be any kind of kings troopers, that shall go from place to place without anybody being asked the reason why. I think the State Constabulary is a relic of medieval days. They speak of the State Constabulary preserving law and order in argicultural communities. I have never known the farmer yet who did not go to bed with his doors barred, and his shotgun over the fire place, and he feared no man on earth, and the State Constabulary does not help him.

The gentleman from Delaware laughed, but he has surely been always in peace and order, because from the time that Noah's Ark came on land, he has been coming to this Legislature and no burglar or thief or evil doer has ever stopped him.

To me the idea of the State Constabulary is repulsive. I do not condone any physical violence against the peaceful citizen I think every man has the right, under the Bill of Rights, and our Constitution, to be absolutely secure in his person and in the possession of his property, and when my friend says that the State Police are copied after the various police of the Nations of Europe, he knows not whereof he speaks. The State Constabulary is copied after the Royal Constabulary of Ireland, a subjugated and a subjected nation, and Major Groome no more went to Switzerland than I have gone to Mars.

Now, gentlemen, the whole question is simple. There is no need for protracted discussion. The question is whether, in times of peace,—the Constitution of 1874 notwithstanding,—there shall be in this peaceful Commonwealth of Pennsylvania a body of police, subject to whom? Subject to the Governor, subject to the Governor's rule and the Governor's domination, and subject to their own conceit Why should they, without rhyme or reason, ride from my county to your county and displace all law and order. The State Police, I have heard it said, went into Westmoreland county and locked up and arrested and put in jail the deputy sheriffs appointed by the lawfully elected sheriff of Westmoreland county. Why? Because they have within their breasts the idea that they are subject to no law except their officers their Irish helmets and their Irish uniforms, and I want to tell you that they shall not prevail in Pennsylvania.

I would have no fear to-night to be transported to the very wilds of Centre county and if I should walk along the roads of Centre county, under the stars that shine to-night, I should feel that over me should be the protection of the great seal of Pennsylvania and of our great judicial system, and I would not want Captain Groome, or Captain Lumb, nor any of his lieutenants or constabulary to walk behid my back, because I believe that Pennsylvania is a democratic State, a State of peace, a State of law and order, and I want nobody of mounted men, with their Irish helmets and their great big colts to stand behind my back, because you, the Legislators of Pennsylvania, acting under the Constitution, give to me and to all men, the protection of law, a law as it should exist, not in monarchical Europe, but in democratic Pennsylvania.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Roney, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. RONEY. Mr. Speaker, I am perfectly willing to be interrogated now.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I would like the gentleman to tell the House how many policemen there are in Philadelphia.

Mr. RONEY. Mr. Speaker, there are about twenty-one hundred, I think, and I should know very well, because my father is one.

Mr. BALDWIN. Is it not a fact that the State Constabulary had to go in and assist, under conditions that arose there?

Mr. RONEY. Mr. Speaker, that goes to show the force of mental telepathy I almost wished, I hoped, oh, it just rushed out of my brain, that my friend would ask that question. Mr. Speaker, I think it was in January, of 1910, there was a street car strike in Philadelphia. I think it had run about five or six weeks, and was absolutely under control, when the State Police were called in. I remember riding to a funeral and I saw some eight or ten State Police, fine, prim, handsome gentlemen, sitting on their horses as I rode to the cemetery, and I wondered what they were doing there, and I one time asked the Assistant Superintendent of Police why they called them in, "because," I said to him,—for I live there and I know,—why they called them in when the strike was over. I asked him—and you can ask the gentleman from the Nineteenth ward, he knows as well as I do,—I asked him didn't they think it was a disgrace to call into the great City of Brotherly Love the unconstitutional body of medieval cuirassiers. I asked him didn't they think it was a disgrace, when the strike was over, to bring them in and have them standing like so many beautiful equestrian statues, standing on the various corners of Kensington, and he said: "Well, yes, the strike was over, but we thought it a good thing to call them in for the effect they would have." And, Mr. Speaker, I think they did have a good effect. I think there were more students in the Museum of Art after they came, because they all looked so handsome sitting on their fine horses.

But, Mr. Speaker, I know that in my city, where I live, that whilst there was disorder for several weeks, the people soon got their minds, they soon came back to the idea that in Pennsylvania disorder cannot prevail. They came to the idea that law and order must always obtain. The State Police,—and I defy contradiction,—the State Police in Philadelphia did not make one arrest. Why were they brought into disgrace my city's police force and to do no material good?

Mr. Speaker, I say that the whole idea of the State Police is wrong. In communities where there is any disorder, there should,—and I hope my new Constitution shall provide the means in communities where there are any disorders, the county commissioners shall be imposed with an obligation of preserving law and order; but the State Police have no place in my Commonwealth, where we have above our seal Peace, Love and Liberty, and I hope that this House shall not take down in its throat the idea that in Pennsylvania the gunman runs rampant or that the burglar plys his trade without restraint, or that the lawless man is able to do as he pleases.

Now, Mr Speaker, the Constitution of 1874 and the laws that the Legislatures from that time down have passed, have given to me and mine an absolute feeling of security that in this Commonwealth law and order shall prevail and that the Constabulary, modeled after the Irish Constabulary has no place here. I ask, Mr. Speaker, with these remarks, that I know to be,—every statement I have made,—the truth, I hope the House will vote down this bill.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I am surprised at the lack of knowledge on the part of the gentleman from Philadelphia, of the conditions existing in the rural districts of the northern tier of Pennsylvania The farmers do not lock their doors at night, nor do they have the loaded shotgun over the mantel, and they need no further protection from the State Constabulary.

Mr. FLYNN. Mr. Speaker, I agree most heartily with the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr, Roney, in regard to the State Constabulary. I represent a district that I am proud to say needs no assistance from the State Constabulary to maintain law and order. I am sorry, sir, that my knowledge of the district represented by the gentleman from Tioga, who has just spoken, leads me to believe that they may need them I have heard reports from there which leads me to believe that lawlessness prevails. Be that as it may, I say to you that this State Constabulray is unamerican. I believe in home rule. I believe that every county should take care of its own conditions, both in regard to the maintenance of law and order and other affairs, and I, for one, believe that the State Constabulary of Pennsylvania is unnecessary.

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, the question before the House is not the abolition of the State Constabulary. It is simply a bill providing for its increase. As I intend to vote "no" on this bill, I desire to make it plain that such a vote does not mean necessarily that the State Constabulary should be abolished, as the only question is at present in this bill, shall it be increased? There has not been one word set forth as to the need for any more constabulary police or one instance cited that there was even an occasion requiring any more to be called for that purpose. Therefore, the question resolves itself into the fact that there seems to be plenty and the only question is whether there should be any more, but that is not involved.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from McKean, Mr. Habgood, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, yes sir.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I simply would like to correct the gentleman about saying that we have enough. It has been stated that in the last year there were six thousand requests for State Police that we were unable to comply with.

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, if there were six thousand requests that they were unable to comply with, this number and this bill providing an additional number is so totally inadequate that it would be inadequate to pass this bill. I don't believe that the question resolves iself down to the point for any more and don't believe that the question requires a yea vote.

Mr. CROMER. Mr. Speaker, as you know I have stated repeatedly on the floor of the House that I am opposed to the creation of new positions and the increase of salaries and I have made up my mind by the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia and I will state that his remarks have won me over and I will say that this is not the first time that I have been won over by the gentleman from Philadelphia, and I think that the great City of Philadelphia should be proud of a man like Charley Roney.

Mr. SARIG. Mr. Speaker, I don't wish to take up much time in discussing this question as I think we are all tired of the discussion, but there is just one point that came to my mind as I listened to the various speakers. The one great argument that has been advanced in favor of the State Police is that they are efficient, but, Gentlemen, do you know that every tyrant is considered efficient. You take any tyrant, any judge or any other tyrant in whatever position and he is always considered efficient. (Laughter after). Now, the question is, as I see it, whether we are ready in this year of 1915 to surrender our system of civil government as it has been established here by the forefathers and substitute for it militiarism in this great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We all know that our forefathers came across the ocean for two reasons, mainly: One was religious freedom, the other was to get away from the military tyrants and militarism of the continents of Europe. Go from Maine all the way to South Carolina, and you will find the same thing. Now, after having lived here, after having won the Revolution and having won their independence and having met in Philadelphia where they established your civil government, let us get away from militarism and the military idea of the European government. They wanted to get away from the oppression which they had been accustomed to on the other side of the water and they came here and they established a civil government and the question is whether we shall continue to live and defend these civil institutions that they have established here or whether we shall fall back into the old rut of several hundred years ago and say here in Pennsylvania that there shall be a military government. I say that this State Constabulary is our military government all the year around. It is a work that is going across on the other side of the ocean. It is un-american in principle; it is un-american in every instant and I say to you let us stand for the civil government which our forefathers have here established and let us vote down this attempt here to establish in Pennsylvania the militarism which our forefathers tried to escape when they came across the water.

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, inasmuch as the discussion on this bill has resolved itself into a kind of old fashioned Methodist Revival, I want to say, Sir, that I want to lay my sins upon the altar and I hope every member of this House will follow me in my forward march in defeating this bill.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I try to avoid making misstatements before the House but in spite of all I will make a misstatement unintentionally. I stated a little while ago that the number of requests that we were not able to comply with numbered six thousand. In that I was mistaken. They were able to comply with only one-fourth of the number of requests that were made upon them. Now, Mr. Speaker, I am surprised to find men here losing their heads on this subject and getting so far away from the question. We are all disposed to magnify and distort the carrying thought with as much force as possible with that which we have in our mind. Everybody knows that there is no great military power going to be thrust down upon the citizenship of Pennsylvania. I think every member of this House knows very well that it has been indeed very rare when this force, as a body, have been called out in the last ten years. I don't know of a single instance where the whole body of two hundred men have been called out to suppress any disorder. The truth of the matter is, as you well know, that a great many sections of our State cannot afford and don't have what great cities have. They have no expert detective force to run down criminals. While the great cities can afford to have a great police force; they can also afford and do have a great detective force to follow beyond the borders of their own city criminals that have come in and done some wrong, violated some criminal law and fled the neighborhood. We know that our rural communities don't have that to a very large extent. The consequence is that when an offense is committed in a borough or tonwhsip that we don't have this efficient detective force that we have in a large city. It is that clsas of work almost alone that calls for this Department and that my friends have gotten excited over and have imagined that they have seen an army marching across the great State of Pennsylvania. I tell you a few months ago one corporal and two ragged privates in the political imagination of some man down at Washington was going to invade the State of Delaware. One soldier if they choose to call them soldiers for one community, is what it means if you pass this proposition as it is presented, will be provided for each twenty-five thousand of the citizenship of the great State of Pennsylvania. My friend from Philadelphia has become so excited over the subject that he believes that there is an army coming down over the State of Pennsylvania. They have pictured Europe in all her history of blood to convince you of that Don't get alarmed. Just get down on to hard ground and it simply means that here is a Department that but few say should be taken off or out of one of the functions of our State government. Why, my friend from Philadelphia became so alarmed that he thought the constitution was going to be destroyed and really I imagined the flames coming up and the old constitution going with it You know what this police force consists of. It consists of some citizens whom we call a constable and but few men can be impressed with the necessity of the office and they are persuaded to accept the election if they get it. In any part of our State and all through our State you know occasionally of offenses going on all the time as evidenced by the Department that knows what it is talking about and speaking from experience that it is only able to comply wtih one-fourth of the requests made by the citizenship in Pennsylvania. It is not a military proposition at all. I don't suppose that Major Groome cares one whit whether you add to his force 116 men or not. I as a citizen of Delaware county and I as a representative in part of my county am trying to persuade you and convince you as it cannot be denied by any man that the public does demand some additional detective force for the eight millions of people in the State of Pennsylvania. Gentlemen on the floor of this House that come from the great City of Pittsburgh or the great City of Philadelphia, why deny the rural part of this State the right to this detective force? When you analyze it it is so arranged in the law that created it that it can be used for other purposes when conditions arise and they do arise that it can go over in bodies of ten, fifty, one hundred, two hundred or three hundred if it may be that this bill shall pass, to aid in the restoring of order in rural communities. I dont believe that I can read the minds of men; I don't know whether I can read the minds of men, but I hope I can but I cannot see why you should lose yourself on this proposition. It is a force that two years out of three is never required at all to quell a riot or even an occasion that rises to the dignity of a local disturbance. I can tell you that I am sure that Major Groome dont care so far as he is concerned. He has given you the evidence and it is up to you to say what to do and it is not military despotism and every man in this House knows it is not; every sane man in this House knows, at least in a general way, that just what I tell you is a fact, and I do not think, yes I hope, you will not jar my confidence by not supporting this bill, because there is no evidence that it is not needed, but there is positive evidence that it is needed. And it is needed more as a detective force to ferret out dangerous criminals that flee the jurisdiction of community where a police force does not exist and you know it and I know it. Now it is up to you. I have no personal interest in the bill in the world; just vote according to your own judgment, but for gracious sake I want to get you back on the whole of it so that you will know what has really been said. We are not going to have military despotism. I do not believe there is one of you believe that the State of Pennsylvania desires to copy after monarchial Europe in perpetrating on the State of Pennsylvania militarism. The tendency of the world is to get away from it. The struggle and the slaughter that is now going on in Europe will, I hope, solve the problem of militarism. And now that the truth is laid before you, that there is a demand that has only been complied with to the extent of one out of four, for a detective shrewd and experienced. The great State of Pennsylvania ought to concede to this cry that comes up from among the people. Now if you do not agree with me vote against the bill, but I know that I am right in it, and I am satisfied that you are mistaken that it is a question of militarism in the State of Pennsylvania. It is needed; we all know it. Vote for it because the people ask for it, and not because Major Groome asks for it or because I ask for it.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

To vote a straight party ticket mark a cross-mark in the square opposite the name of the party of your choice in the first column A cross-mark in the square opposite the name of any candidate indicates a vote for that candidate" shall be and the same is hereby further amended to read as follows

Section 14 When Presidential electors are to be voted for the names of candidates for Presidential electors shall be arranged in party groups as presented in the several certificates of party nomination and nomination papers and the groups shall be printed upon the ballot in the order of the vote obtained in the State at the last General election by the parties nominating beginning with the party which obtained the highest vote Provided That in the case of political parties not represented on the ballot in the last general election in the order of arrangement shall be alphabetically

At the head of each group of candidates shall be printed the appropriate party name or political appellation together with the surnames of the candidates of such party for President and Vice-President underneath which shall be printed the names of the appropriate candidates for Presidential electors

At the right of the space containing the surnames of the candidates for President and Vice-President and their party name or political appellation there shall be a square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark (X) and at the right of the name of each candidate for Presidential elector there shall be a similar but smallar square

The names of candidates for all other offices shall in all cases be arranged under the title of the office for which they are candidates and be printed in the order of the votes obtained for the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating at the last General election beginning with the party obtaining the highest vote Provided That in the right of the name of each nominee or candidate shall be printed the name or appellation of the political party presenting or nominating him and at the right of such party name or political appellation there shall be a square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark

Whenever any candidate shall receive more than one nomination for the same office his name shall be printed once and the names of each political party so nominating him shall be printed to the right of the name of such candidate arranged in the same order as candidates names are grouped that is to say in the order of the votes obtained by such party at the last preceding general election beginning with the party obtaining the highest vote If such candidate shall be nominated by any party not represented on the ballot in the last preceding general election the name of such parties shall follow the other names and be arranged alphabetically according to the party name or appellation At the right of every party name or political appellation shall be a square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark

There shall be left at the end of the groups of candidates for Presidential electors and of the list of candidates for each different office (or under the title of the office itself for which an election is to be held in case there be no candidates legally nominated therefor) as many blank spaces as there are persons to be voted for for such office in which space the voter may insert the name of any person whose name is not printed on the ballot as a candidate for such office and such insertion shall count as a vote without the cross-mark as hereinafter mentioned

Whenever the approval of a constitutional amendment or other question is submitted to the vote of the people such question shall be printed upon the ballot in brief form and followed by the words "yes" and "no" and if such question be submitted at an election of public officers it shall be printed after the list of candidates

The ballots shall be so printed as to give to each voter a clear opportunity to designate his choice of candidates by a cross-mark (X) in a square of sufficient size at the right of the name of each candidate and inside the line enclosing the column and in like manner answers to questions submitted by similar marks in squares at the right of the words "yes" and "no" And on the ballot may be printed instructions how to mark and such words as will aid the voter to do this as "mark one" "mark two" and the like

Provided that a voter may designate his choice of an entire group of candidates for Presidential electors by one cross-mark (X) in a large square which shall be placed at the right of the names of the candidates for President and Vice-President at the head of such group and such mark shall be equivalent to a mark against every name in the group

Provided further That each voter may have the opportunity of designating his choice for all the candidates as nominated by one political party there shall be printed on the extreme left of the ballot and separated from the rest of the ballot by a space of at least one-half inch a list of the names of all the political parties or groups of nominees represented on such ballot and presenting candidates to be voted for at such election Such names shall be arranged in the order of the votes obtained at the last preceding general election by the candidate at the head of the respective tickets of the parties or bodies nominating beginning with the party that received the highest vote cast Following the names of such political parties shall be the names of the parties or principles not presented on the ballot at the last preceding general election arranged alphabetically according to the party name or political appellation A square of sufficient size for the convenient insertion of a cross-mark (X) shall be placed at the right of each party name or appellation Every mark within such square shall be equivalent to a mark against every name designated by that political appellation or party name including candidates nominated by more than one party or group of citizens

At the head of every ballot shall be printed the following instructions

To vote a straight party ticket mark a cross (X) in the square opposite the name of the party of your choice in the first column A cross-mark in the square opposite the name of any candidate indicates a vote for that candidate

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Agriculture.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, if the gentleman had referred this bill to Health and Sanitation I might possibly have considered the matter, but when it goes to Agriculture I cannot see why and for what purpose, because this is a bill pertaining to the fixing of the status of the different political parties as to their place on the ballot, and transferring that position by reason of the vote at the last general election instead of the last Presidential election, and it is merely a matter of a few words changed in the original bill, and I think this bill has been considered for the past two months both on the calendar and in committee, and that most of the Senators are familiar enough with it now to vote upon it intelligently.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was not agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading

It was agreed to.

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Ordered, That the Clerk return said bill to the House of Representatives with information that the Senate has passed the same without amendments.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 671 (House Bill No. 870), entitled:

An Act to amend an act approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and eleven entitled "An Act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith"

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SEMMENS. Mr. President, I ask if there is any Senator present that can explain the provisions of this bill.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, this bill provides for a penalty in the event of refusal of parents and guardians to answer questions in the enrollment of school children. It is a very good bill. The School Code now provides for the enrollment of school children but provides no penalty if parents or guardians refuse to answer the questions. This bill provides for a penalty of five dollars fine, and in default of payment of the same an imprisonment of five days for failure to answer these questions.

Mr. PATTON. Mr. President, I think we ought to go very slow in passing bills like this, adding more penalties to people. There is enough trouble now. If you go into the magistrates' courts of Philadelphia you see poor women being sent down simply because they cannot raise four dollars to pay a fine. I think it is getting worse and more of it. I think we ought to be very careful about passing this kind of a bill.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, we all know that in the enumeration of census if there would be no penalty the census enumerators could not get answers to the questions required in obtaining the cenus every ten years, and this is a similar provisio in the enrollment of school children to get their age, whether they are employed, etc. There is much trouble to get the required answers and the penalty is very light, five dollars fine or five days imprisonment, and it is simply an act to make effective the enrollment of school children.

Mr. PATTON. Mr. President, there are a great many poor people in this world to whom five dollars is a whole lot. The gentleman says that it is a light penalty, but I tell you that it is a pretty serious penalty to a great many people. Many people when the census enumerator, or a man running around nosing into people's business come to these people and try to get answers from them, they do not know—a lot of them are foreigners and do not understand. They do not want to give information. They are afraid, and the result is that they are hauled up before a magistrate and fined five dollars and costs, and they go to jail, many of them, simply because they do not have the money. These are very serious bills, and I do not think they should pass. The gentleman from Lehigh may find it very easy to pay five dollars fine if he does not answer the questions, but I guarantee there is many a poor devil in his county who cannot pay it, and would have to go to jail. I personally am going to vote against the bill.

Mr. GYGER. Mr. President, if the questions are properly answered there is no danger of any fine, and it is the duty of every parent and guardian to answer the questions that are asked them in regard to sending their children to school. I think this is a good bill and should pass. The fine is simply nominal, if there is no fine whatever it is hard to get them to answer the questions.

Mr. TOMPKINS. Mr. President, I want to add that this bill has the sanction of the school authorities of the State in helping the officers to do their work. It is a good bill and I think it ought to pass.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, I would like to know in what sections of the State conditions have arisen that have brought about the introduction of this bill, if it is possible for any of the Senators to answer. In the city we represent, Philadelphia, we have a probation officer. We get in touch with every home that has a child attending the public school. There has been no complaint from the Board of Education appointed by the Court, and everything so far as our school district is concerned is running along without a complaint or remonstrance. As to the census enumeration, true there is a penalty attached to it, but in the selection of the enumerators for the census, the multitude of appointments, is practically taken from the neighborhood or territory in which these different people reside who are familiar with the people in that locality. This business of penalizing and placing restructions by imprisonment has reached, I think, its extreme limit, and the burden upon the parent who is desirous to see his children receive all the education possible. Personally, I do not think it should be for some indescretion not intentional hauled into the magistrate's court and subjected to the humiliation and disgrace, and fined for offenses of this character. It is too trivial a matter in my estimation and the question of attendance of children in school, the problem we are all solving to-day in every section of the State is how to provide the money to erect sufficient schools to house all the children that have no provisions made for them, and I trust the Senate will not at this time pass this bill.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

EXPLANATION OF VOTE.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, I just want to explain why I vote "aye." I am in full sympathy with what the Senator from Philadelphia has said—that we want as few restrictions upon the people as we can possibly have. It bears down upon them, up in our country districts where we appoint a truant officer, and I want to say to the Senators that in a few instances—just a few—that truant officer is prevented from doing his duty, and possibly this law will relieve him of trouble that he meets in trying to enforce the common school law.

BILL ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 693, entitled:

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 714, as follows:

An Act to regulate the sale furnishing giving away and administration in certain cases of proprietary or patent medicines or any substance or preparation containing opium morphine heroin codeine or any salts derivatives or compounds thereof and providing penalties

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That it shall be unlawful for any person co-partnership association or corporation to sell furnish give away or administer any patent or proprietary medicine or other substance or preparation which contains opium or morphine or heroin or codeine or any of their salts or derivatives or compounds and which is advertised or recommended or intended as a remedy for administration to infants under three years of age

Provided That nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent the prescribing or administering of narcotics by physicians in the practice of their profession

Section 2 Any person co-partnership association or corporation violating any of the provisions of section one of this act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine of not more than five hundred dollars or such person or the members of such co-partnership or association or the officers or directors of such corporation shall undergo an imprisonment of not more than two years or both

Section 3 This act shall take effect on the first day of January one thousand nine hundred sixteen

Section 4 All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. P. W. SNYDER. Mr. President, this bill is intended to protect the babies of the State from those soothing syrups and baby drops which contain opium or its derivatives, such as codeine, morphine, etc. It supplements the Federal Law, known as the Harrison act, the greatest piece of legislation for the suppression of the use of habit forming drugs ever placed on the statute books of this or any other country. Now the Harrison act permits a small amount of opium, codeine, morphine, etc. to the fluid ounce because they are highly beneficial in certain medicines and while the quantity of the narcotic to make habitues of adults, it is sufficient to stupify and injure babies and infants. The effect of these narcotics is to dilate the capillaries of the brain and continued use thickens the walls of these blood vessels thus stunting intellectual development. They also have a decided tendency to dwarf moral characteristics and have often been held responsible for poor physical development. The advertisements of these opium-laden soothing syrups are false and misleading. They claim to cure colic and other infant diseases while the truth is they only stupify the little babe, causing enforced sleep until the attack passes or proper remedies are applied.

This bill is endorsed by all reputable druggists, the State Pharmaceutical Association and the Philadelphia Association of Retail Druggists also endored it on April 9th. It is also endorsed by many well meaning but misguided parents who have realized only too late that their infant children were being injured. This bill is opposed by manufacturers of those harmful preparations who for financial gain are utterly indifferent to the baneful results of their helpless victims.

I cannot more clearly illustrate the strength of the simplest of these baby drugs than by calling the attention of this Senate to a comparison between the mildest of them and paregoric. Everybody knows what paregoric is. Now let me tell you how the mildest of these baby drops compares with paregoric in opium or morphine. Gentlemen of the Senate, these are intended for babies three days old, little, helpless infants, three days old. The directions tell the parents to give these drops to little babies like that. Now to bring it to your minds I want to read to you from careful calculations a comparison between the mildest of these and paregoric. In paregoric a baby one week old get one-six-hundredths of a grain of morphia. In the weakest of these syrups they get one-four hundredths of a grain or fifty per cent. more than paregoric contains. A baby six months old taking paregoric according to directions the baby gets one three hundredths of a grain, and in the mildest of these baby syrups a little baby gets one-sixty-fourth of a grain, four and one-half times as much, five hundred per cent. more. I want to say right here that these baby drops are given from the beginning, not only babies of three days and one week and one month, but I have known cases where they are given to babies over one year old. In taking paregoric according to directions, a baby get one-two hundred and fortieth of a grain, and in the mildest of these syrups a baby gets one-thirtieth of a grain, eight times as much, eight hundred per cent. stronger. I have in this package one preparation which contains one-third more morphia than the one I have referred to. I also have in this package a baby syrup that contains three grains of opium to the ounce. It is outlawed by the Harrison act, but they revised their formula and bring it down to three grains. Thus you will see some manufacturers are indifferent to the results of their medicines so that the baby syrup which they have made for these little infants was so strong that it even come under the effects of the Harrison act. Some have said that perhaps this would prevent the sale in stores of baby medicines for colic, diarrhoea, and so on. I reply that it will not, all of these —and these are only a few,—can be sold in every store. They do not contain opium or any derivative of opium. Four of these which I hold in my hand did at one time contain opium or derivatives of opium. They do not contain it now because two or three years ago there was propaganda waged in this country, and the manufacturers of four of the preparations took opium and morphia out of their preparations and they are now harmless as far as those narcotics are concerned. These are only a few of the remedies sold in stores and I mention this so you will not fear that the same remedies are still on sale, and I will say when they took morphia out they put in all those ingredients which were helpful for the diseases and ailments. It is said and was said that these baby syrups still are the same old formulae as they always were. It is not true. I know that one of these remedies has a death registered against it. I know another has four deaths registered against it, and another has one death registered against it. So strong were they before the people were aroused, before they changed their formulae, but they still contain too much of these narcotics. Anything that is given to an infant three days old should not contain any morphia, or opium of any kind. It is said that the passing of this bill will put some people out of business. I reply that it will not, because all of these were at one time made with narcotics. Now they are taken out and the sale goes on. These people all manufacture other things and if they will make their baby drops pure, the law is they can still sell them on the same level, one will not have an advantage over the other.

Another thing, Mr. President, this bill does not go into effect until January first, next, giving the manufacturers of these preparations ample time to change their labels and their formulae and no one will be at any loss on that account. I trust the Senate will pass this bill. I submit to you, gentlemen, that it is of great importance. No one can tell but what the use of these drugs, long continued, make young boys and young men long for some stimulant or narcotic, and I trust that you will vote aye on the passage of this bill.

Mr. McNICHOL. Mr. President, I think we should consider seriously before we vote to place this bill upon the statute books. The Senator from Blair has referred to the Harrison bill passed in the United States Congress. The Harrison bill was passed for the benefit of what they term the "dope fiend" and in practice is a hardship upon every person who from necessity desires to have a prescription for different ailments containing any of those ingredients. It compels them to get on every occasion a prescription from a doctor, which incurs an additional expense of two or three dollars whatever the doctor's fee might be. Now as to these particular formulas referred to by the Senator, why should we stamp it specifically because we have not heard from our State Board of Physicians. It is merely a matter of what they call the drugs. Why should we particularize in any particular patent medicine, because in the rearing of children every man in this chamber knows that every person in the Commonwealth who is blessed with offspring are the most competent people to know what is the best thing for their child, because after all a large percentage, ninety-nine per cent of the parents, call in a proper and competent physician who properly prescribes for them, and if that prescription should contain some of the elements included in the objectionable features of this bill you would be able by reason of the provisions of this act to get it at the drug store. I think there is too much encumbrance placed upon the general public by such legislation as this, and it all tends to increase the necessary cost of living amongst the poorer class of people and that it one of the things that we should absolutely undertake to remedy for the next two or three years at least. I trust that this bill, if the Senator will consent, will go over until we have a more full realization of just what is contained in the provisions of it. I am frank to confess that outside of the statement made by the Senator that the provisions of this bill are not familiar to my mind.

Mr. WASBERS. Mr. President, I am not a physician, but is does occur to me, Mr. President, owing to the fact that the Harrison act has just been passed and went into effect on March first, and no doubt this phase of the act has been thoroughly discussed, and I think it would be wise at this time to let the law alone.

Mr. P. W. SNYDER. Mr. President, I will say that the babies and the ignorant mothers of the state do not have a fair chance. So insidious is the effect of these narcotized drugs that they steal on the victim like a thief in the night. They begin to give and they must continue to give. The little infant becomes an habitue. It cries for the baby drops and will not be satisfied and cannot sleep until it gets it. They start with three drops and some of them take as much as two teaspoonfuls. It does not increase the high cost of living because I know that these are very expensive when the babies become habitues. I want to read to you to show you how these baby drops get into the family. They send out agents, I know in one instance of a fatherly old man and in another of a motherly old lady who came through our section of the State and took the baby in their arms and said, "Does it cry?" and then said, "I have something here that I will give you for it. Try it." When they once try it, that settles it. Here is one of their advertisements: "This remedy has been sold strictly on its own merits as nine-tenths of the advertising done in its interest has been by the distribution of free sample bottles. It has been the aim of the proprietor of this remedy to give every mother of an infant an opportunity to try it free of charge." But if the mother knew what she was giving to her baby she would have thrown the free sample in the street. I have in my desk numerous letters from physicians and mothers. I will be glad to show any member of this Senate this correspondence, come and look at it. Take my word for it, and vote aye on this bill.

PRAYER.

The Chaplain, Rev. F. W. Staley, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, we thank Thee that Thou art our Father, and that we are Thy sons, having been born in Thy kingdom. We thank Thee that it is written "Behold what manner of love the Father hast bestowed upon us that we should be called the children of God. Beloved now are we, the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as he is. We thank Thee that we are not only sons, but heirs; heirs of God, joint heirs with Christ; heirs of an inheritance of the past, of the great thought of the past, of the teachings and of the rich harvest reaped in the field of christian activities. We are heirs of an inheritance that remains incorruptible and undefiled and that fadeth not away and that includes thrones and principalities and powers in that city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God.

Help us to walk as worthy sons of Thine, we ask for Christ's sake. Amen.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday's proceedings.

Whereupon,

The SPEAKER in the presence of the House signed the same.

BILL ON THIRD READING (SPECIAL ORDER).

The SPEAKER. The special order for eleven o'clock is House Bill No. 283.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 283, entitled:

An Act to further regulate the granting of licenses for the sale of vinous spirituous malt or brewed liquors or any admixture thereof by permitting the electors of any county in this Commonwealth to determine by any election whether the granting of licenses of such sale therein shall be prohibited

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall be bill pass finally?

Mr. WAGNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire at this time to offer a motion.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the motion for information.

The motion was then read by the Clerk as follows:

In view of the general desire of members to speak on this measure, moved that no person shall speak over twelve minutes and that all arguments on both sides be concluded in two and one-half hours.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

The SPEAKER declared the yeas had it.

Whereupon, a division was asked for, 111 gentleman voting in the affirmative.

The motion was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker.

The SPEAKER. The gentlemen from Tioga, Mr. Williams.

The Chair desires to state that he trusts that all conversation ceases and that we have perfect order during the speeches for and against the bill.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, the people who are in favor of the enactment of a Local Option Law in Pennsylvania are neither fantics nor cranks on the subject of temperance. On the contrary they are among our most loyal and patriotic citizens, some of them in favor of and others opposed to licensing the sale of intoxicating liquors, but all in favor of determining the question with their ballots rather than with their names to petitions and remonstrances. I am not here to say whether a man should or should not drink intoxicating liquors, that being a question for every man to determine for himself, but I am here to say that I believe that the majority sentiment of the people on this question as well as on all other questions affecting their welfare, should prevail.

For many years previous to the year 1887, Pennsylvania was under a liquor license system which had outlived its effectiveness and public sentiment then gave us what is known as the Brooks High License law. Another period in the time of history has been reached when there is a feeling among the people that the Brooks law, in certain ways, is unsatisfactory, and a change in its operation is accordingly demanded, and in response to this sentiment the bill now under consideration has been introduced. I ask the indulgence of the members for a brief reference to the Brooks law and this suggested amendment. You will be told by those who oppose the bill under consideration that the Brooks law is the best liquor license law enjoyed by any of our sister States. Admitting that it has some good features we are saving them for use in counties which may under this proposed law vote against prohibiting the sale of liquor, giving the Courts in such instances the same discretionary power they enjoy under the existing law.

That the unrestricted sale of liquor would have a demoralizing influence on the community where sold is admitted by its terms by those who drafted the Brooks law, and in order to safeguard these communities as against this legalized traffic which results in lowering rather than in elevating the character of those addicted to the use of liquor, certain restrictions were placed in this law such as prohibiting sales on Sunday, and to men of known intemperate habits, and to men visibly intoxicated, to minors and on election day. Is there a member of this House who would dare to introduce a bill to remove these restrictions? Certainly not. Then we are all agreed that the liquor traffic which we legalize is a recognized evil, and the only difference between the friends and opponents of this measure is how best this traffic when the sentiment demands it can be prohibited in their respective communities.

The Brooks law has many times legally forced upon a community the sale of liquor when the majority sentiment of the people in the unit has been against the license. Under this law twelve reputable qualified electors living in a license unit certifying that the facts set forth in the applicants petition among them being that of necessity, are true, has in many instances justified our license judges, from their interpretation of the law, in granting a license when a majority of the electors in the unit district have remonstrated against the same, which is nothing less than legalized minority rule, and in this particular I believe the Brooks law to be radically wrong, that it has outlived its usefulness, is a misfit and out of place for the government of the intelliglent people of Pennsylvania.

No law on our statute books subject to as many different judicial interpretations and opinions as the Brooks law. It must be embarrassing to the license judges to attempt as many of them have done to make this law fit local sentiment on the liquor license question. My criticism is not of the judges but of the law. A law of so much interpreting elasticity to me seems out of date and it is one of the strong reasons for this contemplated change. Many times judges are compelled in the performance of their duties to sentence men for crimes committed when under the influence of liquor purchased by and under the authority given by them to a licensee, and in all fairness they should be releived to the greatest possible degree of this responsibility. To be compelled to act in this dual capacity of both trial and license judge is wrong and many times results not only in lowering the dignity of but a loss of proper respect for the Court.

The bill under consideration embodies recall and referendum features .Under certain conditions as set forth in the bill the people can recall from the judges part of the authority given them under the Brooks law. It is intended to give the voters of each county the right by a majority vote to say that no liquor license shall be granted for a period of three years. It is simple and direct in its operation. What fairer proposition could be made for determining this question? The supreme thought in this measure is the same as in the bill introduced by the gentleman from Blair, and so strongly advocated by him of transferring from the city council in third class cities to the people the right to say with their votes who is to serve them as city treasurer. If the principle involved in that measure the right of self government and home rule caused the members of this House to pass it, how can those who voted for it consistently vote against this bill.

The enactment of this measure does not insure a single county unit voting dry, but it does mean that the legal voters of a county shall with their ballots have the privilege of indicating their position on the question of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors at a special election called for that express purpose and that a majority vote shall determine it. I appeal to the members of this House and ask them if they desire to have a business the character of the liquor traffic carried on in their respective counties without the majority sentiment of their constituents behind it ,and how can such sentiment be ascertained in any fairer way than is suggested by this bill? Whether a member is in favor of or opposed to licensing the sale of liquor how can he refuse to give his constituents the right to pass on this question with their ballots rather than with their names to petitions and remonstrances.

I can't believe there is a member of this intelligent body who desires by his vote aganst this measure to say to his constituents that while they have the intelligence to discriminate in the marking of their ballots which resulted in making him a member of this legislature they have not the intelligence to vote yes or no on the question this bill is intended to put up to them. No he should take pride in supporting this measure and in doing so say I am willing that my constituents shall be permitted to determine the question intended to be submitted to them instead of continuing with this power vested in a single person.

I have heard members of this body object to the principles of Local Option on the ground that under a law of this kind one unit be it a county or a smaller one will be dry and the next one wet. Such objections should have no weight in determining a members position on this measure for such are the conditions existing in Pennsylvana to-day. Through the interpration of the Brooks law by the Courts counties are wet and counties are dry and the enactment of this bill into a law may not change the wet and dry territory from what it is to-day, but if it does it will be by the mandate of a majority vote in the county affected and not by what many of the legal profession believe to be unwarranted assumption or arbitrary power by the judges under the Brooks law.

The liquor licensees of our states seem to labor under the impression that they get the privilege given them from year to year from some higher authority than the people, when as a matter of fact this privilege they enjoy comes from the people through legislative action with executive approval vesting in the Courts the authority to pass on their applications and the people clearly have the right in the same way to recall this authority in the whole from the Courts, or in part which this bill is intended to do.

If right for the citizens of New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and other states to enjoy this privilege of determining the question of prohibiting the sale of liquor with their ballots why should not the citizenship of Pennsylvania be given this same privilege? Remember that the enactment of the law by which United States Senators are elected by a popular vote has divorced the office of state legislators from national issues and consequently has removed this office from the list of partisan political offices and is now in Pennsylvania as much of a non-partisan office as is that of judge, and it will be so viewed by the voters of our state in 1916 if this legislature fails to give the people the rights they are demanding in the bill under consideration.

Believing as I do in a rule by the majority in the affairs of our government, I would were I a resident of the county of Philadelphia, or Allegheny or Erie, or Elk, or Schuylkill or any other county likely to vote against prohibiting the sale of liquor under a Local Option Law, favor this measure as strongly as I do living in the county of Tioga. Ours is not intended to be a government by classes or interests and the sooner we realize this and give the people their rights the better it will be for us ,and failing to do to so means the beginning of the downfall of our Republic. With the clergy and the church, the legal and medical profession, the manufacturer and other employers of labor, the merchant and farmer in favor of this bill there can be no mistaking the sentiment of the people of our fair state on the question of a Local Option Law in Pennsylvania. The business interests so much in evidence in oppositon to this measure should withdraw from the state if afraid to submit their claims to continue in business to the electors they are prepared to serve.

The SPEAKER. In accordance with the motion adopted by the House the gentleman's time is up.

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, I move that the gentleman's time be extended until he has finished.

Mr. GANS. Mr Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Tioga, Mr. Williams.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, wise party leaders and wise legislators never hesitate to give the people laws they from time to time demand. A State that surrenders to any business interest in opposition to public sentiment is not only headed in the wrong direction but is laying the foundation for serious trouble to itself. Woodrow Wilson when Governor of New Jersey said Local Option was a moral and not a political question. Conditions in New Jersey at the time these words were spoken undoubtedly justified them. To-day in Pennsylvania Local Option we might also say is a moral question, but it will become a political question if the legislature shall continue to refuse to give the people this legislation they are demanding. Bear in mind that the sentiment favorable to Local Option in Pennsylvania is stronger than any political party, and when for selfish reasons a combination shall be formed between business interests and political parties to deny the people the rights they are, for instance demanding in this bill, to govern themselves, and they come to understand that such is the case, there will be a nonpartisan uprising in Pennsylvania, not in the name of the anti-saloon league, but in the name of the people, with a platform on which men of all parties can stand and work together, and on their banner will be inscribed the words made famous by the immortal Lincoln "A government of the people, by the people and for the people" words as true in their significance to-day as when spoken, and this movement will sweep over the Keystone State moving the people as no movement has done since the issues leading up to the Civil War moved them, and it will then carry into these halls of legislation a majority vote in favor of giving the people of this Commonwealth the rights they are demanding in this bill.

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, since the House has so willingly consented to extend the time of Mr. Williams in the discussion of this bill, I ask the gentleman who framed the motion to give his consent to withdraw the same at this time. I think it is too an important question for this Legislature to limit each member to a measly twelve minutes and a half of speech.

Mr. WAGNER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote, by which this resolution was agreed to, be reconsidered

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. There is now no time limit on the speakers

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker.

Mr. KITTS. Mr. Speaker, we have heard so much about this monotonous question since the election of 1914, that to say anything further in my mind would sound like the wailing of a graveyard wind. It has been the main topic of conversation so long, to many members of this assembly, that the other day when I was walking up through the halls of the House I overheard some of the friends of this bill talking among themselves. There seemed to be in their minds the evidence of some horrible apparition, and as I heard one of them say, "If I sat here, I saw him," I was reminded of Shakespeare's proverbial, "Ghost Banquo." Nevertheless, sir, I take pleasure in assisting in the delivery of the funeral oration of Martin G. Anthony. The corpse of this bill is now in our hands for burial, the funeral of which has long since been delayed. I am not rising in my place to speak on this question because I have any personal interest, but because I think the bill is wrong in principle, and wrong in policy.

I came to Harrisburg to represent the people of the second legislative district of Erie county, not to represent the Governor of this Commonwealth.

If no one in this Commonwealth drank any more liquors than I do, local option would regulate itself. Yet, this agitation has not been brought on by the people of this great Commonwealth, it has been brought on by the Governor himself. For the first time in the State of Pennsylvania, the friends of local option have been frank enough to admit that it is not alone local option for which they are striving, but for state-wide prohibition. I presume we came the nearest to driving them into an admission in the session of 1913, but they surely capped the climax at the local option hearing on April 6th, when they struck right out from the shoulder and openly declared that local option was the first step to state-wide prohibition, and that this was their ultimate goal. Therefore in this discussion I contend it to be strictly parliamentary to speak from the standpoint of both local option and prohibition. There seems to be some false alarm about this question. The people, through the pulpit and the press, have become greatly agitated. One would think from the actions that have gone on during the last six months, that the State of Pennsylvania has sunk to the lowest depths of debauchery, that she is in a quagmire of crime never before known in the annals of the State. It takes only a glance to convince me that this is false policy. A State of the size of Pennsylvania, with her varied industries, her large area, her numerous population, her beautiful educational institutions, her hospitals, her libraries, and above all a policy of political ethics that has placed her on the safe side of the ledger for many years back, will convince the average mind that this great hue and dry for local option, which is only a primary stage of prohibition, is not a necessity, but a political hysteria. I am reminded of the story my father used to tell about an old maid who lived to be about fifty years old, and one morning as she was down on her knees, in front of the oven, taking out some biscuits, her brother came into the kitchen and found her weeping bitterly. He went up to her and laying his hand gently upon her shoulder said "What grieves thee, Geraldine?" She exclaimed, "Oh, Chester, wouldn't it be dreadful if I ever got married and the Lord was good enough to give me a child and it got in the oven and got burned."

I hold that the principles of local option are a violation of the true principle of American liberty. Local option in this State is not a necessity; there is no need for it. The question was settled on the fifth day of last November, as conclusively as water quenches fire, as conclusively as did the Civil War settle the question of the secession of the Southern States, as conclusively as did Daniel Webster settle the question of nullification in his reply to Hayne. As conclusively as Mr. Willard settled the championship at Havana recently. Every mother's son of you declared your convictions to the people in the fall of 1914, every voter in this State knew that this was a closely drawn issue, so much so that the election of the United States Senator was fought on that very basis, and had the people of this Commonwealth desired local option they could have sent to this Assembly men of that proclivity, but instead, there was elected in this Assembly one hundred and forty-four members in this State who were openly pledged against local option, so I quite contend that in so far as the people of this Commonwealth are concerned, this is a closed question. Not so with the Chief Executive and the exponents of local option. They will not admit that they are in a small minority and still continue to promise, flatter, threaten and coerce. It is ridiculous, to my mind, that we must single out one food product and say to our brothers "You shall not use this." If you do not want liquor, for God's sake leave it alone, but I deny your right to tell me what or when I shall drink. I consider it no man's business when I desire to do this. Are you my keeper? Is my soul in your charge? You "drys" say, we "wets" cannot have the vile stuff. Do we "wets" ever say to your "drys," "here, come along, you've got to drink it, whether you want it or not." No, it is reciprocity with us, or at least ought to be. Why, would it not be fair to have local option on coca cola, ice cream, doughnuts, pink tea parties and bridge whist. I dare say that men do more harm to themselves and to their physical constitutions with tobacco than with liquor. In my case that is true fifty times over. Why can't we have local option on the question of your religion and the question of your politics? Why can't we have local option on the divorce evil and upon our love affairs, so that should a man finally single out a woman whom he thinks he loves, he might have a law passed compelling her to marry him?

Local option is absolutely a repudiation of personal liberty and the tenets of the constitution and is unnecessary for the very reason that we have had on the statute books of this Commonwealth since 1887, the best local option law that was ever written into the archives of any State. Its history and trial has been one of success. For over a quarter of a century it has been upon the statute books of this Commonwealth almost in the original form in which it was passed. It has been found tried and true. It has regulated the liquor traffic of the State of Pennsylvania in a commendable manner. Prior to its passage when a wave of prohibition had swept over this Commonwealth, the people of this State by their representatives inserted an amendment at one session of the Legislature, and repealed at the very next session. In 1889 a prohibitory amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania was voted down by 280,000 majority. I believe in regulation and moderation, not in elimination and total destruction. The Brooks High License law does the former and the Williams County Local Option bill, if it ever became a law, will bring about the latter. The high license and the stringent regulations imposed by the Brooks act makes it almost impossible in this State, to carry on a violation of the law without detection prosecution and loss of license. There is a wrong unit in the Williams Bill. Do you mean to say for one minute that the back woods districts in one county can assist in deciding whether you shall have an up to date hotel down at the County Seat? That Middletown shall rule Harrisburg? Do you mean to tell me, for instance, that Washington township, in the County of Erie, shall tell the voters of my City whether we may maintain a bar at the Hotel Lawrence or the Reed House? It is fallacy and error and should never be passed.

The great political parties of this Commonwealth have never demanded an issue of this kind. The great men of the State and the nation who have led each of these parties to success from the earliest days of the constitution down to the present time, have been men of liberal views and who from time to time scorned the idea that local option and prohibition rightfully belonging in a political platform. But, on the other hand, the people have been given to understand that this was a moral question to be threshed out in the schools and the churches. Can you imagine Washington, Jefferson, Franklin, Webster, Clay, Lincoln, Grant, McKinley and such leaders of both parties, forcing into the political annals of their time an obnoxious liquor plank? Had you mentioned such a thing to any one of them, they perhaps would have reminded you that your place to seek redress is in the Prohibition Party. Their never has been an issue in the two great parties of this State or nation which demanded the insertion of a plank such as the Chief Executive of this State attempts in his platform. As a nation we have progressed in all lines of industry and education and especially is it true in this Commonwealth, although there seems little left for the people to think about except to cast about for trouble. After the Civil War was over the minds of the American nation were taken up with the reconstruction policies of Johnson and the other leaders following the Civil War. Armies were disbanded, States were re-united, the rivers were opened, the harbors were improved, mines were opened up, forest lands in the west thrown open to agriculture, cities increased, and industries grew. The whole nation was one of thrift and during this period the whole land teemed with prosperity, but now, after we have almost reached the summit of our progression, we have fallen into an age of mental idleness. An idle brain is the devils workshop and some of our Women's Clubs and some of our ministers who do not have enough preaching to do to keep them busy, can sit down 365 days in the year and hatch up some scheme to cast misery and dissension upon honest citizens in this Commonwealth, and yet they will compare the European situation with the conditions in this Country, and to my mind, to compare for one minute the unsettled conditions in Russia and England with that of America—and to draw a conclusion in favor of local option by citing an edict of the Czar, when everything is in a frenzy, a turmoil and disorder, in my estimation, is schoolboy logic, redflannel petticoat argument and an insult to Pennsylvania's high standard of morals and intelligence, and I reiterate sir, that local option is only the pet hobby of Governor Brumbaugh. It is not in the platform of the Republican party of this State, and it is not in the original or legal platform of the Democratic party of this State. I am not a Republican and you will be obliged to work out your salvation in your own way, but I do understand, that when the Republican State platform was adopted at Pittsburgh--a platform which carried Boise Penrose to the United States Senate, by an overwhelming majority and brought to this assembly a large majority of liberal people, that the leaders of your party scorned the very idea of a dry plank in the platform that Governor Brumbaugh was silent on the matter, neither admitting or denying, and that later, after the platform was adopted and the question settled, he inserted a "dry" plank in his own platform. He gave the leaders the absolute assurance that he would play fair with them and would not press the question. Now it has been hinted, and some of the speakers of your party have gone so far as to point their fingers over at the Democratic side of the House and remind us that we had a party platform pledge to keep. I want to tell you, and I want to serve notice on every one in this Commonwealth, that I do not consider for one minute, that I am bound by a platform that was adopted in the way our Democratic platform was adopted in this State. When the State Central Committee met in Harrisburg for the purpose of organization and the drafting of a platform, the leaders of the reformed and reorganized Democracy in Pennsylvania carefully felt the pulse of the delegates and finding that the attempt to force in a "dry" issue would be promptly defeated, in order to secure control of the Convention and to insert their hobbies in the platform, those very men who later graced the heads of the ticket in this Commonwealth, secured the appointment of a Committee who withdrew from the Convention and drafted the Democratic Platform with the assumption, however, as should be the assumption in all parliamentary procedures of that kind, that that very same Committee should report back to the body which created it. Did they do this? No. After closeting themselves in a room with the leaders of the party and drawing a platform to their own liking, they put it in their pockets and left the Convention, the same never having been approved or even voted upon by the State Central Committee. Do you mean to tell me, or do you mean to tell the liberty loving broad minded Democrats of this Commonwealth that we must be bound by a scurrilous, illegitimate, half strung platform of that kind, brought into the world to serve the selfish purpose of the men who had recently ascended to the throne of power in the Democratic party of this Commonwealth? The people of this Commonwealth and of this nation have finally been given to understand that the liquor question has no place in national politics, but for the past two years and a half every federal appointment coming into the State of Pennsylvania has been made upon narrow lines. The Secretary of State had inaugurated his grape juice campaign and everything done by those from Pa, who had associated themselves with the national administration was done with the ultimate view of placing this issue in the national campaign until Underwood and his followers so greatly repudiated the action of Hobson in the National Congress.

I hold that there are more evils connected with the passage and enforcement of local option than there ever can be under the Brooks High Licence law in this State. Of course there are different arguments and volumes and volumes of different figures, but above all, there has been a growing disrespect for the judiciary, a tendency by the followers of this movement, to take away from a man that which rightfully belongs to him and without compensation, a tendency to create a policy that is ruinous, abusive and destructive, that reciting their argument for local option, the exponents thereof always mention the extreme cases; they never try to correct or help. They will criticise the saloon as the hell hole of crime, they will wink at the drug store violating the law in a red handed manner. They shame the people and admonish them to keep away from the dance hall, but they have never been known to lend a helping hand in the correction of the evils which they so loudly exploit from the forum and pulpit. They have become cynics in their own realm. They never see a good quality in a man and never fail to see a bad one. Some of their rabid speakers are almost like unto a human owl, vigilant in darkness and blind to light, mousing for vermin and never seeing nobler game. They seek to demoralize business, and if this bill should become a law, the hotels, the general business interests in the whole community, every three years, will be thrown into a State of turmoil and doubt that in my estimation will work more injury to the great interests of this Commonwealth than the liquor question could hope to do one hundred times over. I dare say it has been you experience that in some of your towns where there are no licensed places, that there are more drunkards and more debauchery and the like than in towns of similar population where licenses have been set up and maintained under the Brooks Act. I recall one particular town in my county which has no saloons and never has had one, and there have been two or three citizens to be declared habitual drunkards, when the nearest licensed saloon was several miles away. I recall one other town in which there has been a licensed place as long as I can remember and I do not remember an instance where there has ever been a proceeding directly or indirectly connected with drunkenness or disorder.

It strikes me that I would rather trust a question of such great moment to the wise, careful and judicial minds of the judiciary of this Commonwealth than to a frenzied rabble at the poles. As I sat in the meeting on local option recently, the thought struck me that it takes other things than liquor to make men intemperate or to bring about intoxication. As I listened to the local option arguments and saw the behavior of the crowd I thought that some of them were drunk with frenzy, intoxicated with disorder and polluted with a spirit of unfairness. Do you desire to trust the destinies of a great business to such a condition, or do you want it decided in the judiciary where it rightfully belongs?

The religious hysteria of Billy Sunday has largely been responsible for this agitated and inflated condition of affairs. It seems peculiar to me that the sensible people of this Commonwealth would allow a man, who is only out for the mighty dollar, to drive them into a frenzied condition on this question or any other question, while he is not teaching the sound truth or plain gospel of Him who taught at Gallilee, but making an utter attempt to excite the people by the use of slang and vulgar vernacular. Speakers have come into this House and named the saloon as being responsible for every bit of crime, for every bit of debauchery, for every bit of wrong, for every bit of pauperism, for every bit of insanity in this Commonwealth. They cannot produce figures to prove this, but they will tell you that ninety-five per cent. of all of this and all of that is brought on by the saloon evil. Their figures are erroneous. How is it possible to say that children are brought into the world blind because of the liquor question? How is it possible to say that children are brought into the world in a crippled condition because of the liquor question? How can you prove to me that the inmates of the insane asylum reach that institution through the direct cause of liquor? I have sat many and many a time in court and when the judge was about to sentence a prisoner who had been convicted of some crime, the judge would ask him if he had anything to say to the court, and nine times out of ten some fellow who had been an old rounder, who had been convicted before, and whom they all knew, for argument and in order to get the sympathy of the Court would say "Booze did it." But I have personally traced up the cause and effect of his having been in Court and found that a very small percentage of crime, especially in our County, was directly traceable to intoxication. Did you ever stop to think how many people have been brought into the world as degenerates, blind, weak and crippled, how many people have found their way into some institution for the feeble minded or for the insane, simply because there is planted deep in the human race a disease that we hear so little about for the reason that its inception is always a matter of secret, and I deny that the liquor question is any more responsible for all these evil physical breakdowns than is that great blood disease commonly called syphilis. Nor do I believe that the liquor traffic is any more responsible than the drug habit in its various forms, yet we never hear anybody say anything about syphilis or the use of drugs, but it's booze, booze, booze.

It has been said that when a man takes out a license under the Brooks Law for either brewing, distilling or selling, that all he can expect is a period of one year. This is absolutely an unfair statement. It is erroneous and misleading. The very custom and practice of itself and the interpretation put upon the same by the judiciary, and especially by the appellate courts of the State, absolutely guarantees, a continuation of the business so long as a man conducts the same in an orderly and lawful manner. Do you suppose for a moment that a man would invest from ten thousand to twenty thousand dollars in a corner saloon with the expectation that his lease of business was to last for just one year, or do you suppose that a man would tie up his entire fortune in a brewery or a distillery under the same condition? It is false logic and the same old fashioned argument which the local option people have fed to you for years. The State of Pennsyvlania and the Federal Government have collected millions of dollars from the liquor traffic in Pennsylvania alone. They hardly allow the product to cool in its vat before the collections made. Did you ever stop to consider how much revenue had been received, directly and indirectly, from some small out of the way place of business, such as the corner saloon to which I have just referred, counting not only the license under the Brooks Act, but all the direct and indirect taxes imposed thereon? Out of this money we have built schools, hospitals, libraries and paid off the public debt, and these are some of the things which the saloon has given to the State of Pennsylvania.

The Church has unfairly criticized the saloon business as an evil. I do not admit for one moment that it is an evil, but granting for the sake of an argument, that we allow the exponents of local option to have their way and characterize it as a flagrant evil, and then I ask, whose evil is it? Is it the evil of the saloon keeper, the brewer, the distiller, wholesaler and the retailer, or is it the evil of the very people who set it up, established it, and by various legislation from the Duke of York down to the present time, protected and encouraged it? If it is an evil then it is the evil of him you see in you picture making his famous treaty with the Indians. (Indicating William Penn). If it is an evil, then it is the evil of every Pennsylvania character portrayed on that master piece of painting before you. (Indication Pennsylvania's great men). I go a step further and say that if it is an evil it is an evil belonging to his Excellency, Martin G. Brumbaugh and to you Mr. Speaker, and to Chairman Williams, of the Law and Order Committee, and to every mother's son of you who are within the hearing of my voice at the present time. Now, then, will you turn around by a piece of tyranical and sumptuary legislation and rip out a legitimate business which all the laws of the Commonwealth have always fostered and give to the people who own such a business not a single penny of compensation?

We must meet this proposition fairly. It is not their proposition, it is our proposition. The manufacturesr, distillers and retail liquor people are in a business inherited from our forefathers. We cannot get away from the truth of this. I know it and you know it. From earliest times it was recognized by law in this Commonwealth. As I have said, under the Duke of York laws, promulgated in 1676, and the laws of the proprietary government of William Penn, (pointing again to Penn) and without a single day's interruption to the present time. The liquor business in Pennsylvania is to-day as legal as any other business. Notwithstanding this, the saloonkeeper has been abused, derided, and driven out of social fellowship. He has been in partnership with the rest of the citizens of the State. He is a carefully selected partner of the State and is carrying on a business scheme to make money for all the people of the State as well as for himself. But by this act you seek to turn him out penniless, to rob him of every penny of his life time earnings, to take away from innocent women and children their daily bread, by throwing thousands of men out of employment, to rob widows and orphans of that which the father of the family had for years striven to accumulate. It strikes me that this bill is almost tyrannical enough to cause men to rise up as in the days of our forefathers and assert their rights with something stronger than representation.

Talk about your American policies and your Yankee fairness,—Did you ever investigate into the history of some of the foreign nations who have sought to eliminate a portion of their liquor traffic? Do you know that in spite of the howl that has gone up from Local Option forces that the Czar of Russia with his imperial sponge has swapped up all the vodka in Russia; that for many years back, the entire liquor interests of the Empire of Russia have been under Government control, not a single citizen having lost a penny by the imperial edict of the Czar? Do you know that this policy is being carried out at the very present time by the great leaders in England? Do you know that in the Chamber of Deputies in France at the very present time, there is a Bill under consideration to stop the manufacture and sale of absinthe, and that the French nation intends to compensate not only the manufacturer, the wholesaler and the retailer, but the very farmer who produces the agricultural products out of which absinthe is made?

Do you know that only a few years ago in the Confederacy of Switzerland the law-making body passed a law doing away with the manufacture and sale of absinthe; that they appointed a Commission appropriating a certain sum of money, bought up all distilleries, all the store-houses, all the wholesalers, all the retailers, paid for the good-will of the business destroyed thereby, and went out into the rural districts and paid off the farmers for the loss of their crops and gave them a certain sum of money in each instance sufficient to start them on the road to prosperity in raising some other kind of a crop? This is barbaric Europe's way of doing business. Do you wish to trade European thoughtfulness and quality for American hypocricy?

How well our forefathers worked out the triple idea of a Government when they inaugurated in the constitution of the United States, and which the several states have patterned after, the executive ,the legislative and the judicial departments. This is a representative government and I hold that not every question of importance belongs to the people for decision, but can better be decided by an unbiased, level headed judiciary in comparison to a howling, swelling rabble that would frequent the polls if this bill were enacted into law. From the days of the Decemviers and Justinian code down to the present time, such able commentators, essayists and writers as Bracton, Fleta, Sir Edward Coke, Sir William Blackstone, Kent and our own Chief Justice, John Marshall, have so nicely instilled into the human mind that one paramount thought and teaching to respect the judiciary. Yet we are fast growing to separate ourselves from that theory, and every judge in this Commonwealth has been criticised and derided whenever he has failed to sustain a remonstrance even though the evidence be overwhelmingly against it. From the earliest days of my boyhood I was taught to scaredly respect and obey the judiciary and I have yet to find many people allied on the side of the liquor traffic who have openly arraigned and criticized a judge of this State for his official act in refusing to grant a license. The criticism and disrespect comes from the other side. I had a man say to me not long ago "Why Judges Walling and Benson turned down nearly every remonstrance we carried into Court." I asked him to compare for me the number and character both of the applicants and the remonstrants. This he could not do. I then asked him to quote me the election figures for that particular district when the issue was closely drawn as to "wet" and "dry." That he could not do. I asked him to quote some of the Brooks Act which put the law into the hands of the Court. That he could not do. Yet such men as he will blindly criticize the lawful action of the judiciary. You know there is always one disappointed lawyer in a law suit, and it is quite a mark of human character to take a defeat gracefully. I have been about the polls of Erie County a great deal, and I would rather trust the destinies of the liquor traffic to such able jurists as we have in the Sixth Judicial District than I would to the excited clamor of the Y. M. C. A., the Anti-saloon League and some other organizations which have much to do about nothing. If the other counties of the Commonwealth are like unto my own county, we surely have in this Commonwealth a judiciary to be proud of, but in spite of the broad, fair minded principles maintained by our Court, let one of the judges, as was the case recetnly in our County, come up for election to a higher office and see how many of the very church people whom he had favored would double cross him.

Of course, the devil can quote scripture for his own purpose but I would like to set down some day when I have time with my bible and I challenge any advocate of local option to bring his bible, and if I cannot show him more passages from the good book which absolutely repudiate prohibition than he can that advocates it, I will be convinced and vote for local option.

In Ecclesiastics the 31st chapter and 27th verse it says: "Wine is as good as life to a man if it be drunk moderately. What is life then to a man that is without wine? For it was made to make men glad."

I do not care to stand here and quote scripture, as I know some of it can be quoted against me, but I do say that there are from three to four hundred passages in the bible that are as strong as the one I have just quoted, showing God's approval and that the very Saviour Himself turned that from water which we so at this time abhor. A wise man once said if we were to be cut off from all literature, but could have with us the works of Shakespeare and the Holy Bible, we would have in them a most complete library. Is it not peculiar that Shakespeare was born under liberal conditions in England. Cast your eye through his plays and writings and sift out some of his sayings and approvals towards the use of alocholic liquors. You will find them as profound as those in the bible. For instance, he says:

"A health, gentlemen. Let it go round."—Henry VIII.

"To make the coming hour overflow with joy and pleasure drown the brim."—All's well that ends well.

"Come, I will drink with you."—Henry IV.

"Good friends, go in and taste some wine with me and we like friends will straightway go together."—Julius Caesar.

"Filled till the cup be hid."—Anthony and Cleopatra.

While the exponents of this question seem to be loaded with facts and figures which in their inception, from either side of the question, seem incontrovertible, let me give you a few facts and figures on this question as I see it, and I challenge from the friends of local option a contradiction either in toto or seriatim.

Analysis of the report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue discloses among other things that during the fiscal year ending with last June the income from the tax on whiskey exceeded that of the previous year by $7,744,914; the increase from vinous liquors, including brandies of all kinds, was $387,679, and that from beer was $3,139,911.

These increases appear in spite of the fact that collections of special taxes from retail liquor deals fell off $532,217, from wholesale dealers $85,203, from retail beer licenses $42,656, and from wholesale beer licenses $79,526.

The facts attest that prohibition does not check the sale or consumption of either whiskey, wine, brandy or beer.

Never were prohibitory laws more widely extended, more carefully enforced than at present, and the statistics of the internal revenue show the consequences.

Under license the saloon is a responsible institution, open to inspection and subject to control. Under prohibition the traffic in liquor is driven into secret places and is handled by irresponsible, lawless men, who sell to boys and adults without distinction. These places are open at all hours, and handle the vilest instead of the best brands of liquor. The police burden is increased. Court costs multiply as a result of the futile effort to suppress these secret joints. Beer drinkers become whiskey drinkers and the net result is an increase in the evils of intemperance. The net loss to real estate owners, merchants, cities, county and State would be enormous. Why exchange profits for losses or trade benefits for burdens?

Before you vote to make your own town dry, get some prohibitionist to give you the name of just one dry town that ever made a great city. Society has no more right to tell you what you shall drink than it has to dictate what you shall think.

Sunday says: "If all the millionaires in hell would join together and pool their wealth, they couldn't buy this pitcher of ice water."

From this we learn that hell is a dry territory. Bill has raised a pertinent question which I demand that he answer:

Is hell dry because prohibitionists are in the majority?

Is the place dry because it is hell or hell because it is dry?

Let no man attend to your business until you have hired him for that purpose.

Is it not strange that wet England produced a Shakespeare, wet Germany a Schiller, a Bismarck, wet America Jefferson, a Washington and a Lincoln, while prohibition Turkey never produced a single great man in all the centuries since Mohammed? Its religion and civilization both rest upon prohibition. The beer drinking Bulgars were more than a match for the dry Turks. There is to-day not a single example of superior manhood in the Turkish Empire. The prohibition Turks trail at the tail end of civilization. They are inferior in everything except bigotry, brutality and ignorance. Prohibition has utterly failed to elevate the standard of manhood and morality in the only country in the world where it is a success.

Statistics of the Internal Revenue Bureau showing that 2,471 illicit stills were seized and destroyed last year in the six southern states, Alabama, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia, in each of which there is a State-wide prohibition or its near equivalent, afford a side light on the apparent spread of prohibition sentiment and suggest that even the Federal revenue figures may not be a reliable indicator of the consumption of alcoholics.

The record of captured stills is growing larger yearly, and even the eternal vigilance of the revenue officer, who has been spurred to greater effort in the past few years, does not prevent an increase in illegal distillation, confirming the characteristic experience of States and lesser communities where an attempt has been made to create a Sahara by law only to produce a crop of speak-easies, pocket bar-rooms, and illegitimate and unregulated peddling of poison. In the six States for which figures are quoted the number of captured stills for twelve months has doubled in the last eight years, and the destruction of a still seldom, if ever, puts an end to the business but merely forces it to seek another cover.

During the argument before the Law and Order Committee held on the floor of this House on the sixth of April last, the exponents of local option were frank enough to admit that it is state-wide prohibition which they are seeking and that local option is only a first step to their ultimate result. Therefore I hold that I am keeping within parliamentary procedure when I give arguments upon the question local option and prohibition, and in my mind these two questions are so closely related that they are one and inseparable. You have been told by the speakers for local option and you have read in the dry newspapers of the State and have been fed facts and figures as to the good that local option can accomplish. I desire to call your attention to some figures that I have gleaned from United States statistics and from time to time I will quote the bulletin so that you can verify what I am about to say. The friends of prohibition have been very careless with terms and have secured much erroneous advertising thereby. It strikes me that there are just two States the facts and figures from which will throw much light upon this question. They are Maine and Kansas, and in their order I shall take them up. Maine never has been and never will be a prohibition state until public opinion precedes legal enactment. Maine is a temperance state. In the smaller towns it is always because behind the enforcement there is a good, healthy sentiment, and such degree of enforcement would prevail in such communities with law or without law, so at the outset do not let us confound the legal declaration of the policy of the state constitutionally and satute of needful prohibition. I have stated that Maine is a temperance state. She is, and her longest strides in this direction were in the old days when Washingtonian movements, the Sons of Temperance, the Good Templars, the prohibition parties and the Women's Temperance Union were directing their efforts towards the drinker and his habits. The present plan is legislating against the man who the drinker has set up in business. In the old days real temperance effort bore real fruit, for it was directed against the drinker of high and low degree. It recognized that the average man could no more be made an abstainer by law than he could be made religious by law.

There reposes to-day in the archives of the State of Maine a leather-bound volume bearing the names of one entire Legislature whose members through these moral agencies had personally pledged themselves to total abstinence. Maine never accepted and subscribed to prohibition without reservations and safety valves. When state-wide prohibition, under statute law for thirty-three years following 1851, the year of its adoption, proved a failure, its friends, under the leadership of General Neal Dow, made an heroic effort to place it in the Constitution of the State.

This was accomplished in 1884, but not until it was so emasculated that it became what it always has been in its operation, an approved method of illegal local option. To secure the passage of the law it was necessary to appease the rural vote by exempting cider, and the invalid vote by exempting his whiskey, gin, rum, brandy, porter, ale, wine and cocktails, which invalids at times are supposed to require.

When cider, which Maine prohibitionists have always clung to, and the State liquor agencies, which up to the time of their abolishment in 1911 by a Democratic administration, had a record of sales aggregating $5,000,000, were exempted from the operation of the prohibitory law, the Legislature passed it by a vote of 25 to 3 in the Senate; and the people, with these safety valves provided, voted it into the Constitution of the State by a majority of 45,000.

After sixty-three years of state-wide prohibition, thirty years of which the law has been in the Constitution, it is still safe to say that Maine is pretty evenly divided as to the wisdom or unwisdom of retaining the method.

During all the years in which the law has reposed in the Constitution, every statute law which the minds of astute attorneys could devise has been enacted to support and to re-enforce the Constitution. Fines, search and seizure, imprisonment, spotter evidence, common nuisance, liquor constables with power excessing those of officers charged with the prosecution of other crimes, the indictment of owners of buildings where liquor was sold, and the declaration that the holders of United States liquor licenses were liquor dealers; all these devices, and more, have been invoked to support the law.

During all these years dissatisfaction with state-wide prohibition has been growing. It has been arraigned at the bar of public opinion; it has many times been questioned by friends of temperance; it has been the theme of caustic inaugural addresses of Governors, and its failure has been lamented and condoned in turn by its supporters and adherents.

If you deny it I will produce the original statutes of the State of Maine to prove it.

All the Governors of the State of Maine, from the time of Governor Chamberlain, in 1870, down to the present chief executive, have all clearly set forth the depressing results of nullification. The Governors of Maine are not alone in pointing out the danger of continued nullification. Every man in public life and familiar with Maine's problem has repeatedly sounded the warning. Such men as Senator Charles F. Johnson, Honorable John A. Peters, and many others, the mention of whom would only tend to tire you. Estimations have been placed on record, have been declared from the forum and remain undisputed at the present time, that about ten per cent. of the church members are even opposed to prohibition. Many of the daily and weekly papers are opposed to prohibition. There is in the possession of Mr. John A. Peters, above referred to, one hundred separate photographs of Maine bar-rooms showing the vast condition of the liquor business throughout the State. There are bar-rooms in Portland, there are bar-rooms in Rockland and in Bangor and, I am told, that some of these are fitted up with furnishings that have cost thousands of dollars. Over 140 wholesale liquor dealers of Boston (and I refer you to Boneforte's Directory, pages 71 to 73) who have established a mail order business in Maine and who prefer prohibition in that State.

Only a few years ago the Honorable William T. Hains, then County Attorney and now Governor of the State, in the two years of his term as such attorney, in the disposition of approximately 740 liquor cases, non- prossed, filed or fined the entire number. The record shows no jail sentences except to the dealer who failed to pay his fine or license.

It is a common saying in Maine that during all these years "it was difficult for a liquor dealer to break into a Maine jail if he had the cash to pay his liquor license."

The County Attorney was merely traveling the middle road.

In the last campaign when prohibition was sought to be routed out of the State of Maine, in the September election, in one of the most strenuous campaigns the State has ever witnessed, a campaign in which the friends of law mustered to their aid the most influential platform orators the nation could produce, a campaign in which the churches were organized, their pulpits turned into political forums, in which the children were organized and equipped with campaign songs, in which publicity funds estimated at approximately $200,000 were available, with every one of the 520 towns supplied with oral and written arguments and with little work on the part of the opposition, the prohibitory law which went into the Constitution in 1884 by a majority of 45,000 was retained by a paltry 758 votes.

What of present conditions in Maine? Has Maine any degree of temperance or any degree of prohibition above her sister States to warrant the retaining in her Constitution of a law admittedly on trial for its life? And has she any good argument in the working of such law to materially assist other States which are now wrestling with the liquor question? At the close of the session of the legilature in 1913, upon the recommendation of the Governor, an investigation was begun. Sheriffs were hauled into court, evidence under oath showing the wide open condition of the counties was given, with the result that three sheriffs were removed, one resigned rather than face the evidence, and one escaped through a small-pox scare and quarantine. So far as political depravity was concerned, honors were even between the parties of the State were concerned, for two of the sheriffs were Republicans and two Democrats. In place of the deposed sheriffs four avowed prohibition sheriffs were appointed by the Governor.

The records of arrests for drunkenness is fully three times what it was even ten years ago. Relying upon the report of the prison inspectors, just published, the total number of arrests on Portland the stormcenter in 1901, was 2,000, and in 1912, it was 6,045. Take their estimate that 75 per cent. of these arrests was for drunkenness, we find that while the population has increased 8,400, or 16 per cent. in ten year's drunkenness has increased 300 per cent. in the same time, in the City of Bangor alone. Also under the enforcement thereof, the arrests for drunkenness for October, November and December, of the past year, were 778.

It is also significant that they find an increase of forty-six per cent. in drunkenness in Franklin county, another county devoted to agriculture and without a city in it; also an increase of 27 per cent. in drunkenness in the old County of Knox.

The one alarming feature of the report of the police matrons of the City of Portland for the past year is the increase in the arrests of children under 21 years years of age, of 445, or 85 more than the preceding year. It is an etsablished fact within the entire boundary lines of the city, that private persons cannot be reached successfully under the Webb-Kenyon Law as the shipments of liquor are so slightly shifted from one to the other, that the enforcement of the law, if this is what you call it, is almost impossible. Not only are the people divided, but the political parties are also divided. The Prohibition party, which, at one time in its history, was a factor in the situation and sincere in the defence of the law, has disappeared from the political map of the State of Maine.

A summing up of the positions and views of the opposing forces on both sides of this question in Maine would be substantially as follows: The friends of State-Wide Prohibition, including a large number of churches would press the booze seller, whose profits are always enhanced under illegal local option, and therefore deny to the people the right to invoke in law and expediency, looking to the legitimacy of the traffic, which all history shows cannot be wiped out. The other side arraigned not only its moral, but it physical strength as well. They pointed to the substitution of jamaica rum, ginger, extracts, cider, home made supplies, hard liquors of the highest grades and drugs that have been substituted for the lighter beverages like beer and ale, and they instanced the sworn testimony of sheriffs whose seizures from the kitchen bar and the pocket pedlar, have been largely of this class of drinks, so that the conclusion, coming from the best minds of the representative citizenship of our sister State, Maine, has voiced the statement that Prohibition and illegal local option applied from without is a farce. Temperance and judicial regulation from within, a benediction.

I desire to give you plain and undisputed facts taken from the United States statistics mentioned a few moments ago, and I shall endeavor throughout this discussion, in so far as the same pertains to the State of Kansas, quote from time to time the number of the Bulletin from which the said statistics were segregated. Consideration of these cold facts compiled by the United States Census Bureau enables one to determine clearly whether or not the results claimed for prohibition in Kansas in reality exists.

The rate of suicide for the registration area in Kansas, as shown by the census report on vital statistics for 1911, was 22 per hundred thousand. The suicide rate for registration cities in each of the States is given in the census report. Twenty-four registrations states have a lower rate of suicide than has the registration area of Kansas, and one has the same rate.

The lowest annual divorce rate was in 1900, that of Delaware, where it was 43 divorces per hundred thousand married population. The highest was in the state of Washington, the rate being 513 divorces per hundred thousand married population. Kansas is in the list with a rate of 286, while her sister prohibition state, Maine, has a rate of 282. There were just 34 states that had a lower divorce rate than the rate in Kansas, amongst which may be mentioned Kentucky, with a rate of 237; Pennsylvania, with a rate of 94; New York, with a rate of 60. The average rate of divorce for the United States was 200, the rate rising towards the West. The average for the North Atlantic Division, including Maine, was 100, and the average for the extreme Western Division was 356. The rate for the North Central, including Kansas was 255. Maine and Kansas not only had averages above the National average, but also above the average for their respective geographical divisions.

Two of the various causes for divorces granted to wives are drunkenness and cruelty. Nevertheless 16 states had a rate of divorce to wives because of husband's drunkenness lower than the rate in Kansas. In 15 of these states liquor was lawfully sold at the time the records were compiled. Twenty-five states had lower rates for divorce to wives for cruelty than had Kansas.

If prohibition prevents crime, then one might at least expect to find a comparatively large number of people outside of the penitentiary in Kansas, but the United States records show that the life-prisoner rate in Kansas 4.49 per 100,000 population in 1910, and 22 states had a lower percentage. This same report shows the total number of prisoners per hundred thousand population in 1910, and that in 1910 eleven states had a smaller percentage of prisoners than had Kansas, one of these being Illinois, including Chicago, and another being Wisconsin, including Milwaukee, while yet another was Ohio, including Cincinnati and Cleveland.

The moral condition of the boys and girls in Kansas, as compared with the younger generation in other states, is shown in Census Bulletin No. 121, the comparisons being for the year 1910. The Maine rate is 46.34 per 100,000 population; the New York rate 39.35; the Kansas rate 25.68, and the Nebraska rate, 11.17. Nineteen states have a lower rate of juvenile delinquency than has Kansas.

It is customary to lay great stress on economic conditions in Kansas, and special attention is directed to the alleged scarcity of paupers in that State, the statement being current that in 38 counties the poor houses are empty. Bulletin No. 120, issued by the Census Bureau shows the number of paupers in almshouses in 1910. The lowest rate of pauperism was in Oklahoma, the rate being 2.90 per hundred thousand, and the highest rate was in New Hampshire, being 230.6 per hundred thousand. The rate for New York was 132; for Maine, 127.70; for Illinois, 96.28; for Nebraska, 46.30, and for Kansas, 43.49. Fourteen states have a lower pauper rate than has Kansas.

Bulletin No. 119, issued by the United States Census Bureau, furnishes statistics with respect to mental diseases, as indicated by the number of insane in hospitals. The lowest rate per hundred thousand was in Oklahoma, 67.27; and the highest rate was in Massachusetts, 345.26. Twenty-four states of the Union had a lower rate of insane than had Kansas.

As regards the number of insane with alcoholic psychosis admitted to hospitals in 1910, we find that Kansas cannot come up with the record of 19 other states. Of these 19 license prevails in 14. Kansas had a rate of 4.41 per 100,000 population. Her neighbor, Nebraska, had a rate of but 1.7. Maine, though she has long tried prohibitory legislation had a rank just below Kansas, her rate being 4.44. Among the license states that surpass Kansas, were Pennsylvania, 4; Indiana, 2.7; Virginia, 3.30; Florida, 3.5; Alabama, 4; Texas, 1.4, and Arkansas, 0.31. Bulletin No. 120 shows paupers in almshouses on January 1, 1910: Kansas, 735; Nebraska, 551.

The facts about church membership are contained in the United States Census Bulletin No. 103, and the percentage of church membership in the total population is given for the year 1906, 26 years after Kansas had become a prohibition State. According to this tabulation, which is the latest obtainable, the lowest percentage of church membership was in Oklahoma, including Indian Territory, the rate being 18.2. The rate in New York was 43.7; in Pennsylvania, 43; in Illinois, 38.3; in Nebraska, 32.4; in Maine, 29.8, and in Kansas, 28.4. Forty-three states had a larger percentage of church membership than had Kansas. Since this tabulation was made up two of the four states that had a lower rate of church membership than had Kansas, namely Oklahoma and West Virginia, have joined the ranks of prohibition states. Of the six states therefore, having the lowest rate of church membership in the United States, four are prohibition states.

Savings accounts are commonly accepted as the measure of thrift and real prosperity of a community, and it is when we come to consider these accounts that the government figures relating to Kansas hold for us the greatest surprise. The report of the comptroller shows that on June 30, 1913, there were throughout the entire United States, 10,766,936 people having savings accounts amounting to $4,727,403,950. In Kansas there were only 20,240 persons with savings accounts, and the total of their savings aggregated only $4,689,387. In the whole country there was one person in every nine with a savings account, in Kansas there was one in every 87. In the entire Country the average savings account per depositor was $439.07; in Kansas the average per depositor was but $231.69. The per capita for the whole country was, $71.51; for Kansas only $4.15. Kansas license neighbor, Nebraska, had a per capita of $15.13; Iowa, also licensed, had one of $70.41. Kansas ranked behind 32 license states in the number of savings depositors in mutual and stock savings banks. She had 1,148 savings depositors per 100,000 population; while license Nebraska had 1,669; Kentucky, 1,819; Iowa, 25,586, and Massachusetts had 63,411 per 100,000 population. Only in Arkansas, Texas, North Dakota, Missisippi, New Mexico and Oklahoma is the per capita savings account lower than it is in Kansas, and of these North Dakota, Oklahoma and Mississippi are prohibition states.

With respect to education Kansas has an enviable reputation. Her per centage for illiteracy is only 2.2. This per centage is equaled by one state—Idaho, and surpassed by only 4 others, that is Washington, Oregon, Nebraska and Iowa. It is of interest to note that each of the four states surpassing the educational record of Kansas is a licensed state.

While in Kansas, in which the sale of liquor is prohibited for all purposes, excepting sacramental, there were registered for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, 733 persons as qualified under the federal laws to retail liquors; in the licensed state of Alabama, only 1,185 persons qualified under federal laws; in the licensed State of Arkansas, only 875 qualified under the federal laws, and in the license state of Florida, only 957 qualified under the federal laws. Irrespective, however, of the various estimates, both as to amount and price paid for liquor in Kansas, a consideration of the various facts disclosed by the United States Government statistics would seem necesarily to lead the unprejudiced mind to ask the following questions:

If Prohibition is the cause of a wonderful low death rate, and Prohibition does not prohibit in Kansas, why has Topeka, the capital of Kansas, a death rate higher than that of 17 capital cities in states in which liquor is lawfully sold, and its death rate is exceeded by the rate in only eleven capital cities in registration area, four of which eleven are in prohibition states?

If prohibition prevents death by violence, whether by accident or design, and Prohibition does prohibit in Kansas, why do the registration cities in the State of Kansas show a death rate from this cause higher than the death rate from the same cause in the registration cities of 28 states in which liquor is lawfully sold?

If prohibtion prevents homicide, and Prohibition does prohibit in Kansas, why is the homicide rate in Kansas higher than the homicide rate in 14 out of the 23 registration states attention being called to the fact that of these fourteen states, having a rate of homicide lower than Kansas, in 12 of them liquor is lawfully sold?

If prohibition prevents suicide, and Prohibition does prohibit in Kansas, why is the suicide rate in Kansas higher than in 21 states in which liquor is lawfully sold?

If Prohibition makes homes happy, and Prohibition does prohibit in Kansas, why is the annual average divorce rate in Kansas higher than the divorce rate in 29 States in which liquor is lawfully sold, and why the higher rate to wives on account of drunkenness and cruelty, and why the rapid rate of increase in the number of divorces?

In Prohibition is a benefit to the church, and prohibition does prohibit in Kansas, why is the percentage of church membership in Kansas lower than the percentage in 37 States in which liquor is lawfully sold?

If prohibition saves the boy and the girl, and prohibition does prohibit in Kansas, why is the rate of juvenile delinquency higher in the State of Kansas than in sixteen States in which liquor is lawfulyl sold?

If prohibition improves the mental status of the community and prevents insanity, and prohibition does prohibit in Kansas, why is the rate of insanity in Kansas higher than the rate of insanity in 16 States in which liquor is lawfully sold, and why the tremendous increase in the rate of insanity in Kansas in recent years, although so many counties report no insane, and why should it cost Kansas nearly one million dollars annually to care for her insane, juvenile, delinquents, imbeciles and epileptics?

If prohibition eliminates crime, and prohibition does prohibit in Kansas, why is the rate of prisoners confined for grave and lesser homicide, higher in Kansas than in 24 States in which liquor is lawfully sold, and for general offences higher in Kansas than in nine States in which liquor is lawfully sold?

If prohibition prevents pauperism and produces prosperity and is the cause of thrift and prohibition does prohibit in Kansas, why is the pauper rate in Kansas higher than the pauper rate in 10 States in which liquor is lawfully sold, and why is it that Kansas has a smaller proportion of the citizens with savings accounts than in 37 States in which liquor is lawfully sold, and why is it that the savings accounts of the relatively few Kansans who have them average only about one-half the average savings accounts of the rest of the country?

And, finally, even in the matter of education, in which Kansas makes a splendid record with respect to literacy, why is it that she is equaled by one State and surpassed by four others, in each of which liquor is lawfully sold?

But you say to me, this is not a question of rock-ribbed prohibition which is being at this time considered by this legislative body. I disagree with you. Your ultimate aim is the very thing which you deny. You state that it is a question for a majority of the people to decide. I deny that this doctrine exists in this State or ever has existed in any of the United States since the adoption of the Constitution. I hold that such questions as were so ably debated by our forefathers in rejecting the Articles of Federation, and adopting the Constitution of the United States, were not such questions as are clouded with a moral issue, and in the first instance belong in the churches, and in the second instance in the judiciary. We are hewing far from the line when we contemplate any such construction of the Constitution of the United States, the State of Pennsylvania, or any of the principles of liberty which have been so inherently upheld by our forefathers. The spirit of local optionists is one repugnant to the spirit of the age and doubly so to every student of history and to every admirer of Republican institutions. You clamor for a home rule. You cry out in your sleep for a majority vote. You scathe the judiciary on its decisions, but let me remind you that it was a majority in New England which drove out a Roger Williams, tortured the Quakers and executed old women as witches. It was the majority of the rabble which induced Pontius Pilate to crucify the Savior. It was the majority of the citizenship of the Southern States which brought on secession and broke the bands of Union prior to the Civil War. Those majorities were in the wrong, which as any other majority is that infringes the presonal liberty of man by the enactment of ridiculous laws such as this proposed local option measure is.

I wish to quote you here some figures which I have secured and which I believe to be correct, coming from Lawrence county in this State, and if there is any doubt in your minds as to their authenticity, I shall call upon my friend, the gentleman from Lawrence, Mr. Walton, to verify them.

The drink habit has been steadily on the increase as was testified to at the hearings of the last license court, that more liquor was consumed in Lawrence county since it become "dry" than when they had well regulated licensed houses in the county, which carries out the idea that well regulated licensed places are best for communities.

Out of 257 arrests for illegal liquor selling in 1914, 132 cases were found guilty and sentenced at a cost to the County of $6,804.00.

A number of the above indictments, although true bills had been found by the Grand Jury, were simply fined by the Court instead of jail sentences.

The cost for jury service in 1914, under no-license has been the highest in Lawrence since its inception.

The amount paid out by the County for the keeping of prisoners in the County jail has been the highest in 1914, as also has been the amount paid by the County to the workhouse.

Out of 1,216 arrests in the City of New Castle (Lawrence County) in 1914, 487 were for drunkenness. (Drunkenness does not include the charge of drunk and disorderly).

The consumption of liquors for two years of license as compared with the last two years of no license is as follows:

License, 1909,	$710.000.00	No License, 1913	$719.000.00
License, 1910	504,000.00	No License, 1914	894,000.00
Total	$1,214,000.00	Total	$1,613,000.00

That County stands out plainly that well regulated license houses are far more desirable than under the present conditions of no regulation. Families that never had beer or whiskey in their houses now have it in quantities.

"Abolish saloons and you abolish crime," is a favorite slogan of the anti-saloon orders. I hold that crime is due to greed, jealousy, lust and revenge and these passions exist in "drys" as well as in "wets." When they master manhood crime is a result. A man may be strong on the saloon question and weak on the woman question. He may be strong against liquor, but weak against lust. He may hate whiskey, but worship gold. He may abhor beer but thirst for revenge. Nearly every newspaper you pick up contains an account of some minister who has eloped with some other man's wife. Do you say booze was responsible for his crime?

The charge that saloons cause 80 per cent. of poverty is utterly absurd. If this were true the "wets" would be poor and the "drys" would be rich. If this charge were not false, Turkey, where not a drop of liquor is made or sold, would be almost free from poverty. It is the poorest, most God-forsaken Nation on earth.

Poverty is due to bad luck and poor judgment. According to Bradstreet and Dun, 95 per cent. of the people who enter mercantile pursuits go broke. Poverty is due to incapacity; the inability to make money or keep it after it is made.

Poverty is due to our industrial trust system, under which the few exploit the many. A few men get so much there is but little left for the rest of us.

A government report on the condition of cotton mill workers in Prohibition states of the South states that "Nowhere were there any expenditures noted for intoxicating liquors." When a man is too poor to buy liquor, liquor cannot be the cause of his poverty.

The Federal Bureau of Labor Statistics issued a table showing that working men in the United States expend on an average less than 4 cents a day for liquor.

Does four cents a day mark the difference between riches and poverty?

If local option is a good thing for business, why do not big business towns, like Chicago, New York and Philadelphia have it? As a rule, no town ever votes local option until dry rot sets in. Name one big, well renowned city that is under local option.

The utter absurdity of local option will occur to every reasonable person who stops to consider that society trusts you with liberties to steal; God trusts you with liberty to go to hell; the State trusts you with liberty to commit murder, but local optionists refuse to trust you with liberty to make, sell or buy a scuttle of suds.

When the bible is quoted to explode a fallacy, champions of the fallacy never fail to denounce the speaker as a "Blasphemer." Every interpretation of the scripture that disagrees with our pet teory is rejected as "false interpretation." You hear folks say frequently that, "you can prove anything by the bible." This is not true. You cannot prove by the scriptures that prohibition is right. God forbids nothing, the use of which is proper, but the abuse of which may result in evil. In every such case, the remedy for the evil is regulation, moderation, temperance.

I believe—

That temperance is right and that prohibition is wrong.

That you can vote a county dry, but you cannot vote the people dry.

That a man who needs a law to make him temperate, needs brains more than anything else.

That it is wrong to abuse the right to drink, but worse to rob all men of that right because a few abuse it.

That a blind tiger is worse than the worst saloon.

That regulation is better for temperance than prohibition.

That you cannot promote temperance by closing the legitimate licensed saloons and converting beer drinkers into whiskey drinkers.

That liquor shipped into prohibition territory, practically makes a man get drunk when he only wants a drink.

That only through freedom of choice can a man develop the faculty of self-control.

When a man has not the liberty to enter a restaurant any where and order himself what he wants to eat and drink, he has no liberty worth bragging about.

But I deny—

That a dry town ever made a great city.

That righteousness and temperance can come by law.

That Christ did wrong when he drank wine and made it for others to drink.

That ninety per cent. of crime is due to the saloon, for if that were true Southern Prohibition States and Turkey would have only ten per cent. as much crime as we have in the "wet" States in the north.

That 80 per cent. of poverty is due to liquor, because if it were true, all the "drys" would be rich.

That God has authorized the Anti-saloon League to regulate the habits and tastes of mankind.

That Prohibition prohibits except in Turkey, the penitentiary and hell.

That it is right to abolish a thing that many enjoy because a few people abuse the right to use it

That it is right to make anything a crime which is not contrary to the moral law.

In view of the fact that Prohibition and Local Option have not diminished the consumption of liquor, but has bred sneaks, liars, perjurers, hypocrites and petty criminals, can it be wise to support such a proposition? Prohibition agitation is bad for the reason that is advocates constantly remind their boys of possible weakness. You cannot strengthen a weak person by suggesting their need of a legal muzzle or intimating that you have no confidence in their ability to choose for themselves between good and evil. Suspicion never saved a girl. It never preserved the virtue of a wife, but it has sent many good women to the red hells of shame. Once your loved ones mistrust your honor, question virtue, or belittle your manhood, the road to ruin becomes more attractive. Prohibition arguments tend to weaken the weak. They cannot strengthen the strong.

The following figures are made from data obtained in Oil City and Franklin and do not take into consideration speakeasies, which are numerous in the Cities and constructing Railroad Camps and Kennerdel, Brandon, Pioneer and Miller Farm in Venango County, nor does it take in Emlenton or any of the Lower End of the County who buy from Kittanning and Pittsburgh. Nor do the figures indicate the liquor brought to Oil City from Knight's Distillery at Knox, Clarion county. There is no way of compiling data covering smuggling or private house consumption, but the following figures will give you an idea of what it means to have a "dry" county like Lawrence, Venango and some others. Local option will, if passed, and I sincerely trust it will not be, set up the same conditions at irregular intervals over the State.

Total Beer:—96.874 cases, and 11,087 barrels, 9,504,000 lbs., or 408 tons. Valued at $3.00 per gallon, $220,284.00.

Total Beer:—96,874 cases, and 11,087 barrels, 9,504,000 lbs., or 4,752 tons. Valued at $186,448.00.

Grand total:—10,320,000 lbs., or 5,160 tons, valued at $406,732.00.

Population of Oil City, census 1910, 15,657 or 27.5 per cent. Population of Franklin, census 1910, 9,767 or 17 per cent. Population of Outlying Dist., census 1910, 30,945 or 55.5 per cent. Population of Venango county, census 1910, 56,369.

Total number of arrests made in Oil City from April 1st, 1914 to March 12, 1915, 345 days, was 594. For drunkenness, 424, or 71 per cent. For disorderly conduct and other disdemeanors 170 or 29 per cent.

Total number of arrests in Franklin from April 1st, 1913 to April 1st, 1914 and 1915, as follows:

April 1st, 1913, to April 1st, 1914, wet period, 186. April 1st, 1914, to April 1st, 1915, dry period, 222. Increase, 36 or 16 per cent.

Total number of prosecutions in County Court for illegal sales of liquor, from April 1st, 1913 to April 1st, 1914, during "wet" period, were four.

Total number for the above offense from April 1st, 1914 to April 1st, 1915, "dry" period, were 24. This does not include eleven cases tried before justices of the peace that were settled before reaching the County Court. I would add that the 35 prosecutions for illegal sales of liquor during the "dry" period were more than the prosecutions for the same offense for the preceding 20 years.

He who abuses his right to eat is a glutton. He who abuses his right to drink is a drunkard. Eating and drinking are right. Gluttony and drunkenness are wrong. In the case of gluttony, temperance is the only remedy. Total abstinence would be fatal.

For drunkenness there are only two remedies—only two. They are temperance—moderation—and total abstinence. To be effective these remedies must be sefl-imposed and self-enforced. Like all other virtues, they must be developed from within. They cannot be imparted by law, cultivated by force, nor developed with a policeman's club. Temperance and total abstinence are reasonable, legitimate, effective.

Local Option is a quack nostrum. It canont prevent use or stop abuse. Therefore it cannot save men from intemperance. It is a farce, a failure; therefore it is not a temperance measure. Despite this fact, Local Option advocates try to monopolize the term temperance. Temperance implies use in moderation. Prohibition forbids use. If Prohibition is right, temperance is wrong. When two principles are eternal opposites, both cannot be right. Every argument for true temperance is an argument against prohibition. Abraham Lincoln denounced Prohiibtion as a specie of intemperance. I oppose prohibition because I believe in temperance. I occupy the highest ground between the earth and the stars.

If salons are prolific cause of crime, how does it happen that dry Memphis in 1912 had 12 murders with her 100,000 population, while wet Chicago, had only four. How does it come that saloonless Atlanta had 39 murders and "wet" Milwaukee four. If it is a good thing for local merchants to have people order wet gods from foreign dealers, why would it not be a better thing to purchase all merchandise from mail order houses. If you think that Turkey, the only prohibition nation on earth, leads the procession of nations in the march of human progress, then you should vote for prohibition and local option. The Christian Bible is against prohibition. The Choran is for it. Take your choice. Does your minister teach Christianity or Mohammedanism?

I ask you, is the making and selling of liquor a respectable business, and I answer my own question, by saying, Abraham Lincoln once owned a retail license, George Washington was a brewer and Thomas Jefferson was a distiller. These men were the most respected that ever graced the tides of time.

The Reverend William A. Sunday recently said of the saloon, "The saloon would close every public school; it respects the thief, fills the prisons and pentitentiary, despises heaven, hates love and scorns virtue. It tempts the passions, its music is the song of the siren. Its sermon are collections of lewd, vile stories, it cocks the highwayman's pistol, it puts the rope in the hands of the mob. It is the anarchist of the world and its dirty red flag is dyed with the blood of women and children, and it sent the bullet through the body of Lincoln; it nerved the arm that sent the bullet through Garfield and William McKinley."

Did you ever see a saloon like that? I never did, and nobody ever will. But suppose you could say this of the worst type of saloon that ever existed in any country, would it be fair to say it of all saloons, making the application, as Sunday does, without discrimination? Following his style, I can say some pretty mean things about man. For instance, I can say that man is a foppish, foolish, fiendish, forked animal—a bad, bold, bumptious, bilious, boastful, blatant, bibulous, bullheaded, bum and beast—a grim, garrulous, greedy, grinning, grafting galoot—a hateful, harmful, hypocritical humbug—a putrid, purient, pestilence-peddling, pinheaded pismire; a silly sneaking, sniffling, simpering, salacious, sottish slob—a low-down, lanterned-jawed, lunk-headed, lecherous libertine and liar—a vile, vicious, vengeful, villanous, vampire and viper. That is man. Outside of that he is all right. But shall I characterize all mankind because one freak of nature happens to bear these inhuman attributes?

I am sensitive, sir, of the fact that I have taken up a great deal of the time of this House. I have gone over this question as best I could. If I have made any statements which are incorrect; if I have violated any parliamentary procedure, or if I have been personal in my remarks, I assure you, sir, it is a mistake of the mind and not of the heart, and I wish to thank the membership of this assembly for being so long entertained in the debate of this question, and, in closing, I wish to appeal to each and every one of you to stand by the pledge you made to your constituency when they honored you on the fifth day of November last with your election to this honorable body. We need men in this assembly who have the courage of their convictions. We have at the present time too many obnoxious and sumptuary laws riding at anchor upon the statute books of this Commonwealth. This bill Mr. Speaker, if enacted into law, in my opinion, would be one of the greatest mistakes this legislative body has ever made, and I appeal to you, gentlemen, to do your duty. Dare to be right; dare to be brave; dare to rise up and smite this enigma which seeks to cast dissension among us; dare to keep the tenants of your two great political parties that have weathered the storms of ages without ever having coupled up with a ridiculous issue such as is now before us; dare to repudiate by vote that which is the enemy of prosperity and the very death warrant of business, and in spite of coercion, in spite of all promises, in spite of all intimidation, in spite of the open threats of our chief executive to stump against you in 1916, in spite of all promises that any one has made you to elect you the sheriff, the senator or the judge of your county, dare to rise up and keep the pledges which you know in your own heart you made to your good constituency at home. And in conclusion I must say that if we keep inviolate that which is suggested in the last verse of William Cullen Bryant's Thanatopsis, local option never would have mocked at us in this assembly hall, and, as he said:

"So live that when thy summons comes
To join that innumerable caravan
Which moves to that mysterious realm
Where each shall take his chamber
In the silent Halls of Death
Thou go not like the quarry slave at night
Scourged to his dungeon
But sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust
Approach thy grave like one who raps the drapery
Of his couch about him
And lies down to pleasant dreams."

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I am going to vote in favor of this bill because I believe that the liquor traffic to-day is the greatest force for evil in our modern civilization. I believe that the consumption of liquor is responsible for more unhappiness, more crime, and more mental, moral and physical deficiency than any other cause. I favor any reasonable legislation that will tend to decrease this evil. I regard this bill as a reasonable measure. I do not look upon it as "cure all" legislation. I do not believe that it is the best or the most effective bill that could be passed, but I do believe that it is a step in the right direction. It is an attempt to give to the people in Pennsylvania, in the several counties, the right to say whether the liquor traffic shall be carried on in their particular counties. I believe that they should have that right. For that reason I give it my hearty support.

I think that on a question of this kind, that has been so fully discussed, argument is entirely unnecessary and that the best and most effective speech that any of us can make is to vote aye or nay on the bill. I shall vote aye.

This is a question, Mr. Speaker, that appeals to me purely as a question of right and wrong. It is a question on which I feel that I must answer first of all to the dictates of my own conscience. It is a question on which I have strong and conscientious convictions. I do not mean by that to claim for myself or for my side all the sincerity and all the right. I know that there are many men who oppose this bill who are absolutely sincere and conscientious in their convictions.

It has been suggested that by our votes on this bill we jeopordize our political futures. Let say for myself that I look forward into the future strong with the consciousness of having done what I consider to be the right thing and I am not afraid. To my own mind there is a bigger stake at issue in this vote, than my political future and that stake is my self respect. If I cannot retain both—if I have to lose my self respect in order to retain my political future then I say that I do not want a political future.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, we are in the midst of a contest of opinions, through which, as a people, we are now passing, and it is well to keep in mind that while there are some who may feel their power, that there are others who believe that they are right, and equally as faithful in the discharge of a public duty by manfully opposing, what, in their opinion, appears to be wrong. Shall I hold back my opinions at a time like this, through any fear of giving offense to those with whom I do not agree,—I would consider myself nothing more than a weakling, and unfit to represent the sentiment of those whose servant I am in this House.—I challenge no man's right to his opinion. I call into question no man's patriotism, even though the end he seeks to accomplish may be unworthy of his splendid efforts—but—there are men who are lead by the nose like sheep to the shambles, who indulge in the delusions of hope, and bury their intellects in the dark chambers of the grave, while refusing to listen to the voice of reason or to be led by the light of experience.

Mr. Speaker. The captain of a vessel upon entering a dangerous channel lost his experienced pilot—calling another, he said "Do you know this is a dangerous channel?" "I do," said the pilot. "Do you know it is full of breakers?" "I do," said the pilot, "and will point them out." The vessel sailed on in its course, and soon struck a breaker—the captain was thrown from his vessel,—and, as he came up out of the water, clinging to the side of his ship—the pilot— hanging out of the pilot house exclaimed: "Captain, this is one of them."

Prudence indeed will dictate, that, before we proceed much further in the discussion of the bill, which is now before us, that we pause, just where we are, and ascertain, if possible, how far the executive pilot of this great Commonwealth seeks to aid others in driving us, out of the safe harbor of human liberty,—into dangerous channels of experience,—where the restless currents of emotion and hysteria will sooner or later carry us on to revolution and destruction.

We, have blundering pilots in our halls of legislation,—and,—in the Executive Pilot house of many of our States to-day,—as certain to lead us to destruction as that captain's pilot who ran his vessel into a breaker,—and—unless we follow a course which will be open and just—we will drift away from the cherished landmarks of human liberty,—and fill our sails with the windy spirit of unrest, while we take the chance which the pilot did, and be carried away—God only knows where—without chart or compass—into unknown seas,—unable to return to the blessings we now enjoy.

It behooves us therefore, as loyal sons of Pennsylvania, to approach the consideration of the questions involved in this bill, with a spirit of absolute fairness, and with a temper in accord with that freedom, which, as men, we must give and take in the spirit of debate.

"Everlasting vigilance" says Thomas Jefferson, "is the price of liberty." In the spirit of that vigilance, which Jefferson commended thousands of loyal men and women of Pennsylvania stand to-day prepared to guard and defend their sacred heritage.

To my mind, sir, the movement behind this present bill, and the spirit which inspires it, popular as it may appear to be, in some localities—is pregnant with intolerance, and presents a series of invasions, upon the sacred rights of humanity, which are indeed,—unworthy of the inspirations, which we, as Pennsylvanians, proud of our Colonial history, should manfully resent.

To my mind sir, the proposition is nothing less than freedom or slavery. Underlying this campaign for so-called Local Option, or County Prohibition, are objections more serious, than those who are driven by the frenzy and excitement of the day are willing to admit. Every patriot who loves civil and religious liberty, sees with alarm, the tendency of our Courts and Legislatures, driven as they often are by the noise and tumult which follows the cries of the Demagogue—to disregard the safeguards of a truly American representative Government, by adopting principles and legislation, which will eventually destroy every element of equality and justice, for which our fathers fought and contended in their day, in fighting the oppression of others.

I, for one, am here to assert a principle, and not, to discuss any momentary or special agitation for this Bill. I am determined to tell the truth and invite others to courageously do likewise. We are called upon to deal with a supreme moral and social principle,—which as statesmen,—we must consider in a spirit of calm deliberation. That principle, gentlemen, is this, that the enforcement of a moral practice by legal force or coercion, by the will of any majority or the power of any law, is nothing less than tyranny. It has in it all the evils of religious persecution. It is from such a spirit of intolerance that men and women left their homes three hundred years ago, and notwithstanding the dangers of an unknown sea came to the virgin soil of America, in order that they might live and be free from the intolerance and persecution of their rulers at home. It was this spirit of intolerance on the part of unreasonable rulers who, in the name of God and Religion, interfered with the rights of conscience that gave birth to the spirit of Liberty and laid the foundations of a more worthy regard for home and humanity in this Country.

Movements such as this, are the result of agitation on the part of a class of people who are unwilling to live in contentment, and never appear to be happy unless they can do something to disturb the freedom and happiness of others. Such people are responsible for laws which are frequently being enacted to govern and regulate everything concerning man and his home, but which contribute nothing to the moral uplift or the protection of our citizenship in the pursuit of its happiness. Movements like ths are an attempt on the part of some to effect by force a moral and social reform, which can only be accomplished by clean hearts and the spiritual agency of good homes.

Such policies involve the surrender of moral effort, and substitute in its place—the mandate of the law. Such a policy brutalizes government and entirely discredits the Church.

I am not here to apologize for any of the evils incident to dissipation—I am ready to join with any man in an honest effort to redeem manhood from any of the sins that flesh is heir to. It is the duty of every home in this Commonwealth to advocate and preach true temperance. What this Country needs to-day is more heart and conscience in its political life, and more honor and old-fashioned self-respect and virtue at home. We must look to our teachers and those who preach the Gospel to encourage men to remain sober and industrious, —and not—to this Legislature or the Governor of this Commonwealth.

The law has nothing to do wtih personal offenses unless the offender endangers the rights of his neighbor. On this ancient rock the principles of human freedom have rested,—and here they will remain—unles the spirit of intolerance aided by the Demagogue in his haste to make laws for all human imperfections, shall triumph in the end, and make slaves of us all.

It is a well-expressed axiom "That the government governs best, which governs least."

"We have been over-lawed",—said his excellency the Governor of this Commonwealth, in his carefully prepared address, delivered in this City on the occasion of his inauguration some weeks ago.—Listen my friends to this message which he brings us on this day. "We have gone too far upon the theory that legislation is the cure of our social, economic and political ills. —We have actually made legal criminals, when, as a matter of duty, we should have addressed ourselves to the vastly more worthy task of educating our people into an increasing love for Liberty, respect for law and devotion to our American civilization" Yes, Mr. Speaker, with this sentiment we all agree, and if his excellency, the Governor of this Commonwealth had said nothing more than this, in his message to this Legislature and the people of this Compmnwealth, we could have followed his admonition, passed a few worthy and much needed laws to bring about reforms desired, and then adjourn. But what he says is true, and sooner or later we will all discover that we have been and are continuing to be over-lawed, not out of any desire to promote happiness or to bring forth a more equal condition of affairs in our daily pursuits, but to encourage a spirit of conceit on the part of some to act as grandmothers in the control and regulation of our private affairs. Shall we continue to make criminals out of every one whose methods of living or conceptions of morality do not agree with our own? If not,—then why persist in forcing upon thousands of people in this Commonwealth, a law which will place them at the mercy of some neighbors who may for the time be in a majority and allow them to say whether other men, equally as honest and obedient to every moral law, must be denied an opportunity to enjoy some article of food or drink which the other fellow stands prepared to deny them.

If it is true and I am not prepared to deny it, that we should have addressed ourselves to the more worthy task of educating our people into an increasing love for liberty and respect for law, then why encourage others not disposed to think likewise, to force upon the good people of this Commonwealth, a law which cannot have, and will not enjoy a healthy sentiment in this State to uphold it. In the face of these worthy admonitions, addressed to you by His Excellency, he now seeks, by methods, which to say the least, are objectionable to use the power of his office to urge upon you by every method of intimidation, to enact a prohibition law, with which thousands of loyal citizens of this Commonwealth are not and never will be in sympathy. I have no desire to enter into any controversy with His Excellency on this question nor will I venture out of the proper path of discussion to call into question the propriety of his course, which, for the last few weeks he has steadfastly pursued to stir up in this State a sentiment hostile to every loyal representative in this House who has had the courage to stand up and differ with him in the views he entertains on this question, but gentlemen, we are here in response to the wishes of a constituency in this State which agrees with our views on this subject, and when the time comes that they do not approve of our opposition to such a measure as this,—then they will say so but we do not believe that any of them would consider us as their representatives worthy of their confidence, if we allowed our own declarations made to them on this question, to be influenced by anything that even the Governor might suggest to us at this late day.

We do claim to have some respect for the rights of others, but we cannot see why even a majority of people, in any county, or in this State, should be allowed to prohibit what the law is not yet ready to condemn as a crime. I am prepared at all times to thoughtfully consider any suggestions concerning the propriety of legislation, which may eminate from the Governor, for I believe it to be in accordance with my constitutional oath of office but inasmuch as the Governor has already admonished us, and called our attention to the fact that we have actually been making legal criminals, and that we are making crimes out of things which are not crimes, I am quite ready to meet him on this issue, and take some comfort and consolation from no less a character in American life and History than Abraham Lincoln. He at all times, had the courage of his convictions, and what he said in his fearless defence of human rights, may be listened to even today, and given to those who stand prepared to join in the present spirit of intolerance. I shall quote from a speech delivered by him in the City of Springfield, Illinois, while addressing a Temperance Convention. "Prohibition will work great injury to the cause of temperance. It is a species of intemperance within itself, for it goes beyond the bounds of reason, in that it attempts to control a man's appetite by legislation,—and in making crimes out of things that are not crimes." Gentlemen of the House,—do you agree with sentiment? If you do, then do not vote to encourage even a majority of people to prohibit what is not a crime.

If state-wide prohibition is wrong,—then localized prohibition, or local option is wrong, and if both or either of them are wrong, in principle,—is it right for us to enact such legislation?

If prohibition is wrong in principle, and contrary to human rights, can any majority of the people in the State or County, make it right?

"Forget not," says John Quincy Adams, I pray you,—the rights of personal freedom,—self government is the foundation of all our political and social institutions."

Seek not to enforce upon your brother, by legislative enactment, the virtue that he can possess only by the dictates of his own conscience and the energy of his will.

Mr. Speaker, the true elements of reform are not found in the hearts of those who profess them for the sake of political expediency, nor in the laws of any State or Nation, but in the sober and honest determination of an intelligent people to destroy evil, and promote their welfare by loyal obedience to righteous laws. As long as human society has existed, men have honestly differed in their opinions on many subjects affecting the morality and happiness of the human family. The social fabric we live in today is the result of no one man's effort, nor the aim of a few, but it is the result of compromise between many human minds, and many human views, and this condition of affairs was rendered possible—only—by that decent respect to the opinions of others, and the recognition of justice, in admitting—the equal rights of all.

In these modern days, of splendid achievements—in governmental—as well as industrial development—we frequently hear from the lips of many who play for popular favor "that the rule of the majority must be supreme," and we do not hesitate to say that this is largely so, but Gentlemen of the House—the rule of the majority must be just. Justice is the foundation of all good government—to secure this end governments are instituted among men, and derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.

Constitutions are established in order that those who are not in a majority may be protected from those who are. If this were not so, what security would there be for human life and happiness?

I hold, therefore, that a majority of people, even as electors, have no more right in any state or county, to deprive me of some element in my own happiness than you, as the representatives of those same people, have virtue of your constitutional authority in the State Legislature.

The regulation of any man's morals is not a governmental function. Those who believe in Prohibition know this, and know it well,—but—since they dare not openly defy man in the exercise of his freedom to eat and drink, they resort to a more cowardly effort by shutting off the source of his supply.

Man's prerogative is to be brave and to conquer evil passion—to crush out unholy desires until he can stand before his Maker in triumph because of his victory.

That man is braver by far than the fellow who votes to close up a saloon to deny his neighbor a privilege as ancient as the world, and in accordance with some of the blessings which God himself has given us and never interfered with.

I need not call into question any honest motive, which many of my fellow citizens may have in their zeal to stamp out some of the things which others abuse—but I do say—and I say it fearlessly—that all the pictures of horror which follows alcoholism and debauchery—nor the accumulative figures of so-called State and National losses which are claimed to be the result of liquor legislation, will not blind me, and it ought not to influence you to the gigantic folly of attempting by means of Prohibition to suppress the use of drink in any form. Such efforts in this direction are degrading to those who make them and an insult to the manhood of the men and women in any State where the effort is made. It is a sad commentary, indeed, to herald all over the land, even the suggestion that we no longer have moral responsibility and sufficient manhood and womanhood to remain sober without having others enact laws in the hope of compelling us so to do. So long as the people in any State—made up as they are of all classes of people, races and occupations, see fit to use alcoholic beverages, and think it right to do so,—what God given or constitutional privilege have you to interfere with them in so doing. I do not minimize the movement which has grown up in support of this legislation, but I am far from believing that the day has come when the liberty-loving, broad-minded, just and generous sentiment of the whole people will stand in defence of any effort such as this.

Mr. Speaker. I am quite ready to admit, sir, that there are restrictions which each and every one of us is willing at all times to submit to, in any well organized State or Community, but, sir, these restrictions are inherent in the very purposes and designs of government. They are indeed necesary in order that all of us may enjoy the fullest measures of freedom, without coming in conflict with the life—the health—the happiness—and safety of our neighbor. Such restrictions are indeed welcome, and we do not pretend to rise up in arms against them, for they are made, sir, in pursuance to what is called the police power of the State—to regulate the Public health, provide for our common comforts and promote our mutual happiness, and as the community in which we live grows larger and the developement of industrial and commercial activities becomes more gigantic in its proportions, and annhilates the effort of the individual to stand in defence of his own life and health and happiness, the government has and will continue to assume some supervision in order to protect him, but Mr. Speaker—the prohibition of strong drinks does not fall within these clases,—the man who drinks and drinks to excess may succeed in doing injury to himself, and it may be sir that he will ruin and make desolate the home in which he lives, but sir, unless he resorts to further offenses, for which the State already stands prepared to punish him,—he in no manner transgresses upon me, and society is in no way affected. He offers me no more injury than the man who gambles with cards in some fashionable club, or occasionally fills his belly with unwholesome foods. Gods law to man is to be temperate in all things.

In order to authorize any infringement upon human liberty, the restrictions made by law, in pursuance to the police power of a state, must be reasonable and admittedly necessary to accomplish some legitimate end. We enforce quarantine regulations to prevent others from coming in contact with contagion, and we do this to protect the public health, and by means of the regulations of our splendid department of Public Health, we encourage vaccination, but even this we are not yet at liberty to arbitrarily demand, but Mr. Speaker, will any man in this house, sir, answer me with reason, which might be convincing, and show to the people of this Commonwealth, how any misguided or unfortunate creature, who occasionally drinks and makes a fool of himself, can endanger thousands more by his disgusting exhibition of himself. Shall I, sir, in that spirit of charity which others entreat, vote for a Prohibition law and deny clean men and women the opportunity to gather in their homes in a social circle, and decently enjoy themselves as thousands more before us have done, without bringing disgrace or ruin upon anyone? Shall I, sir, vote for a law which is not made for the many, but for the few? Shall I, sir, find it more becoming to our sense of American manhood, to go to the man who toils, and labors in the sweat of his brow to earn his daily bread, and tell him that because someone occasionally fails to properly use strong drink, that he too, must bend his knee like a slave and allow others to use their whip and beat him into submission, because a majority of people in any district of this Commonwealth would rather drink grape-juice than beer?—It does seem to me sir that if the drunkard has any influence at all which effects the morals of any community, that such influence is more likely to influence other to a more sacred regard of themselves.

Mr. Speaker. What we need more than all else, in the consideration of this proposition, to minimize the evils of the liquor traffic if just a bit more honesty with ourselves and justice to others. I am amazed at the apparent demogoguery of many of those who stand behind this Local Option movement. They arrogantly reserve for themselves all the virtues of angels and sneeringly deny that any other set of men with opinions and convictions contrary to their own have any claims to respect at all. This is an age of hypocricy.

Men with the manhood to hold convictions are brushed aside, and he who succeeds for the time at least in fooling some part of the people, is often carried into office on the wave of some misguided sentiment to which quite often, he has failed to give any real or moral consideration. Such men play with platitudes and popular phrases. They make no appeal to reason, but to the same spirit that the fakir does in his shell-game at the Country fair. They unfurl the sacred emblem of our nationality. They wax eloquent in their misguided defence of popular government, and when the multitude fails to respond and fall in line they talk about majority rule. This, sir, is the music which strikes the popular chords and fires the imagination of the enthusiast who follows the band. When such methods are resorted to by less fortunate mortals than those who profess to be statesmen, we are led to look on with compassion, but, when the strong arm of executive power is used to encourage such music, it is time to suggest more appropriate melodies, and march back to our homes in sober reflection. In order, sir, that we may again read the pages of history, and gather the philosophy of ages, it may be sir, to aid us, to a more conservative and rational consideration of what our government really is and stands for.

Mr. Speaker. I am opposed to the bill which is now before us, and I am more opposed to the methods which have been resorted to in order to pull it through this House. I respectfully submit that the people have already spoken and in no uncertain tones in their several legislative districts of this Commonwealth, when they elected those who are here as members of this House. If this play to the galleries and for popular applause in behalf of so-called majority rule is to be at all consistent, then sir, no further effort should ever have been made to influence the judgment of any man in this Chamber contrary to the wishes of his constituency as expressed on the day of his election. I am a Republican, but I fail to find anything in the platform of this party which even suggests, the course I am to pursue as an humble member of this party on the question now before you.

The political foresight of those who framed the last State platform of our party was such that they did not dare encourage opposition because of any affirmance of such an unholy and un-american principle. I know of no other platform sir, except the one which His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, as a candidate wrote for himself, and I feel certain that it was not written at the suggestion of any of the accredited delegates in the conference which drafted our party platform. As a candidate for this high office, he made his personal declarations, and I remember sir, the very first statement which he ever made on the subject of local option.

When first asked to declare himself as to the course he would pursue, if elected, he said: "If any local option bill is passed by the legislature,, I will sign it." That sir, was his first declaration and such a declaration was in accordance with the proper spirit of his functions as a Governor. To-day, we face a sentiment real or unreal, sober or otherwise, in many counties of our State, which is not the result of sober study and reflection, but the outgrowth of an agitation which he himself has sponsored, and we, as members of this House, are now asked to lay aside our independence as members of a co-ordinate branch of the government and pass this bill, not because of any demand in our districts, but because the Governor wants it. This is not in accordance with the true principles of Constitutional government, and is in open defiance to every well regulated restraint which the law itself has established. You men hear to-day representing the sentiments of your several districts. The Governor was elected by the entire State. by some who believed that he would and by thousands more who believed that he wouldn't. but you men had to face the issue and face it manfully in your districts. Whatever that sentiment, I ask you to stand by.

Mr. Speaker. I respectfully submit that in all that has been said about prohibition. and local option, within the last few weeks, and in all the agitation in this very room and outside of it, little or no attention has been seriously given to this bill. I am willing sir, to go on record in saying that not only are thousand of good people in this Commonwealth entirely misinformed as to its provisions, but some of the men now supporting it, outside of this House, who have come as allies to support His Excellency in this fight for local option, are not preprepared to intelligently discuss it.

Senator Oliver, on the night of the demonstration in this city, in support of local option sai,d "It is not my purpose to enter into any argument on the merits of this measure. I will only say that I am a firm believer in the right of the majority to rule, and the right of the minority to submit—and this doctrine is especially strong when applied to questions relating to the peace or well-being of local communities. If therefore a majority of the people in any county of this Commonwealth want to prohibit the traffic in liquor within their borders, it is preposterous, in the legislature to deny them the right to give expression to their wishes and to see that they are carried out."

The Governor said, "I am a firm believer in the right of the people to rule."

Mr. Speaker. I wonder if it would surprise anyone if we too, were to say that we firmly believed in the right of the people to rule. To my mind sir, no one but a tyrant would ever care to establish any other rule.

But, gentlemen of the House, you will remember what William Penn, the founder of this Commonwealth said, in giving expression to his convictions, at a time, when government such as we now enjoy, was about to receive the first seeds of its conception. He gave his views on government and made them part of the organic law of this Commonwealth, when, for the first time, he promulgated the outline and framework of his Province. "All government," says he, "is free to the people in which the laws govern, and in which the people are a party to those laws."

On this ancient policy of Pennsylvania, that grand old Keystone Colony, the Statesmen of American, Colonial and Revolutionary history constructed their States and national constitution, and on it, as a people, we have rested every since. That law still governs, but the people are not the law, they are a party to that law, representative government still lives, and will continue to endure, just as long as those whom it designs to govern are jealous of their human rights and liberties. Do the people rule? Yes! Mr. Speaker, they do rule in their soverign power, when they make constitutions but not as a people afterward, until again, in their sovereign right they see fit to alter and abolish their framework of government and establish a new constitution to provide safeguards for their future security and happiness.

Do you people rule? Yes. Mr. Speaker, they do, when they elect new members every second year to represent them in this Hall of Legislation, to make laws which are in accordance with their sovereign will. Do the people rule? Yes. Mr. Speaker, they do, when every four years they elect new senators in the higher branch of legislation, and again, sir, I say they rule, when in the exercise of a free and sovereign they elect a governor who, as their executive may suggest legislation needful for the welfare of the State, and to act as a check upon vicious legislation, but never to enter into any campaign of agitation to destroy the roots of popular representation in the State Legislature.

It is sometimes amusing, but always instructive, to observe how some people who think themselves wiser than all the rest of humanity fall into snares which the plain and simple sense of those more broadened by experience and study always discover and avoid. They are blinded by sentiment and led by the eloquence of some emotional blasphemer to look upon their neighbors with suspicion and distrust. Such is the character of the sentiment behind the present bill, which seeks to destroy the stability and integrity of constitutional Liberty, regulated as it now is by law and order.

The contest of ages has been to rescue the spirit of liberty from the intolerance of power. I would rather have my liberties regulated and protected by the law of the land than by the uncertain and everchanging voice of a majority of people in any State or District. I have as much respect and confidence in the justice of our people, as any other man who for the time may profess to be their champion, but—the principle upon which this Bill rests is wrong,—and I do not believe that the people of this Commonwealth conservative as they have always been, are prepared, even now, to knowingly become a party to such wrong.

If a majority of the people in any County have a constitutional right to restrict and forbid the sale of liquors, and thereby deny thousands more, the use thereof, where will this manner of referendum end? If it is within the power and scope of legitimate Government to strike down millions of invested capital, and throw out of work thousands more, who are directly or indirectly employed in the various trades and occupations connected with the liquor traffic, why not go further, and in the name of that same charity and sentiment which you claim as the controlling and guiding spirit of your movement, license and regulate every other innocent pleasure, for fear that some might find it more in accordance with desire to abuse the freedom that they now have.

There are thousands of people to-day, who do not approve of all they see in the moving picture theatres, of this Commonwealth, and, many of them are convinced that some of the pictures which are thrown upon the screen, are not in keeping with their own ideals of decency and morality. and you will agree with me when I call your attention to the fact, that this legislative body has already in its judgment seen fit to enact a law, which to some extent, regulates the possibility of any serious mischief, but will any man say, that because it is possible to abuse this privilege, that any majority of people in any County of this Commonwealth, should be authorized, and empowered to pass upon this question and prohibit entirely the right of the State to license such a business.

There are thousands of people in this Commonwealth who see no wrong in allowing a game of baseball on Sunday, even though the law will not enable them to enjoy this privilege. If a majority of such people desire to vote on this question, and do vote to abolish such a law, or to regulate this subject for themselves, in their respective Counties, are you Mr. Purist prepared to endorse their effort and graciously submit to a violation of the Sunday laws in Pennsylvania, simply because a majority of people, somewhere, in the State see fit to regulate their own affairs

There are thousands of good people in this Commonwealth who do not believe even in the moderate use of tobacco and cigars, and thousands more are ready to admit that it is an evil habit and produces injury to the human system. I know of nothing which has done more to stunt the growth and physical devolopment of our young men today in this Commonwealth than the smoking of poisonous cigarettes. You have to some extent undertaken to regulate this evil. and it is only proper that you should continue so to do, but are you prepared to allow the people in any County of this Commonwealth to regulate or abolish in their own way the evil they complain of, or are you willing to concede that the smoking of cigars and tobacco in any form, is not to be made the occasion for a political campaign.

There are thousands of people who do not approve of automobiles, and many of them are ready to restrict them in the use of our streets and highways in this Commonwealth, and why? Because we all know that sometime those who use them run with some degree of negligence and cripple or kill some human being, but are we ready to correct these evils by forbidding everyone the right to enjoy this luxury because of occasional misuse and carelessness on the part of a few.

There are thousands of good people who are opposed to vaccination, and do not agree with others who insist upon more stringent regulations by the health authorities of our State. but if you really do believe in the right of local self government in the several counties of this State, are you ready to confer upon the people thereof a power to settle for themselves this vital question. and be in submission to the voice of a majority who do not believe in quarantine or vaccination. If the people must settle everything for themselves why object to them exercising an independent control, apart from your State authorities to regulate this question for themselves?

Those of you who favor Local Option or localized Prohibition. may be equally sincere in your desire to control some evil, but you have selected a most dangerous remedy for this evil What the liquor business needs is regulation and not confiscation. It is not the men who want drink, or who manage a saloon, who object to Prohibition —it is the spirit of independence in every manly man or noble woman which resents sumptuary laws to regulate domestic life, unless such laws are needed to protect the health and happines of all. The great majority of our people are temperate and are equally anxious to keep others sober, but they have an inherent contempt for any set of men who find in Phrohibition the only remedy to stamp out evil.

They would "rather bear the ills we have than fly to others that we know not of." They believe in the moral uplift of our fellow being by the development of good character, stimulated by the influence of good training at home and a more sacred regard for spiritual things in church. They realize that Liberty comes first and morality afterwards, for morality without liberty, is slavery. They do not commend a governor for his zeal and determination to further a policy in which good men may differ by suggesting prayers in church for those who believe otherwise. It is repulsive to every principle of our American political life to encourage those who are called to preach the Gospel, to discuss politics or legislation, while wearing the robes and vestments of their sacred office, and I am not afraid to say that thousands of good, clean, conscientious men and women, would be more active in developing a spirit for religious worship in this Commonwealth, if those charged with the obligations to uphold the law and the Gospel, made their appeals to the manhood of those who stand in need of their spiritual assistance. What we need to-day is more religion and less politics. I have abiding faith in the loyalty and patriotism of our people, and I feel assured that they will continue to resent as they always have in the past, any alliance between the State and any church.

The question before you is bigger by far and sinks deeper into the soil of human rights, than the mere casual discussion of the control or regulation of the liquor traffic, but, Mr. Speaker, if I were ready to admit the right of one set of people to control others in the enjoyment of innocent pleasures, which they still enjoy, and if I were prepared even now, to join with you in some movement to abridge any of these rights, I would look with suspicion on the Bill which is now before us, because it will not and cannot regulate with any degree of satisfaction the evils which it is designated to remedy. To my mind, sir, it will aggravate such evils and encourage the very men who stand in need of some protection, to resort to methods more objectionable than they now use to satisfy their passions for strong drink. If this Bill is enacted into law, and made use of by the people in any County of this Commonwealth to wipe out the sources of supply which now exist, others will of necessity take their place, and instead of a well regulated saloon, responsible to the Courts, under the existing law, secret channels of supply will be opened, in violation of the law, and encouraged by at least some considerable part of the Community. It will encourage men to do in secret what they now do in open. It will encourage disrespect for law, and make sneaks out of such who are determined to secure it. It will convert a class of men who now indulge in such milder beverages like beer, to secretly carry in their pockets a flask of whiskey, or secretly enjoy in the privacy of their home, more than they might elsewhere.

I have no respect, sir, for a law which allows the people of one part of a county to control the rights and liberties of those living miles away from them in some distant part of the same county. I have no respect, sir, for a law which enables some rich employer of labor to drink all he pleases in some fashionable club, outside of his county, and then come home and vote to keep saloons out of his own county, simply because he has no occasion to use them. I have no respect, sir, for a law which enables the farmer to dictate to the merchant in the city. I have no respect sir, for a law which deprives honest men who labor, in the sweat of their brow, to earn their daily bread, an opportunity in a manufacturing center of a State to enjoy a glass of beer simply because the employer living out in the suburbs, joins with those more distant in the rest of the county, in making possible county prohibition. I have no respect, sir, for a law, which disorganizes business. which says it is lawful to sell liquor to-day, and unlawful to do so to-morrow. I cannot favor a law which will drive the saloonkeeper into more active participation in politics than he is now. Does anyone suppose that the interest which he now takes in this question will be minimized by such a law? If there be such, let them be at once undeceived. Every sort of liquor legislation of necessity, does create some specific evil in our politics.

When you challenge any man in his right to his business by Legislation, or by an election, under a Local Option Law, it is only reasonable to anticipate that he will do all in his power to protect himself by controlling those who seek to be in authority.

I have no respect, sir, for a law which is not based on principles of equality. This Bill, sir,—is drawn for no other purpose than to stamp out forever, any hope to renew a license when once it has been surrendered in obedience to the voice of a majority. It is true, sir,—that a County which may vote to become dry, may again three years later vote to be wet, but there is nothing in this Bill sir, which even suggests to the Court any course to pursue in the granting of licenses, or which makes it necessary to do so at all. Mr. Speaker, and gentlemen of the House what is wanted to-day is a more patient and intelligent desire to deal fairly with each other in the recognition of our personal rights. We must regulate the liquor proposition on the broadest basis of sound and sober judgment and not with abuse. We must be led by reason and not by hysteria. Men have a right to differ on this proposition, and it is by no means a subject to be trifled with. The right of any minority to be represented and respected is inherent in all the laws of our State. With this thought in view, we recognize minority representation in our Courts and in various departments of government and party machinery.

The spirit of County Local Option, recognizes the right of those who want to use liquors as a legitimate right, if they are in the majority in the County. It recognizes the right in a Community to do without liquor if they so desire. It is based on the proposition that the will of the majority must prevail, but it gives no protection to the minority, be that minority wet or dry.

Our Governor, himself, has recognized this injustice, and appears to have been in doubt as to how far any Local Option Law ought to go in restricting the rights of the minority. I shall read from his platform:

"I am in favor of Local Option Law, with the county as a unit, though possibly where a county contains a city of more than 25,000 inhabitants the city might be treated as a separate unit."

All this clearly shows that the Bill now before us is a highly selfish piece of legislation, and is by no means local in its nature, because it permits a given locality, like a city, to be controlled by people in no way concerned with the local affairs of the people in the city, which, if left to itself would vote against any Prohibition law. A law like this ceases to be local, because it embraces too much territory, in which there are bound to be interests more or less of a conflicting character.

Why talk about local option? and refer to it as Home Rule, when the control of the question lies not in the hands of the people at home, in your own city, but in the hands of those who make up sections of the county far remote from your own. Such an option is by no means local if the affirmative vote comes entirely from one section, and the negative vote from another. I have no desire to take up the time of this House in any useless designation of the many instances in which a law such as this proves itself to be anything but local, but I respectfully submit for your consideration, and I challenge successful contradiction, when I say that you have to-day, on the statute books of your State a law which does recognize a proper unit, because the unit recognized is the neighborhood or community directly to be affected by the granting of a license. We have an ideal system under the Brooks High License Law, which has been conscientiously administered by the Judges of our State for almost thirty years. They have recognized the communities' sentiment, and have invariably recognized any reasonable protest against the granting of a license.

Our courts have consistently held that they might properly be influenced by the number and character of remonstrances against the granting of a license. The fact that we have now, 9 dry counties in this Commonwealth, conclusively shows that when the community, where there is an overwhelming sentiment against licenses grows so large as to fill a county, that fact is reflected in the refusal of all licenses. Under this bill it will be possible for the dry vote of a farming community to impose unnecessary restrictions on a manufacturing town many miles away where the overwhelming majority do want licenses to be granted. Those who want licenses granted should have a right to be heard, and in a spirit of fairness, have their wishes respected, and there is no better means of ascertaining whether such a sentiment exists than by the judicial investigation of our Courts.

I will admit, sir, that the administration of judicial functions may not always be to the satisfaction of all concerned, but I do know that the protest against our Courts seldom if ever comes from those who might have reason to complain, but from the very forces which are now agitating the passage of this Bill. I have seen with disgust how men in no way to be affected, have come into Court, and protested against the granting of a license, simply because they were opposed to saloons under any and all conditions, even though they themselves were no part of the community where the license was asked for.

When a Judge under such conditions, has refused to be guided by their protests, they have invariably, with an intolerant spirit, pursued him as an enemy to the good order of society, and have injected into his campaign for election, the spirit of their own disappointment. It is this spirit of intolerance, on the part of those who are not willing to submit to the righteous administration of our law, which induced our Governor, in his inaugural address to give expression to this sentiment: "The granting of licenses has in many counties worked harm to the judiciary. Men are chosen, judges, not on the basis of their fitness to be the great bulwarks of justice, but upon the question whether or not they will grant licenses."

Gentlemen of the House, this may be an unfortunate condition, but to my mind, it is far more preferable than the system embodied in the Bill now before you. The sooner the professional agitators and destructionists realize that they must repect the law, and give obedience to constituted authority, the sooner we will have something like law and order in our respective communities. When a judge abuses his discretion, the power is in the hands of the people to remove him, but it is time that someone offered some suggestion that those charged with the responsibility of administering the law, shall receive a more patient and sober consideration from those who are not obligated to render any judicial service.

Shall we, as a fair minded, law abiding liberty loving people give our stamp of approval to those who ensist upon such a course and claim to rule or ruin, or shall we encourage our people in a more patient consideration of the law as we find it, and do justice to all. In the City of Philadelphia alone, we have reduced licenses from 6,000 in 1888 to 1,932, in the year just past, notwithstanding that the population has increased over 700,000. To-day under the splendid administration of this law, and the supervision of the law and order society, every saloon is closed on Sunday, and our saloonkeepers as a whole, are united in upholding the law as it exists.

Mr. Speaker, nothing has done more injury to the real spirit of temperance than the intemperate efforts on the part of some people to prohibit the sale of liquors. A prohibition law in any community, whether the unit of popualtion be large or small, is after all, but a resolution on the part of some, and these only to obey it. We can see by the experience of others in states where such laws have been enacted, that it has been a failure. It has added nothing to the welfare of our people, nor has it improved the moral fibre of the people at large.

The two principal prohibition States in this Country, Maine and Kansas, have a lower average deposit in their savings banks than any other States not regulted by Prohibition.

North Dakota, one of your prohibition states, for a number of years, failed to report to the Government controller of the currency, any banks at all. New York, Connecticut, and Montana, have average deposits almost three and four times greater than those of Kansas and Maine. Here are the figures, as taken from the last federal census:

Maine, $386.48
Kansas, $176.92
New York, $509.28
Montana, $823.37
Connecticut, $473.13
North Dakota nothing at all.

So much for thrift and energy, in prohibition states as compared to those who give us liberty.

My local option friends, may be further interested to know that I find by the same census report that in the year 1903, in Prohibition Kansas there was one arrest for crime to every 76 of its population, while in Milwaukee, with its 2,145 saloons, there was only one arrest for every 142 of its population.

In the state of Maine, dry and moral, as she is supposed to be there was one divorce for every six marriages. In the wet States, such as New York there was one divorce for every 41 marriages entered into. In New Jersey there was one divorce for every forty-five marriages entered into, and in our own state, one to every twenty-two.

Allow me to call attention to the fact that Prohibition States do not of necessity encourage men to go to church.

Kansas has the lowest per centage of church members, in ratio to her population of any 12 States in her immediate part of the Country, having only a per centage of 28 4-10%. The average for the other States being 37 3-10%. The highest is Wisconsin with her per centage of 44 3-10%, and yet we all know that Wisconsin is the State which brews the beer that made Milwaukee famous.

Here in the east, dry old Maine had only 29 8-10%, and is the lowest of 9 states in the North Atlantic division, the average for these other states being 44 1-10%.

I could prolong these tables and weary this house, but what can I say to make more certain the folly of those who would ruin this Commonwealth by such pernicious legislation, but, in the Evening Bulletin a little over two weeks ago, I found the following editorial, given as a sidelight on Prohibition. I ask the indulgence of the House for a few moments while I read it:

"Statistics of the internal revenue bureau showing that 2400 and seventy-one illicit stills were seized and destroyed last year in the six southern states Alabama, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Tenessee and Virginia, in each of which there is a Statewide Prohibition, or its near equivalent, afford a side-light on the apparent spread of prohibition sentiment, and suggest that even the Federal revenue figures may not be a reliable indicator of the consumption of alcoholics.

The record of captured stills is growing larger yearly, and even the eternal vigilance of the revenue officer, who has been spurred to greater effort in the past few years, does not prevent an increase in illegal distillation, confirming the characteristic experience of States and lesser communities where an attempt has been made to create a Sahara, by law, only to produce a crop of speak-easies, pocket-barrooms and illegitimate and unregulated peddling of poisons. In the six states for which figures are quoted, the number of captured stills for twelve months has doubled in the last eight years, and the destruction of a still seldom, if ever, puts an end to the business but merely forces it to eek another cover. Official reports, showing a falling off in the Government receipts, from liquor taxation amounting to nearly $5,000,000, are less significant, as measuring the moral achievement of prohibition, in view of this demonstrated increase in the illegal manufacture of whiskey, and the white map of prohibition ought to be sprinkled liberally with dots if it is to indicate the actual spread of teetotalism."

Mr. Speaker. We gather from this report that whereever people have any desire to make use of strong drink, they will find some means of getting it, and all this will be to encourage the use of stronger drink than most people now use. I have tried to be fair I have used strong words in describing character and motives because I believe that the occasion requires it. I can imagine no greater insult to a sober and intelligent people than that which is offered by those who find it necessary in the name of morality to muzzle a free people by some prohibition law. I have not endeavored to argue this proposition upon the basis of any revenue loss to this Commonwealth, which means added taxation to those who as taxpayers must bear the burden of Government because if Prohibition is needed, and is right, I am willing to contribute my share towards the loss resulting by the revenues lost, but let me ask, gentlemen, in all sincerity. Shall we throw aside two million dollars in revenue without asking those who stand ready to make the sacrifice for some good reason to support us in so doing. Shall we make it possible to throw out of employment thousands of good men, with homes and families, and at a time like this, when work is not seeking their willing hands of labor. Is it not better to deal with those who abuse their freedom than to bring misery and starvation on thousands more who never gave us any cause to complain. Let us be just. We can afford to be fair. Nothing was ever gained by destruction. It is of more importance to us as a people to enact laws which will be respected than to give ear to the voice of a sentiment which, for a time may have the encouragement of those in authority, but which, in the end, bring misery and oppression.

"Nothing is more foolish, nothing more utterly at variance with sound policy" says that courageous and broad minded ex-president of our Country, William Howard Taft," "than to enact a law which by reason of conditions surrounding the community is incapable of enforcement. Such instances are sometimes presented by sumptuary laws, by which the sale of intoxicating liquors are prohibited under penalties in localities, where the public sentiment of the immediate community does not, and will not sustain the enforcement of the law. In such cases, the legislation usually is the result of agitation by people, in the country districts, who are determined to make their fellow citizens in the city better. The enactment of the law comes through the country representatives who form a majority of the legislature, but the enforcement of the law is among the people, who are generally opposed to its enactment, and under such circumstances, the law is a dead letter. The constant violation of any law leads to the demoralization of all laws."

Gentlemen of the House, nothing indeed is more important to-day in the discussion and consideration of the Bill, now before us than to stand firm in the performance of our duty. If the State can pass between the citizen and his church,—his bible,—his conscience and God, upon questions of his own personal habits, and decide what he must do, on purely moral grounds, then it has authority to invade every other channel of our private life.

It has no right to invade the sanctity of our homes. It has no right to lift the curtain and gaze upon the cherished scenes of our domestic life, in its endeavor to make us bend our knees to an unholy effort to assume a guardianship, distasteful to every instinct of manly character. These efforts to deny men the free exercise of their liberty are based upon the assumption on the part of some that we are no longer able to enjoy the blessings which ages past have given us to enjoy. He who governs the universe and made man as the Lord of all Creation, made freedom a necessary part of his moral and physical development. He gave us the capacity to choose between good and evil and he made this freedom the crowning glory of all our understanding.

With this freedom, and the light of heaven to guide us, in order to see right from wrong, we will continue to be men, and with manly firmness struggle to maintain and always defend the heritage our fathers gave us. Remember this, that God rules, and the spirit of liberty still lives.

Mr. HERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am aware of the fact that it is very hard to speak to an audience the size of this, and in the physical condition this audience must be in. but Mr. Speaker, I feel that this question is big enough and broad enough for us to endure a little physical hardship in order to settle this question, and I want to say to my friend from Erie, this question nor any other question will ever be settled until it is settled right. I want to say to you gentlemen that I have no apologies to make for what I am about to say. I realize that I am hardly equal to this occasion, that there are many accomplishments to which I lay no claims but I possess one virtue of which I am proud, I am a home loving American, and as such I believe in the American form of Government in its fullest sense. I am a firm believer in my fellow American's ability to govern themselves, and I am perfectly willing to show my faith in their intelligence and justice, by giving them a full and free opportunity to decide their own destiny.

I do not believe in the concentration of all power in the hands of any one man or set of men, and for this single reason if for no other, I am for this measure.

I believe that the principle underlying Local Option is right, that it is Democratic, Republican, and above all else American.

I feel sure that we will never reach our highest ideal in government, until we accept and put into practice, that same underlying principle.

This bill is heralded throughout the length and breadth of this State as a temperance measure. I have read and reread and studied every section it contains, and I fail to find anywhere, a single word, or a single line that prohibits any man from indulging in alcoholic beverages, neither do I find any where a single word or a single line that prohibits any man from manufacturing alcoholic liquors. But I do see within it, great possibilities for the future, in that its enactment into law will restore to the people of Pennsylvania, a privilege of self government, wrongfully taken from them, when the Legislature placed the granting of privileges in the hands of our judges, and forced our courts which were instituted solely to administer equal justice to all men, forced our courts, I say, to become the very instrument, that grants for a specified sum, special privileges to a few men among all the citizens that reside under the jurisdiction of that court. Is it strange, my friends, that the people have lost their long time respect for the dignity of our courts and the justice of their decisions? Have we not brought about this condition by the very laws we have enacted and are enforcing to-day?

Suppose it to be true that when the Brook's High License Law was passed, it was the very best regulator, the very best measure for controlling the sale of liquors that could have been devised. Is there any other business of like magnitude, in this State, the laws for the control of which, have not been changed in the last thirty (30) years, and they were changed my friends for two reasons, the business itself required it, and the people demanded the change. It is undisputed that these were good and sufficient reasons for changing these laws. Today the self same reasons obtain why the law governing the sale of Alcoholic liquors should be changed. No one can successfully dispute this statement, the liquor people themselves admitted that the law is unsatisfactory, when they, during the sessions of 1911-13, used every power at their command to change the present law by the passage of a measure known as the Kline Liquor Bill.

Gentlemen, let us pass this Local Option Bill, and when it has, like the law we have to-day become inefficient, and unsatisfactory, we can trust the people of that day to so reconstruct it, as to best serve their interests.

If this bill becomes a law, it will be used to prohibit the license sale of liquor where it should not be sold, in counties where the people do not want it.

Again if this bill becomes a law, it will not interfere with the issueing of licenses in counties where the people want liquor sold.

Are the temperance people for this measure? If they are broad-minded, my friends, they will be a unit for its enactment and its enforcement.

Are the liquor people in favor of this bill? If they are honest, if they want the public to believe their words, they will support it to the last man, and if they refuse to support this measure, we will convict them of insincerity out of their own mouths.

Every gentlemen upon the floor of this House knows or ought to know that the men engaged in this business are organized. In fact they have one of the most complete organizations that money and brains can produce. In these progressive times, no great enterprise is complete without a direct medium whereby the object and aims of the organization, can be kept continually before the people.

This organization is no exception, gentlemen, it has a complete editorial staff and publishes an official newspaper, known as the "Liquor Dealer's Journal" This sheet is official; nothing is printed therein except it has first passed the censor. Now let me read to you what the liquor people through their official paper, have published as being their attitude toward the granting of licenses, and the voice the people should have in the issuing of licenses in every community. Listen,. "Where the people voluntarily agree that they do not want saloons, there should be none." What do you want plainer than that, gentlemen? Every supporter of this bill agrees with them in that statement. Furthermore, at a convention of the National Model License League, held in the City of Louisville, Ky., that nation-wide body passed some plain resolutions one of which I want to read to you. It is designated by them as the ninth resolution and it may be found in the published minutes of that meeting. Resolved, That the National Model License League reiterates its conviction that the sale of alcoholic beverages can be regulated by providing that licenses shall renew themselves every year until canceled by a vote of the people, or by a conviction of a violation of a law." What could you ask plainer than that, gentlemen? That is the best definition of Local Option I ever read, and it is the announced result of the conclusions of a national body of liquor men, called together to consider the best means to promote their business. Now we maintain that if these gentlemen are sincere, if they believe what they ask and evidently expect us to believe, their own printed convictions, then, there should be an end to this discussion and this measure should receive the united support of this House, because there is now, no difference of opinion between us as to the wisdom of allowing the people to determine this matter for themselves. But from what we have seen and heard here today, and from my recollections of a similar scene upon the floor of this House upon a former occasion, we are compelled to question the sincerity of the organization that made these declarations of principles.

At the last general election, a majority of the citizens of this state declared—voluntarily—by their ballots, that they favored Local Option, and by the election of his excellency the Governor, Martin G. Brumbaugh, positively demanded the passage of this bill at the hands of this Legislature.

Are we going to set up our judgment in opposition to the expressed will of the people of this great Commonwealth? It is very evident that our Governor recognizes the wishes of the people, for he commenced his ddress to this House with a prayer and ended it with a supplication that we support him in giving the people County Local Option, and as a pledge to his sincerity, he stands today as sponsor for this measure that we have before us for our consideration. Are the people to demand of their Governor, certain legislation and have the Legislature tie his hands, so that he cannot give to the people the very thing for which they elected him? I have heard gentlemen upon the floor of this House boast of their great love for the people of this grand old Commonwealth. I, like them, love this people, but unlike these gentlemen, I am willing to trust those I love, and I shall show them my sincerity by voting for this bill.

The opponents of this measure have offered many objections, but no real arguments against the passage of this bill. One of the most common objections is that its enforcement will destroy personal liberty. What, I ask, do they mean by personal liberty? Surely they do not mean a man's right to sell liquor. That is not a personal right; that is a privilege granted under restrictions for a definite period of time. Every man here knows that. Then they must mean their right to drink liquor. This bill as I said before, does not dispute the right of any man to drink, neither does it prohibit any man from drinking liquors. It deals entirely with the right of the courts to grant licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors, and conveys to the court that right, only, after a majority of the voters under the jurisdiction of that court have given their voluntary consent. No man's personal liberty is disturbed by this measure for all the personal liberty he has, as regards this matter, is his right to drink liquor, and he will still have that right, when this bill has become a law. Gentlemen, there is a vast difference between personal liberty and civil liberty.

Personal liberty is the very corner stone upon which has rested every despotic government that ever blacked the pages of history, or arrested and destroyed the progress of the human race.

Personal liberty is the law that has guided the hand of rapine and murder from the days of Cain down through all the years until it has reached its greatest triumph in the present destruction of the nations across the waters.

Civil liberty is the foundation of all Representative Government. It is the brake with which we curb the personal ambitions of men. Civil liberty is Americas definition of freedon. It is our answer to every man, who seeks to oppress humanity to further his selfish ends. My friends remember this, the personal rights and personal liberties of men, end, where the personal rights and personal liberties of their neighbors begin.

Mr. Speaker they tell us that this question is a moral issue, that it is not within the province of any legislative body to consider this question. That it is utterly impossible to legislate to make people moral or temperate. They tell us there is but one power that can make this State or this Nation a moral or temperate people, and that, that power eminates from Him who passed through the Garden of Gethsemane and was crucified on Calvary. Let me say to those who believe that last statement, and I am one of them, that this same man, this man of sorrows, left his work and the building of his kingdom here to your hands and mine, and that there is no evil nor any combination of evils, that has been and is at present so destructive to the upbuilding of that Kingdom, and hence to the best interests of the people of this State and Nation, as drunkeness with all its attendant evils. Will any man here dare say, then, that it is not his duty, and the business of this House to consider this or any other measure, that will in any way reduce, or do away with, even in a small degree, an acknowledged evil?

Gentlemen, our fathers enacted laws, and we have them to this day, to punish by imprisonment any and all persons, who steal or otherwise trample upon or interfere with the rights of others. We have a law that provides, that, if I wilfully take the life of any person, I shall pay for that crime with my life. We thought this law of enough importance two years ago to provide by statute, the manner and means by which offenders should pay the penalty. I have never heard any one dispute the right of our fathers to enact these laws. I always supposed that these measures were enacted—first to protect the rights and safeguard the lives of the people—second, to protect man from himself, by keeping before him constantly, not alone the penalty for crime, but the wonderful possibilities of self control, gradually raising the standard of right living in the man himself. If this is anything my friends, it is legislated morality. The measure that we have under consideration to-day—this Local Option Bill—contains no departure from these principles. It is only the upbuilding and carrying out of the princples of our fathers. Will any man say, then, that we have no right to legislate to promote morals? We believe that the enactment of this bill into law, will enable a majority of the citizens of every county in this State, to protect their interests and the interests of their children against a power that in altogether too many instances, they are unable under present conditions to overcome. Gentlemen, have said, that if this bill becomes a law conditions will be worse than they are at present—that more liquor will be sold and consumed without restriction, than is sold and consumed under our present high license law. Is this true? And if it is true, then why my friends; do we find all the organized liquor interest here doing all in their power to kill this bill? They do not themselves defend their business from a moral standpoint. It has been in the past and is here to-day only as a matter of so much money invested, so many dollars and cents. Does any man suppose that these moneyed interests would fight this measure if its enactment into law, would mean a larger field for their products. Would put more dollars into their pockets—if you please. My friends shall we place money interests above the welfare of our homes—above our hopes and aspirations for our sons and daughters? Is it possible that we as intelligent men, are going to say by our votes to-day that we love our wives, our children and our homes less than we do somebody's dollars—that we would rather have their money than give to our children and our children's children, the opportunity to rule themselves, and seek happiness and quiet amid surroundings of their own choosing. No my friends, it is not a question of whether there will be more or less liquor sold. It is a question of whether the people shall say where it shall be lawfully sold. Let me call your attention to the present law. What right may I inquire has any republican form of Government to enact and enforce a law that by its very provisions renders unnecessarily burdensome the expression of the will and the wishes of the people. Such a law is the Brook's High License Law. No longer ago than last summer, the Supreme Court of this State decided that any judge, having the right to grant licenses, is justified in refusing any and all licenses, when a petition signed by a majority of all the voters in any given district is properly presented to him. Then under our present law we have a form of Local Option, but the manner of putting it into effect is so cumbersome and the labor necessary to get the expression of the will of the people is well nigh impossible. Gentlemen, the present law as interpreted is unjust in that it requires only the names of twelve citizens to petition the court to grant a license in any community, while at the same time under this decision, it takes a majority of all the citizens in that same community to keep the saloon from within its borders. Is this right? Is it just? My friends let us do away with all this unnecessary labor, all this unfairness by giving to the citizens of every county, the opportunity to decide this question at the polls. But now they tell us, my friends, that the settling of this question by ballot, would cause disturbance and confusion at the election. I grant that there will be discussion. Every great public question has caused discussion and difference of opinion, and God help this country when great questions no longer cause discussion and difference of opinion. I would call your attention to the fact that the present method of granting licenses is one of constant discussion and continual controversy. Petitions must be procured by the applicant and petitions of remonstrance go up and down throughout every community. Then there are the hearings before the courts, when weeks of the court time is taken up, and thousands of dollars of the people's money is swallowed up in the deciding of these cases,—not every three years as provided in this bill, but every year. Is any one surprised that this question should cause discussion? As long as anything is manufactured and sold in this country that makes men brutes, slaves to their own appetites, destroyers of their own homes, and fathers of weak and degenerate sons and daughters, just as long as mothers are compelled to see their children starve and their prospects for the future blighted through drink, this question will be a just subject for discussion.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen, is it not a fact that every civilized state and nation has a right to control the actions of individuals. When in so doing they safeguard the lives of their citizens. How can gentlemen truthfully say then, that we have no right to consider this question? That it interferes with their business—that the passage of this measure would destroy their business. Let me give you an illustration. When our state Commissioner of Health sent his inspectors into every village and farm during the past year, telling us that we must move our barns and tear out our sewers because their overflow eventually reached our streams and polluted the waters. Were we consulted? Did they ask us if we could afford to make these changes? No, the State said it was within its right, when it sacrificed us to the public health. The proprietor of a saloon or a Hotel pays his money to the state and the courts grant him a license to sell liquor for one year. He lives up to his contract—industrial disturbances arise, riots break out, the state's officers enter his place of business and close his bar for an indefinite time. Did they consult the proprietor? He had paid his license—he had lived up to his contract. No, they closed his bar because it was a menace to the public good. My friends, the people's decision voluntarily made will surely be no more arbitrary, no more injurious to the rights of individuals, than our present laws that are recognized as right and just by all nations and peoples and without which we could not long exist. In a democratic form of government, the will of a majority of its citizens prevails. This is Local Option, pure and simple. This is what we are asking you to restore to the people of this State. Not the right, the present law gives us, the right, but restore to us the means whereby we can voluntary give expression to that right. By this manner of expression the saloon will remain in those counties where a majority express a wish to retain it, and will go out to those where a majority have no use for it. They tell us Mr. Speaker that we have laws enough, that what we want is not more laws but a strict enforcement of what are already upon the Statute Books. They charge that we do not enforce the laws that govern the sale of liquor. Let me say to you that our very inability to enforce these laws, is one of the strongest arguments why we should change our method of dealing with the saloon.

Under our present system, the saloon is a legally licensed business and charges of violation of law must be made and substantiated by competent witnessses before the court, before we can obtain a revocation of the license. Now I submit, my friends, that in order to procure the evidence necessary to convict, we are obliged to hang around these saloons as spies, a business so contemptible that decent people shrink from the task and only attempt it as a last resort to obtain justice, or we must depend for our evidence upon individuals, who because of their unfortunate appetites are the willing slaves and tools of the proprietor. When we take these unfortunate men and women before the courts as witnesses, their evidence is impeached because of their looseness and instability of character, and our charges fall not from lack of proof, but from conditions over which we have no control. Now may friends you know why we do not enforce the law. Give us Local Option and these conditions will be remedied, because this act will effect those counties where the saloon is voted out and in those counties every man that sells liquor becomes a wilful violator of the law, and the fact of his having sold any liquor will be proof of his guilt, and convict him before the court. Now Mr. Speaker, I come to their last argument, the Gibraltar, from behind whose Legislative made walls, the organized liquor interests of Pennsylvania have been able this far to throttle the will of the people, to destroy our sons and daughters, to crowd our alms-houses, our asylums our penitentiaries, our sanitariums, and our institutions for feeble minded, until there is no longer room within their walls for the victims of this traffic. I speak, sir, of the revenue that this business pours into the treasury of this State in exchange for the privilege of making paupers and criminals of our children, and it does that and does more than that. It adds 50 per cent. to the burdens of organized society. It destroys by 25 per cent. man's capacity for labor, and labor, my friends, produces the wealth of this country. It not only destroys man in his strength but it is guilty of a crime so heinous, so devilish, that it is beyond the conception of the human mind. It reaches out its hands and cripples and destroys the unborn babe, it unfits men and women to reproduce their specia and any state or nation, I care not how proud or strong it may be, that fails to conserve the health and strength of its manhood and womanhood will lose its greatness, and from an economic standpoint is inviting sure disaster.

I will not burden you with a great array of figures, that no one can comprehend. I leave that to the opponents of this bill. I shall merely state that not more than 6 per cent. of the revenue of this State comes from the sale and manufacture of liquors, and that there is not a man within the sound of my voice, but that if he will but think for one moment of the condition in his own County, will realize that for every dollar that he gets in revenue from the sale of liquor the tax payers of his County pays five dollars of their hard-earned money for that one dollar of revenue, and yet there are men who will argue that the State is making money through its partnership with this business.

But they tell us that revenue is not all the financial advantage derived. That the millions of dollars invested in this industry gives employment to labor. Listen, my friends, for these are facts, for every one million dollars invested in the manufacture of liquor, 94 men are employed and for every one million dollars invested in all other industries, 560 men are employed. Six times as many men are given labor in other lines of business upon the same capital invested, and yet the laboring man wonders why he has no employment. Take the wealth employed in the liquor industries and invested in other lines of business and you will do away with your army of unemployed, and solve the greatest problem that faces America today. And I might add further, that, then, perhaps it might not seem necessary, for gentlemen, to pass resolution upon the floor of this House in condemnation of the only man, who has during the months that passed, and is today, standing between our loved ones and hell—as described by Sherman The Czar of all Russia recognized that this was a question of economics in his country, and despite his great and pressing need of revenue at this critical time, went so far as to prohibit the sale and manufacture of liquor within his borders, and today with forty per cent of his men from the farms and factories at the front with his armies, he still produces from eight to twenty per cent. more products than he was able to produce with all those men at home with free access to liquor. What has proven true in Russia, is true here since the general effects of liquor is the same upon all men. Yes, this is a question of finance, and it is only good sound business sense and a matter of right and justice to turn the control of this business over into the hands of the people who have in the past, and must in the future furnish the money to finance this State and her great institutions. Yes, this revenue seems to cover more sins than charity, and it has caused more misery than war or pestilence. Yes, money is a word of magic. It closes heaven's gate to many and opens the portals to none. My friends, money is a mighty poor exchange for righteousness, for righteousness exalteth a nation.

Gentlemen, gentlemen, in the interests of right and justice, in the name of Him whose words of prophecy look down upon this House day and night from yonder wall.

(On a tablet set in the wall of the ceiling of the House are these words:

"And thou shalt know the truth
And the truth shall make you free.")

Let us take the people into our confidence, and let them vote their share of stock in the management of their own business.

Mr. RAMSEY. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, in rising to speak against the measure that is before us, I do so, reminded of two things: one is that the patience of this House has been very grateful for more than two hours, and another thing is that I am sure if I should talk for the same length of time that has already been consumed I might not be able to change one vote upon this question, but there are two or three points, perhaps, that I might remind you of that you were reminded of at the opening of this argument, and I do so feeling that I am understood by each member of this House. One of these questions is the party platform which has been talked about so much since thhe introduction of this bill. I am speaking to you, gentlemen, as a Republican; I am speaking to you gentlemen as a member of the State Executive Committee of the Republican party of Pennsylvania, which assembled in Pittsburgh and which committee did not at that time place in its platform a local option pledge. And why, gentlemen, did it not? Simply for this reason, that at that time, the primaries had been held and there were more than two-thirds of the members nominated on the Republican party that had gone before their constituency on the direct issue of local option or no local option, and the republican party did not see fit to place a plank in its platform that more than two-thirds of its members were to go before the people elected, or nominated rather, on a direct opposition to this local option. Therefore, my friends, that issue was carried into the November election, and it is needless for me to remind you, as I am reminded myself that the people have ruled upon this question We are not taking anything from the people at this particular time. The people have sent you and I here and although there was a personal platform of His Excellency, the Governor of this Commonwealth, which said to all that he himself believed that the best way to handle this question was through local option. Yet you and I are here, elected by a constituency to which we must return and give an account of ourselves, whether we are true to them or false; and in that same thought we have been told that this question should be viewed not from a district point of view, but for the welfare of the State of Pennsylvania. I say to you, gentlemen, what does this bill call for. Is the bill a district measure? Does it say that the entire people of Pennsylvania shall vote upon this question? I think not. It says particularly that if it becomes a law, upon the petition of 25 per cent. of the voters in every county or in any county unit of the State, the question shall be submitted to whom? To the people of that particular county. Then I say to you, gentlemen It becomes a particularly district measure, and you and I can view it as a district question. Then, again, my friends, and I am not going to tire you very long, I want to refer to the particular method that has been used in the operation of this measure through the House. It is an old story to us, and probably I ought not to refresh your memory, because it is as fresh as mine, but I believe, gentlemen, that if a vote had been taken upon this question two weeks, aye, a week after this session convened, there would have been an overwhelming majority against this measure. And I say to you, that the methods that have been used and the thought that has been thrown out, that the patronage that comes from those in authority in this State might be used to coerce, nay not to coerce, I will not say that, but to have you change your views on this question, will be determined very largely by the vote which will be taken here today. We must all answer personally for that.

Now, another question has been very largely discussed throughout the Commonwealth in reference to this measure, and that is when it has been spoken of the powerful and strong liquor lobby that has been in this House, threats have been made, notices have been given to the people of the Commonwealth that there is a lobby that is going about the House and that ought to be taken from the floor. I want to ask you, gentlemen, is it any worse, is it any worse for the men who are engaged in this business, the men whom the State of Pennsylvania grants a license to do business, the men who have their interest, their entire interest, in the business, is it any worse for them to maintain an interest and a lawful lobby in this House than it is for the Governor of the Commonwealth to send his servants throughout the State lobbying in favor of the bill?

Gentlemen, this measure as I view it, will not correct the evils which our friends on the other side complain of. To my mind, there are but two ways to handle this "curse" as they put the question in this State. One, to my mind, is elimination. And if the liquor traffic is responsible for all the crime, for all the misery, for all the insane, for all the paupers, for all the criminals in this State, then I say to you, the only way to handle it is elimination. Now if we cannot eliminate it, then let us regulate it, and this measure, as I see it, does not take this matter out of the hands of the overworked judiciary or the men who want to get rid of this, because if the county votes wet, what happens? Why, it goes right back to that Brooks High License Law, that we have heard so much about. But what is it, after all, when you look at it carefully. I can only say this, that I feel this is what this local option bill will do. If in my county, they should vote that there shall be no license granted for three years, does it eliminate the business? No, it does not, gentlemen. It gives the rich man an opportunity to fill his wine cellar with booze, because he can buy it, but the poor fellow will have to walk or ride to Philadelphia for a glass of beer.

Now, gentlemen, there has been reference made to a certain bill that has gone through this House, which I opposed, and on which the argument was that the people should take care of it, and that was the election of the city treasurer in third class cities. I opposed that as I oppose this local option bill today, on the same principle. In 1913, more than a majority of the people of my district wanted me to seek and to do all I could to pass the Clark bill. I did it and today I am here voicing, as I believe, the sentiment of the district which I represent, the first Delaware county district, because my opponent, who was upon the Local Option ticket received seven hundred and sixty-nine votes and I am consistent, as I believe you will be when the roll is called upon this question. I trust, gentlemen, that we will remember that we are responsible to those who have elected us, and whether we be right or wrong in the minds of some people, let us at least have the courage to go back home and take our medicine.

Mr. LANIUS. Mr. Speaker, I am not a follower of the Billy Sunday "hit-the-trail" crowd. I am not here in the interest of the ministers alone. This is not a campaign of the ministers of Pennsylvania nor is this a political hysteria stirred up by Billy Sunday. This is the result of the calm deliberation on the part of the people of Pennsylvania, not for a day but for several years. This issue of local option is not a new issue as some of the speakers have intimated. You will remember that two years ago the Local Option bill appeared in this House and was succeeded by a prohibition amendment. That prohibition amendment, Mr. Speaker, if I recall distinctly and correctly, received ninety votes and there was no great demonstration in or about the Capitol at that particular time.

You speak of the majority rule. You speak of the people's right to say whether there shall be or shall not be license in the several counties of this great State. Mr. Speaker, what does the granting of licenses consist of today? Is it a right or is it a privilege? If I begin as a merchant, do I go to the Court and ask for a license for permission to open a store? No. A butcher, a grocer, a merchant or a professional man, if he has qualified along particular lines, opens his place of business and takes his chances. But, Mr. Speaker, I insist that when a man desires to open a saloon or a bottling house or start a brewery into operation he has absolutely got to get the concensus of opinion in that particular district. I have never heard any man tell me that he has gone into a ward, a township, or a city or borough where he knew the sentiment of the people was against the saloon and was dependent upon twelve men to hold him in. Why? Because impliably and acceptably and with an understanding based on the fundamental principles of this government, he has realized that the majority is ruling; and he has not dared to upset that majority. But if it only required twelve men to secure the license, if that was sufficient, then why the right of remonstrance and how shall these remonstrances be received by the courts? If I have a petition signed by twelve men asking that a license be granted to me and a similar remonstrance signed by nine is handed to the Court on the same day, how does the Court decide? Why, every member of this House will say, why, certainly, he granted the license because there were twelve men as against nine; and most certainly that would be what we would expect. Mr. Speaker, when the remonstrance has twelve and the petitioner has twelve then what follows? Then the matter is settled by the discretion of the Court, and again we yield; but, Mr. Speaker, we object and vigorously object when petitions signed by four and five times as many as the petitioner's application for a license are turned down; when the people have absolutely stated that they believe that it is not necessary and they don't want it and the court clamly and coolly, I say, refuses to recognize that petition, then sir, I think it is time to change that law. I have an instance in my mind which occurred in the State of Pennsylvania in this year where one hundred and forty-four electors signed a remonstrance against a hotel; where twenty-four signed for it; and what happened? You say they did not get the license; but I tell you, sir, they did. What do you suppose the people of that vicinity think of the Court? Now, you talk about the integrity of the court. The Court must have its integrity held up, but what confidence can the people of this State have in the Court if it has got to be considered, if the people say that we are being broken into? If this confidence is broken down, if they see these things happen, why those men who fear the thing, those timid and ignorant, will soon believe that the whole Court of the State is wrong and cannot be trusted. Most certainly the Judges themselves do not wish that they have the power to decide these licenses. They have asked time and time again, and the lawyers have petitioned this Legislature and its representatives, to take this out of the courts so that the integriy of he Court will be held up; and it is right.

But what do the liquor men say on this issue? Mr. Herman has read to you from the Liquormen's Journal: Where the people of a district do not voluntarily want a hotel, a licensed hotel, there should be none. Again, that the license should be renewed until it is canceled by a vote of the people. Is this an endorsement of local option or is it an endorsement of prohibition? This is their own words, from their own official journal, if you please, sir. That is what they say. But how are the people of a district going to deside if not given the opportunity to vote?

Mr. Speaker, this is not a question as to whether I am wet or whether I am dry. This is a question whether I, as a representatives of the people, I, who have said so often that I believed in the cardinal principles of the American Government that the majority should rule—what right have I then, sir, to come here and tell my people back home that you shall not vote upon this question; I will vote for you? Mr. Speaker, I ask you who did the voting last year? It was the people. Oh, yes, we believe in the majority rule last November. We believed in the majority rule last May. Why, certainly the people are fit to do anything. They have been referred to as a mob, a rabble; but it was the same mob and the same rabble that sent every one last man of us here today, and then we gave them credit for good judgment. Mr. Speaker, this is a question of morals. They speak of personal liberty and yet in this House, at this session, by an almost unanimous vote we passed a law restricting the sale of heroin, and derivative salts. A citizen of the United States is prohibited, under the Harrison Act, from using morphine. Why? On this same ground that they argue that a man has the right to take a glass of liquor he has the right to take a morphine pill if he wishes. It is his own life and it is his own health that he is jeopardizing; and yet, we stepped in in this House, I say, and passed that act restricting the sale of heroin with a great vote. We never stopped to think of the personal rights of the man. No; we were too honest for that. But today we have got to look with a microscope at this bill. Now, Mr. Speaker, as to personal liberty, let me say that I earn my salary in this House and then go forth to the gaming table and gamble it away. Is that local option? Why should I not be permitted to squander my earnings if I so see fit? It is a matter of my own. But the law says, no, it is ours, and they prohibit it. That is personal liberty also. Personal liberty—they say you should not heed your neighbor when he comes home after drinking and goes into the house and abuses his wife; that is not making a disturbance.

Gentlemen, in York County, Pennsylvania, in the last eight years, if I remember distinctly there have been eight murders. A proud record; and, gentlemen, I aver on the floor of this House that each and every murder was directly traced to the excessive use of liquor. From the Eastern Penitentiary there came what was a petition without parallel addressed to the members of this House, asking for the passage of the local option bill. A man who drinks, science tells us and medical men admit, does not have the same vigorous mentality of his more temperate brother, and, consequently, the apetite of that man along certain lines will eventually overpower. He becomes an enemy to society. There is no doubt about that.

I am taking up these points because some of the preceding speakers have touched on these lines. They are not the question at issue. The question at issue is, shall the people rule; shall the majority of the people have the right to say whether this nuisance, whether this hotel, whether this drinking house shall be permitted in their locality or not. I have shown to you the right of petition and remonstrance. I have shown you that the people do have something to say or this would not be called the granting of a license, a privilege in the eyes of the Court. I have shown you how the Court has begun to be looked upon as being not the proper place and proper hand into which to place this because it jeopardizes the good reputation of that Court, and the people of this State have from time to time, made radical changes; but that was all right. It was all right that they vote to make the constitutional amendment which gives the people of this State the right to choose its own United States Senators.

That was right; the people wanted it. It was all right when they passed a State-wide primary law, and then, Mr. Speaker, in our great compassion for the poor working children we passed a child labor law, and also a woman's labor law, but this law, which would directly benefit society and help these working children, this law they shall not have because we gave them the right to earn their own bread. Mr. Speaker, I cannot understand as a member of labor,—I lost my eyes in the cause of labor—I have stood shoulder to shoulder with them and I know their aches and pains, their hardships and privations, and I know what they are thinking about, how they feel, but I cannot understand how organized labor, or any laboring man can be against the passage of a Local Option Bill. It means increased wages and more efficiency.

I cannot see why he cannot go along with the manufacturer. The manufacturer realizes that the man who drinks on a Saturday night and returns to the job on Monday morning, may not be intoxicated, I say, but he is nervous and there may be an accident and then comes the enforcement of the workmen's compensation act. The man who drinks should realize that his skill is being taken from him slowly and surely; he should realize he is undermining his brain and his nerves and his skill is leaving him. He should realize that the greater the skill the greater is his ability to command wages. And, Mr. Speaker, you talk about the nickels he spends. Total them up, Mr. Speaker, and I will tell you you will find in a year a total of less than what some of the labor unions this State have struck for,—a five or ten per cent. increase in wages, but they squander that every year without a strike, but they say they have that right; and they have that right so long as it is continued. But they do not have the right to say that we have not the right to submit it to the people. We are asking only to submit this question to the people,—all these common people we love so on election day. We are not trusting this question to the Y. M. C. A., or to the Women's Clubs, or to the Anti-Saloon League. We are entrusting it to the citizens of Pennsylvania and our own particular constituency. They are the rabble, they are the mob; those are the people who are possessed with this political hysteria, which some of the preceding speakers have referred to. That is the political hysteria, the hysteria that calls for a man to go and vote for me on election day,—the kind I like at that particular time; but I see a distinct difference, they say, when it comes down to letting that man use his own intelligence and his own volition on this great moral issue.

Mr. Speaker, this is truly a representative body. A representative body is only a representative body insofar as it carries out the wishes of the people. You cannot represent anybody but yourself or special interests if you are going to be deaf to the cries of the people. I believe in the people ruling. I believe it so well and so firmly that I would rather be defeated for supporting this measure, than to be re-elected for having voted against it. Is this, then, a question of party politics? Mr. Speaker, I am a born Democrat. I am not one from opportunity; I believe in the old Jeffersonian principles of democracy. I have stumped the southwestern portion of my State on many occasions and I have never attempted to say or to mislead these people into thinking that I ever believed anything except that the majority shall rule and that the rule should be in the hands of the people. Mr. Kitts, of Erie, a colleague of mine, for whom I have great respect, has said that this was not a regularly drawn up plank in the Democratic platform. I beg to differ with the good gentleman. He said when they felt the pulse of the delegates they found there were not enough there to support local option. Is there a man in this House,—is there a man in the State of Pennsylvania, who believes that if that condition had prevailed, they would not have seized the opportunity to see that not even an executive committee was appointed to draft that platform, that they might insert this plank? Mr. Speaker, that platform went before the people. It was understood, it was accepted, it was the platform of the Democratic party, recognized by the people and endorsed and received their stamp of approval, because it was never referred to. This transaction in this convention was never referred to throughout the entire campaign and never came to light until this morning. Mr. Speaker, it would have been within the power of that delegation of those several committeemen to have come back to Harrisburg, upon the call of a certain number, as they did several years ago and there to have demanded the withdrawal of that plank because it was not properly drawn up. But that petition was never circulated and there was no call, because the rank and the file of the Democratic party believed and accepted that plank in that platform, and it was the one,—the one vital issue in the campaign which defeated the Honorable Vance C. McCormick for Governor of this Commonwealth.

There was nothing else referred to, and the only thing I heard among the rank and file was wet and dry. Child labor, workmen's compensation, and everything else went, and as a gentleman this morning said "His Excellency received a few votes because they believed he was this way, and a great many thousand, because other people believed he was the other." That goes to show that in the minds of certain people there was no question as to the issue. The issue was clearly local option, and Mr. McCormick was defeated.

Now, as to my own position in his campaign, I headed a petition in North Codorus Township for him. We redeemed that petition in the primary of May, 1914, by 95 per cent. of the vote in that township. We redeemed that petition and similar petitions through every other township and borough in my district by giving him 85 per cent. of the vote n the Fourth district of York county, which I have the honor to represent. They knew, yes, God bless them, they knew, those sturdy old men back home knew, that Mr. McCormick stood for local option, but they voted for him, and in the fall of 1914, when I went through that district and asked them once more to rally to the standard of democracy, once more to stand by the men that they themselves had nominated; once more to prove the old democracy, to come forward as they had always come forward from that rock-ribbed section of democracy in York county they came forward with practically the same vote they gave Woodrow Wilson in 1912 and returned me here.

Was my position then masked? Certainly not, certainly not. I told them night after night that I believed in the principles of democracy, in the cardinal principles of my party and in the majority rule, and I asked them to vote for that ticket. They endorsed it and every other township and borough, ward and district, that carried for the Democratic Governor candidate last fall also endorsed the Local Option plank. I scold no man in this House for his vote, and I apologize to no man for mine. I am a free born American citizen and I am here to do what I believe is the proper thing on this occasion. Submit it to the people and have them either repudiate it or accept it. I beg for no votes. I asked for no votes. But I say, sir, and I predict, sir, that this campaign which has been started, will carry on until this particular question is a political question of such magnitude that it will not stop at local option; it will not stop at State prohibition, but you will get National prohibition.

Mr. STEIN. Mr. Speaker and my honored colleagues, I can truthfully say that I did not intend, after listening to the various eloquent and capable and thorough arguments presented on both sides of this question, of taking any more of the time of this House, and yet I feel, and I honestly feel that I should not be true to the people of my district, who sent me here, I should not be true to the citizens of my community, who trust me, I should not be true to the principles in which I and my people back home, thoroughly and implicitly believe, if I permitted these slanders, if I permitted these insults, cast upon an honorable people, to go unchallenged and undenied. If we are to believe most of the proponents of this bill then we are confronted with a moral, with a social issue, that the saloon is the curse of society, and that the liquor man has no place under God's sun. This, my friends, and I address you ladies and gentlemen, as well as my colleagues, I address myself to the intelligence and fairness of every man and woman in this State; this, I say to you my friends, is an absolute lie. There are just as honorable men in the calling as those who would parade their purity and politics for selfish gain by trying to ruin the people in the business.

We are told that all society is arrayed against him that furnisheth his neighbor with drink, and we even have the passage misquoted and garbled in order to furnish argument for our friends on the other side, but, ladies and gentlemen, and Mr. Speaker and my colleagues, this is a momentous day in the State of Pennsylvania, and we cannot afford to have our judgment beclouded by passion, by anger, by hate, or by spite. Let us be fair. And I say to you again, in a spirit of fairness that as against the man who opposes the men in the liquor business, I present to you the testimony of the lives of the truest citizens of Pennsylvania,—aye, and of all time and eternity. My friends will sneer,—my friends of the cloth,—and say he knows not whereof he speaketh, and I say to you, ladies and gentlemen, and Mr. Speaker, that William Penn, the founder of this Commonwealth, in all his life, stood for liberty of conscience, liberty of thought, and left his home in England that he might establish this glorious Commonwealth, and with its establishment, as one of the human blessings, he erected his brewery at Pennstown, which he operated his entire life.

George Washington had his distillery at Mount Vernon which he bequeathed in his will.

Patrick Henry had a Public House to which he gave his personal attention at Hanover Court House, Virginia.

Abraham Lincoln had his country tavern at New Salem, Illinois, and as a member of the Illinois Legislature had this to say:—

"Prohibition will work a great injury to the cause of Temperance. It is a species of intemperance within itself for it goes beyond the bounds of reason in that it attempts to control a man's appetite by legislation and in making crimes out of things that are not crimes. A prohibition law strikes a blow at the very principles upon which our government is founded. I have always been found laboring to protect the weaker classes from the stronger and I never can give my consent to such a law as you propose to enact. Until my tongue shall be silenced by death I shall continue to fight for the rights of man."

Thomas Jefferson said:

"No man has a natural right to commit aggression on the equal rights of another and this is all from which the law ought to restrain him. Every man is under the natural duty of contributing to the necessities of Society and this is all the law ought to enforce on him. When the laws have declared and enforced all this they have fulfilled their function and the idea is quite unfounded that on entering Society we give up any natural rights."

John Quincy Adams in speaking of this very matter says:—

"Self government is the foundation of all our political and social institutions and it is by self government alone that the law of temperance can be enforced. Seek not to enforce upon your brother by legislative enactments that virtue which he can possess only by the dictates of his own conscience and the energy of his own free will."

Cardinal Gibbons holds the following belief:—

"I have never been able to convince myself that what we call total abstinence is essential to morality. The moderate and occasional use of alcoholic liquors is not to be condemned. In countries where the people drink, no serious harm results from the practice. Even in Rome in the Vatican itself, wine is used as a beverage. Then again I have long since come to understand that aside from the point of principle it is totally impossible to enforce a total abstinence law in large communities or states. Look at Maine, for instance, and you will see how true this is. The attempt to enforce such a law consequently leads to illegality and hypocrisy."

Doctor Lyman Abbott says:—

"Prohibition was not the method of Jesus. He lived in an age of total abstinence societies and did not join them. He condemned drunkeness but never in a single instance did He raise His voice against drinking. On the contrary He commenced His Public ministry by making as a miracle wine in large quantities to add to the festivities of a wedding. He apparently used wine customarily before the world, and He left as a legacy an example for his followers the Sacred use of wine in the most solemn service of His Church."

Robert G. Ingersoll says:—

"The trouble is that when a few zealous men intending to reform the world endeavor to enforce unpopular laws they are compelled to resort to detectives and a system of espionage. Those who drink are watched and old-fashioned sociability becomes impossible. The State becomes a parasite for patent medicines, the medicine being poor whiskey with a scientific name. There is another side to the question and that is that nothing in the world is more important than Personal Liberty." Some people are in favor of blotting out the sun to prevent the growth of weeds. This is the mistake of all prohibitory fanaticism."

Bishop Potter of New York says:

"Our prohibitory laws are as stupid as they are ineffective. Most of our measures for dealing with the liquor problem are tainted with falsehoods and are dishonored and discredited by the wide-spread and consistent failure."

President Eliot of Harvard and former President Taft both hold:—

"There has been concurrent evil in prohibitory legislation. The efforts to enforce it during forty years have had unlooked for effects upon the public—respect for Courts, judicial proceedings and for law in general as well as upon legislators and public servants. The public has seen the law defiled. Whole generations of habitual law-breakers schooled in evasion and shamelessness, courts ineffective through fluctuations of policy, delay, perjury and miscarriage of justice, officers of the law double-faced and mercenary, legislators timid and insincere, candidates for office hypocritical and truckling and office-holders unfaithful to their pledges."

Professor Buckle in his History of Civilization says:—

"The laws enacted to restrain personal liberty especially relating to intoxicating drinks uniformly increased intemperance."

Professor Leckey, the greatest student of Social problems, says:—

"To attempt to guard adult men by law against temptation, to place them under moral tutelage is a dangerous precedent. The tendency to coerceve laws on matters relating to intoxicating liquors is certainly not a tendency toward moral liberty."

The Committee of Fifty of New York City representing the most intelligent and broad-minded men of the country after a very careful study have this to say, concerning the economic and moral aspect of the liquor problem:—

"The tavern instinct of our Saxon forefathers is the chief impulse aside from the drink itself which draws their hosts to the saloon. This instinct must be reckoned with. It is a serious mistake to suppose that saloonkeepers as a class are bent upon the destruction of their fellow men and calloused to any appeal for help from their victims. They are men of singular practical helpfulness to the people about them. The saloon is the "Poor Man's Club" in that it offers him a measure of fellowship and recreation for which he would look elsewhere in vain."

Hundreds of others can be quoted and it will be observed tha tnone of these authorities commercialized the sacred teachings of religion or disgraced the pulpit with the tricks of a circus performer.

But let us now consider the merits of the Bill under discussion. It is claimed that County Option is a form of local self government, the inherent right of the people and that the liquor problem can best be solved in this manner. But these arguments are entirely unfair and untrue. If real local self government is wanted why not let each community or municipality decide for itself. The problems, the needs and the habits of a city or populous center are entirely different from those of a rural or agricultural district. The toiler of the city with his long hours and hard work has a struggle for existence very different from the "Man with Hoe." Why then should the farm force his views and his method of living upon the working man of the City? Almost every county has one or more populous centers which would be voted dry by the farmer, no matter how much the city might desire or need a license. The city with its large bonded indebtedness, with its army of employees, its paving, lighting, sewering and other municipal problems might need and want the license revenue, yet the country districts with nothing in common with its neighbor is given the power to deny these rights to the city.

Furthermore, if the proponents of the Act mean to be fair why is Section Six inserted by which territory now dry under special or local legislation is continued dry notwithstanding the county as a whole votes wet. They would compel the city to be ruled by the county and yet hundreds of townships and boroughs now held dry by old Acts of Assembly are not come under the operation of the Act. Can anything be more unjust or unfair?

Another striking evidence of hypocrisy and unfairness is found in Section Four. A close reading of this section shows that when a county votes dry it thereupon becomes unlawful for the Court to grant any licenses. But, on the other hand, if the county votes wet there is no duty on the part of the Court to grant any licenses. The discretionary powers of the Court to refuse every license notwithstanding such election indicating the will of the people in favor of licenses is in no way curtailed and abridged. Our opponents would lead us into a costly and wholly undesirable and unnecessary election reserving to themselves every special privilege they now have and if the election is not to their liking they do not lose a single right. And yet they call this justice. As I understand the theory of the law justice should be even handed not under handed.

There is another consequence so manifestly unfair and outrageous that a mere mention of it will convince any fair-minded person of the hate and venom with which our opponents are inspired. In almost every small county of Western Pennsylvania there are several breweries and distilleries worth millions of dollars and employing thousands of men But a very small part of the products is sold in the county, and the largest part is shipped to every part of the world. In the event that such a county by its election should prohibit the granting of licenses millions of property will be confiscated and stolen by the forms of law; thousands of men thrown out of work and their families impoverished, and yet the consumption of liquor will not be reduced at all and the business of these distilleries and breweries would simply be forced into the adjoining county where their business would be permitted.

It can truly be said here as the Teacher of Nazareth said to the Pharisee: "Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man, but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man."

I appeal to you gentlemen of the Republican Party to stand by the platform. For he, who does not, is not worthy the name of Republican, whether he be the humblest voter of the land or the highest Executive in this Commonwealth. The Republican platform makes no promise of local option and in the Pittsburgh Convention of August, 1914, when the matter was attempted to be forced into the platform it was rejected by a vote of 96 to 6. No candidate elected on that platform can have any personal pledge different from that of the party and he who receives the votes of the Republican party and does not live up to every party measure or attempts to enforce pledges different from the party pledges is an ingrate, to say the least. In my own district and no doubt in most of the Legislative Districts the matter of local option was fully and fairly decided at the last election. All that we need now do is to carry out the will of the people who sent us here. Let us be real, brave freemen; let us not fear the lash of the executive boss, or the anathema of the religious crank. If every matter in which I have any interest is vested or obstructed, I shall go back to my district with a clean conscience and the pleasure of having suffered in the performance of their will. There is no power on earth that can make me desert my people back home who expect me to vote against this measure.

And now let us ask why all this clamor and agitation? The wave of fanaticism and intolerance is nothing new in our land. Between 1850 and 1855 all the New England States adopted prohibitory measures and after the test of a few years all went back to the high license system excepting only Maine, admitted to be the greatest "speakeasy" in the world. The problem now before us for consideration is as old as civilization itself and is one of the most difficult in society. It is thoroughly intertwined with all other great problems and can not be separated or treated by itself as the imaginary cause of all evil. It is a moral, economic, psychological and personal problem requiring most careful study and attention and hence can not be cured by legislation alone.

While legislation in itself can not remedy the problem, wise laws can undoubtedly assist very materially. The method here proposed is local or county prohibition which is unenforceable as against the present system of high license and strict regulation. The logic of prohibition is—because one man is lame, all others shall wear crutches. The principle of human justice is rather a thousand guilty shall escape than one innocent shall suffer. The principle of this act is that ninety-eight men in each hundred shall be denied the inalienable right to pursue their own happiness in their own way because the other two abuse their privilege. Is it right that the vast majority shall be penalized for the faults of the negligible minority? And after all, all law depends for its enforcement upon the moral support of the people. That nation is best governed which is least governed. A prohibitory law has no more binding effect than a New Year's resolution. If the citizen is of the right moral fiber, his own intelligence, his devotion to his family, to his State, to his own interest will keep him in the path of moderation in all things. History teaches that mankind can not be made honest, righteous, sober and moral by the mere stroke of the Legislative pen. The stern truth is forgotten that law can successfully concern itself only with the action of man towards his fellow man but can never determine or control the actions of individual man in such matters as concern himself alone The fact is that we can not subordinate by law the faculties of the strong to the needs of the weak without destroying the very essence of that which has made most men strong, reliant and competent, that is their personal liberty.

Mr. Speaker and my honored colleagues: In this hour of real danger to our Commonwealth, let us manfully resolve to stand by our people and our oath of office. Let us stand by the principles of virtue, liberty and independence upon which our Commonwealth is founded. Oceans of blood, rivers of tears and millions of lives were sacrificed ere religious liberty was wrested from the tyrants of the Dark Ages. Our ancestors drenched with their crimson blood the snow white fields of Valley Forge and Chads Ford, and thus sealed the testament that guaranteed civil liberty throughout the land and to the inhabitants thereof. Let us now follow their hallowed example by standing firmly together for the sacred principles of personal liberty.

My friend from York and my friend from Philadelphia and all the other honorable members, I will say if heroin is worse than liquor I have to thank God that we are blessed with at least an intelligent, able zealous and God-fearing Governor by his own admission, but why have we not the approval of that bill? I have no desire to force myself upon your consideration in this question because I am satisfied that every man in this House knew from the very moment he entered this Hall just how he was going to vote. I trust that nothing which I may say may cause any of my friends to vote the other way. I want to say to my friend from York, a Jeffersonian Democrat, to please read a little more of Thomas Jefferson's teachings and casually read some of his writings in which he discusses this very matter. My friend Lanius should safeguard that doctrine or admit that York County is not in Pennsylvania. In conclusion one word and I say this as God is my witness, in a spirit befitting to my constituents as I owe it to my ancestors and your ancestors and the men and the ancestors of all humanity who struggled throughout the Dark Ages, we should overlook the misguided church interests allied with the political powers of to-day who struggled for centuries so. that the gift of religious liberty be made possible. And we who are loyal to Pennsylvania in that our ancestors painted with their crimson blood the snow white fields of Valley Forge and Chadds Ford that civil liberty might rule in the State of Pennsylvania, my friends, I ask you who are worthy descendants of worthy sires to stand together to-day, to stand manfully against every form of dictation and unfairness, and stand that the principle of personal liberty may be sure of its blessings.

Mr. W. H. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, it is not my purpose to regale the members of this House, much as I revere the memory of the honored departed, with a discussion of William Penn or George Washington. The thought that is uppermost in my mind in the discussion of this question, now before this assemblage, is the condition which exists in the blossoming present and not in the archaic or decayed past. Were we to follow in the footsteps of such revered gentlemen, were we to confront this question and treat it as if it were one which was discussed centuries ago, this universe would remain at a standstill. I listened during the course of this discussion with a great deal of attention and interest to the arguments which have been advanced by those who spoke in opposition to this measure. I have yet, to my mind, to hear what I consider as the real question before this body for its determination. We have heard a great deal of oratory, some of it quite lengthy, relative to taking away, in the event of the passage of this measure, of the personal liberty which is guaranteed to the citizens of this Commonwealth by its Constitution. That, to my mind, is a fallacious argument. Ever since the Brooks High License Law has adorned the statutes of this State and the decisions of the county courts and the appellate courts in placing their interpretation upon it, that question has been settled for all time within the confines of this Commonwealth. The right to sell liquor under the Brooks High License Law is not now nor never has been a vested right. My friends would argue to you, Mr. Speaker, that to pass this local option bill would be depriving those who have engaged in this business of their property without due courts of law. That is not the correct conception of the Brooks High License Law, as decided by judicial tribunals within this Commonwealth. The courts to this Commonwealth have always stated, have always construed the right to sell liquor under the Brooks High License Law as a personal privilege and a personal privilege only. And a personal privilege for a limited period of time, to-wit, one year at the outside. Now, then, it has been stated here that that law is the best local option law in existence to-day I take exception that statement, because under the Brooks High License Law, it depends upon the discretionary power of two judges, not on the voters of the district altogether or any considerable number of them, or the applicant for the privilege or the remonstrants against the privilege but upon the two gentlemen who done the ermine and sit upon the judicial bench and hand down decisions either for or against applications for the sale of liquor in this Commonwealth. As a result, what do we have under the Brooks High License Law? We have the opinions of two men irrespective of the opinions of the community. Those two men are the last say upon that question. Now, then, if they do grant that license, that application this year, because it has been established to them by the testimony which is produced that the place is necessary for the community for which it is asked, all other qualifications being met by the applicant, then the law practically says that it is the duty of those judges to grant that license, and they grant that license for a period of one year. Would my friend who opposed this measure argue for a moment that if conditions in that particular community changed within that year, or the next year or succeeding years which proved to the granting power conclusively that that place was no longer a necessity in that community, that those judges under the Brooks High License Law would not have the right to refuse a renewal of that license? Certainly not. Do they argue that in such conditions as those that the applicant who has had his place established there for a number of years is being deprived of a vested right? Certainly not. He is being deprived of a personal privilege and a personal privilege only, which is granted by the citizenry of this Commonwealth by virtue of the passage of the Brooks High License Law of 1887.

Now, Mr. Speaker, much has been said here concerning the determination of this question, and the determination of this question in a conclusive and decisive manner at the election of November last. Let us assume for the purpose of argument that it is correct. That this question was determined conclusively in the fall election of last year, and let me take you back but a few short months and let us see what the condition was that confronted the voters of this State in last November. It has been argued here that the Republican platform which was adopted at a meeting of the State Committee held in the city of Pittsburgh had no plank in it declaring in fvaor of local option. That I grant you to be correct. The Republican platform was silent upon the question. I was one of the attendants at that convention and I well remember the discussions which took place upon that party platform. I also well remember that the gentleman who now graces the office of Governor of this Commonwealth before that same convention, before that same assemblage of delegates to a party convention stated unequivocally and clearly that he stood for local option in this Commonwealth. The Republican party accepted him as their standard bearer, and went before the people of this great Commonwealth with that fact thrown broadcast throughout the confines of this Commonwealth. The Democratic party, I have no quarrel with the various factions which go to make up that party, also handed to the people of this Commonwealth in which they declared for local option. The Washington party did likewise. And those interested in that campaign, Martin G. Brumbaugh at the head of the Republican ticket and Vance McCormick at the head of the Democratic and Washington party tickets stumped this state from border to border, and night after night announced to the people who came to hear them, and also through the columns of the public press that each one of them stood for local option. The senior senator of this Commonwealth was also a candidate for that high office on the Republican ticket. He had no individual platform but he stood upon the platform advanced by the Republican State Committee which was silent on local option, but vociferous in its statement of protection to American industries.

What was the result, Mr. Speaker, of that election? Senator Penrose polled in the State of Pennsylvania, without a local option endorsement, a total vote of 492,326. The present Governor of this Commonwealth, with a personal platform of local option, polled on the Republican ticket 534,898 votes, or a majority of more than forty-two thousand. Vance McCormick, on the combined tickets upon which he was a candidate, polled a total vote of 452,782. I agree with my friend from Erie, that the people of this Commonwealth, in November last, did decide this question and they decided it in no uncertain terms, because for the two candidates for Governor of this Commonwealth there was cast a total of 987,680 votes on a local option platform. Figures do not lie and they, to my mind, are more convincing than any arguments which I have heard here to-day against this proposition. Mr. Speaker, I again agree with my friend from Erie, in one thing that he said; that what we need in this Commonwealth is men who have the courage of their convictions. Yes, we need men who have the courage of their convictions. We need men with the red blood in their veins; we need men who are not afraid to submit a question of the magnitude of this one to the suffrage of their constituents. I represent in this legislative hall—and I am proud to say it—a community of home-loving, God-fearing, law-abiding people. The community which I represent has a population of close on to one hundred and fifty thousand souls. I say to you, Mr. Speaker, that I for one, have the courage of my convictions, irrespective of the result, irrespective of the opinion in which I am held by any political party, to submit this question to the one hundred and fifty thousand people who live in my district to settle it for themselves.

Mr. RONEY. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I do not acquiesce in the statements of the various preceding speakers that the men who get up here today and discuss this question are simply elocutionists or professional declaimers. I do not feel that every man in this deliberative assembly has sold himself body and soul to one side or the other. I think that the discussion here today is a serious one, directed to the judgments of this Assembly, so that you men who are free, unbought and unpledged shall, from the various arguments, make up your minds how you are going to vote as free men of this Commonwealth. Mr. Speaker, much has been said upon this question and much should be said upon this question, and much should be said in regard to the figures that my friend from South Philadelphia talked about. Parliamentary procedure and the rules of this House direct that I shall refer to him as the gentleman from Philadelphia; but I should like to be indulged and excused from the rigor of the rules to say that I am sorry—and I think that this is the first time since I have been here I have had to say it—that I differ from "Big Bill," but there are very good reasons why we should differ. I view this proposition as one almost as serious as a page from the Bible. I feel, Mr. Speaker, that some day, either now or some day soon, this whole question shall be settled and settled right. I agree with all the worthy gentlemen who come here in favor of local option that the imbibing of liquor in a great many instances raises moral issues. I think that the man who drinks to excess becomes a different man. I know the excessive drinking of liquor robs a man of his good judgment and makes of him a lower kind of man than the Creator intended; and I also believe that the question should be settled on broad, on clean, on honest grounds; and I do not condone any man, I care not who he be, who takes this form of this moral issue and ties it on to his political aspirations.

If alcohol is scientifically a poison to the system it should be driven entirely out of social use. It has no place in this generation which strives to make the next generation better; but how shall we do it? Do you tell me with honesty in your eyes that you can make Delaware County dry and have Philadelphia wet and reform a single drunkard there. You cannot do it. It is not honest to say so. The only way to have the whole question solved and solved right is not by any makeshift of county units local option because what is to stop a man from Delaware County coming over into Philadelphia and getting all he wants, but to drive it out entirely; and when you drive it out entirely there is no elder in the church and no priest in the cloth who can vindicate driving it out unless full compensation is given to those who have invested their money in what? Not what the law approved, but what the law has coaxed. The law has coaxed men to go into the liquor business and if the law is going to drive men out it should pay them dollar for dollar for the money that they have invested.

I deny that the people in Pennsylvania last November decided that local option should be a matter of political principle in this State. I deny that any single candidate received a majority of votes on a distinctly local option platform. The Republican platform made no declaration on local option, and Boies Penrose on the Republican ticket polled more votes than the purely local option platform parties, the Washington and Democratic, and therefore the people did not declare for local option. Why should my friend from South Philadelphia add up the votes for McCormick and the vote for Brumbaugh and say the people made the declaration for local option. Why such fallacy from him, whose brain is as clear as crystal water? If the people of Pennsylvania considered that local option was a political principle of such importance why did they not vote for a declared local option platform and elect McCormick on the Democratic and Washington party tickets? And don't forget that while the Governor, in his private platform, declared for local option he got within fifty-two thousand of his votes by Republicans who also voted for Penrose; so standing on his local option platform without more he would have been defeated miserably. Moreover you talk about local option representation. You talk about the county unit. I have the greatest respect for the Governor for two reasons: I think he is a man of rare mental accomplishment and I think he is also a man of good, clean life, and they are two fine things to be coupled together and said about any man; and I say it without expecting any favor from the Governor, particularly after I vote; but in the Governor's own Germantown district they had two local option candidates. One was Mr. Ulrich and the other was Samuel B. Scott, the most accomplished parliamentarian that sat in this Assembly for twenty years. He ran on a local option ticket and my friends, the gentlemen from Philadelphia, Mr. Weir and Mr. Cummins, received more majority than Mr. Scott and Mr. Ulrich had votes. What a pity it would be that the Governor of the Commonwealth, advocating the county unit local option, would have to live there in his own home with saloons all around him. Gentlemen, I believe, as I said before, this is a serious proposition. I believe in a great race to come.

I believe that Washington, and Jefferson and Lincoln have lived that we might, from their lives, have gained some good, but I agree also with my friend from Philadelphia, that we cannot stand still. We have to go forward. We live better in these days than they lived in those days. We want to have a generation after us that shall look at things better than we do and I want to see them get it, and if thowing out liquor is going to make a better race, throw it out, but let compensation be honestly made. But I cannot stand here with conniving politicians, with this half-baked notion of local option, that would not cure a drunkard, and see them advocate today a better race with that kind of a proposition, when they know full well there are better means at hand.

I am for a better race, but I am for a better race through cleanness of living, and through honesty of intention, and you do not get it through this local option bill that cannot accomplish anything at all They say it is a step in the right direction; I say it is not. I say that good morals should creep into this State. I am glad for one reason to see the local option movement. It brings the good people of the various churches that differ, and who should not differ, together; it brings them closer together, and the more we meet these good men, the better we become ourselves.

Yes, let us have good morals—let us have good morals in every bill that we pass. Let us tax the man who ought to be taxed. Let us get the corporations that help elect officers and then expect to get their return in the conniving legislation they put through

You talk about standing still. We have stood still since 1874. We have no Constitution since then. Why don't we have one? Why don't we raise money that within five years you can pay every liquor man in Pennsylvania his just due, and then the people of the various churches, and the men of the cloth, and the men who sit here, can join together, hand in hand, in real morality in clean morality, in honest morality in uplifting effort and raise up that generaation that shall carry on the sweet traditions of the past and make of our State what it always should be, the greatest State of all the galaxy of States.

Mr. Speaker, I hold no brief for the Brooks High License act. In some respects I think it might very well be amended. In some respects I think it might very well be changed, but there is no use saying here today that this idea of local option, giving a man a dry county here and a real, real wet one there, is going to change the situation from what it is now.

My friend spoke of liquor being no vested right. It is true, the Supreme Court has said so, but in Philadelphia in the past ten years I don't believe they have revoked a dozen licenses, so if you get a license this year, unless you are an awfully, awfully bad keeper, you will get your license next year. It is a right that the law recognizes this because when you put your money in it you are entitled to a fair return, and therefore, Mr. Speaker, the present situation is far more honest, it is far more true, it is far more adaptable to our conditions than any such little puny, political makeshift as this county unit local option bill.

I ask the members of this House who have not been peldged, and some of you have not,—you free men,—I ask you to vote against this bill.

The SPEAKER. This completes the list of speakers handed to me by the friends and opponents of the bill.

Mr. ERDMAN: Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I wish to say a word in explanation of my vote on this question. I am compelled to vote against the bill. The issue was well understood in my district. One of my opponents was the candidate of the local option forces. He made his campaign upon that issue. He received about 1200 votes. I received more than three times that number. To every one who asked me as to my position on this question before the election, and a great many did so, I told each one that I could not see that local option was a solution of the recognized evils of the liquor traffic and that I was against the same. Were I now to vote in favor of this measure I would be denounced by hundreds of my constituents in fact, I would be looked upon as a traitor. I will not enter into any further discussion of the bill. It is an important matter, but both sides have been thoroughly argued. The people of my district are opposed to the measure and I must voice their wishes, as pronounced at the polls.

Mr. MILLIRON. Mr. Speaker, if I were to vote on this bill today according to my personal feelings, the probabilities are that I would register my vote in favor of its passage. I intend voting against it and wish to have my reasons for so doing stated with such clearness as to prevent any misunderstanding. Last year in Armstrong county, we had a fierce campaign for the office which I now occupy. When different men announced their candidacy for the Legislature, various persons were mentioned among them myself. My friends who were inclined toward Local Option at once made it known from one end of the county to the other whom the candidates were that favored it. I was not one of them. Throughout the county, it was heralded, that I was against local option. Fairness would require that those favoring the reformed measure such as this, should at least attempt to find out how the various candidates stand in relation to the measure before naming those whom they intend favoring. This was never accorded to me. I was not asked by the local optionists how I stood with reference to this measure but notwithstanding this, I was utterly ignored. I was attacked and bitterly attacked as being opposed to Local Option with the result that my county was lined up on the question, those favoring Local Option being unalterably and to a man, opposed to me. Hence the votes I received to a large extent came from the other side. To a large degree, those who voted for me expect me to vote against this bill and I feel under these circumstances I would not be playing fair with my constituency were I to vote in its favor.

Mr. W. W. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I favor Local Option as a principle of local self government, but, the sale of Liquor has for one hundred years or more been a legalized business in this Commonwealth. Thousands, yes, millions of dollars have been invested in good faith in Plants for the Manufacture of spirituous and malt liquors and as well in property for the wholesale and retail of the same.

In view of this fact, I am conscientiously of the opinion that any Bill making a Referendum of the sale of Liquor in Pennsylvania, whether in a Statewide or County-wide way, should carry with it, a provision to reimburse owners for loss suffered by them in value of property should the people vote adversely to the sale of Liquor. The Bill before us makes no such provision, therefore, I shall vote against it.

Mr. WILDMAN. Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House, up to the present I have taken up but little of your time in the discussion of the various subjects that have presented themselves. I shall not attempt to influence any member of this body, either for, or against, the measure now under consideration by the remarks which I am about to make. Being criticised by the Press and Pulpit of my district as to my attitude upon this question I feel that it is a duty which I owe to myself, to state my position clearly and give my reasons for the same, I therefore beg your indulgence, and ask you to bear with me for a short time, for this purpose.

I am charged by the advocates of this measure that in opposing the same, I am acting contrary to the wishes of my constituents. I take exception to this charge. During the session of the Legislature of 1913, of which I had the honor of being a member, a Local Option measure was considered and defeated. I opposed the measure at that time and stated my reason for so doing. All of which was placed on record. During the campaign of 1914, being again a candidate to succeed myself, this fact was heralded broadcast throughout my district by my opponents on both the Progressive and Democratic Tickets, all of whom made Local Option the principal issue of their campaign—"Lybarger Card." Notwithstanding these attacks I was returned by a plurality of nearly 1800.

According to Webster, the term constituent is applied to one who elects or appoints someone to office. Considering the fact, that under these conditions, it is not plausible that I received the votes of those who are earnestly advocating Local Option. I feel that in opposing the measure I am acting in accord with the desires of my constituents.

It is contended and I grant this to be justly so, that the people of a given locality, shall have the right to say, as to whether or not liquor shall be legally sold in their immediate vicinity, under the provisions of the measure now before us. This is not the case, I believe it to be unfair and unjust, that the voters of the rural districts many of them fifteen and twenty miles distant, who have no saloon in their vicinity, and are therefore not personally interested shall be permitted to cast their votes to abolish the saloon in the city.

The city is plainly deprived of its right of option on the liquor question, and is compelled to submit to a county dictum enforced by the votes of a remote rural population. This was forcibly demonstrated during an election in the State of Ohio, the City of Newark, the county seat of Licking County, gave a wet majority of 1,557, but was forced to be "dry" by the rural vote. The same is true of Coshockton the adjoining county of the same State, the City of Coshockton voted "wet" by 877, but the county forced the city to become "dry" by 508 majority. This to my mind utterly subverts Home Rule, and I therefore can not consistently support a county unit bill.

I am further opposed to the bill because it is prohibition for the poor. Under its provisions there is nothing to prevent the existence of clubs, under federal license. In every prohibition town there are clubs and societies where drink is openly sold to those admitted to membership, while those who can not afford membership are deliberately shut out.

Prohibition acts only against those financially weaker, as with money and influence you can in any prohibition town get as intoxicated as you please, openly, flagrantly, and publicly. If you have no money—no drink.

There are thousand of laborers, their only amusement, recreation, diversion or whatever you may please to call it, consists in the drinking of an occasional glass of beer, men who drink it temperately, and in moderation. Permit me to paint a word picture—The whistle of a great iron manufacturing plant blew announcing the noon hour. Into a nearby saloon, sweat streak, soot begrimed men came in a steady stream. The awful heat of an August day and the stifle of the molding room of a great foundry had inflicted on these tired sons of toil. Some had worked for hours in the swelter of the cupelo of seething metal, others had swung sledges and handled tons of molten iron, and the black dust of the colders earth had painted their faces and clogged their throats. Up to the rude pine bar they came, like thirsty sheep to a running stream, as the glasses of beer were handed up not a word is heard, only the thirsty gurgle of the cooling liquid allaying parched throats, one by one they leave the bar drop in weariness to the rude benches and empty beer kegs standing about on the sawdust covered floor, each with lunch box, dinner pail or basket in hand.

Crude and dirty, grimey it was, kept by an honest, conscientious man, it was above criticism in moral tone. No woman frequented it, no loafers or toughs hung about it, the patrons were hardworking men of integrity and industry, albeit of sweat and grime and plain speech flavored with pipe and stogie smoke.

This to the mind of the prohibitionist is a low, dirty saloon that local option must wipe out.

On the other hand imagine in the fashionable quarter of the city, a stately building, splendidly furnished, the windows covered with costly draperies—Persian rugs upon the floor—the buffet in the grill room stocked with the most expensive liquors, high wines and cordials—a poker table in an adjoining room—it is night, the rooms are resplendent with rays of light, the cushioned chairs are occupied with men of high standing—the banker, the broker, the merchant and the lawyer, well dressed waiters serve them with liquors from the buffet, a poker game is now in progress, the hours have passed the midnight bell has tolled, but the lights continue to shine, and the waiters continue to serve the drinks. This my friends is a respectable club, which under local option still continues to exist, and for this reason it seems to my mind to be class legislation.

I further oppose the measure, because it does not prevent the consumption of liquor in the locality affected. It forces the business, now legalized, from the hands of responsible persons into the hands of irresponsible persons, the baser and lower portion of the population, with the result that the vilest kind of liquor, and liquor substitutes are manufactured and sold illegally, resulting in hypocrasy, increased crime, social disorder and corruption. That it confiscates the property of those now legally engaged in the business, deprives men of their livelihood, only to enrich the coffers of men engaged in the same business of another locality, without the desired result being obtained.

I oppose it, because it is inconsistent with the Christian doctrine which teaches us to consider our neighbor as well as ourselves, under local option we eliminate from our own midst an evil only to transplant it upon the premises of our neighbor. I am therefore conscientiously and consistently opposed to the measure. If the liquor business is to be abolished, I stand for national legislation that will reach all classes, the rich as well as the poor.

It seems strange to me, that to the mind of the present day prohibitionist, the men who are legitimately engaged in the manufacture and sale of distilled and brewed beverages no matter how honestly they may exercise these functions are below the average moral standing, that their business is a menace to society. I shall not argue this point, but I want to say right here, that during the past many good honest upright men saw fit at times to engage in the same.

Lincoln, with his love of his fellow-men, was a temperance advocate, but he believed in being charitable in an effort to decrease intemperance, he believed in converting the individual by appealing to his character and in a manner to win his confidence By the same token he was opposed to driving an individual, to denouncing him, to cursing and abusing him, always contending "that a drop of honey catches more flies than a gallon of gall."

"By virtue of half a dozen signatures, Berry and Lincoln became proprietors of the only mercantile establishment in the village."

"In the spring of the next year, finding their merchandise gaining them little or nothing, they concluded to keep a tavern in addition to their other business, and the records of the company according to Sangamon county, show that Berry took out a license for that purpose on the 6th of March, 1833." (From Nicolay & Hay, Vol. 1, Chapter 4, "Abraham Lincoln.")

The tavern never opened as Lincoln and Berry soon sold out; however, the fact that Abraham Lincoln went so far as to stock a tavern, and obtain a license, shows that in principle he was not against the business of selling liquors. A copy of the original license represents evidence which cannot be disputed

Springfield, Wednesday, March 6th, 1833.

In concluding an address delivered by Lincoln before the Washington Temperance Society of Springfield Feb. 22nd, 1848, he said:

"This is the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the birthday of Washington; we are met to celebrate this day. Washington is the mightiest name of the earth—long since mightiest in the cause of civil liberty, still mightiest in moral reformation. On that name no eulogy is expected. It cannot be To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt. In solemn awe pronounce the name, and in its naked deathless splendor leave it shining on."

George Washington, concerning whom Lincoln spoke with so much eloquence and reverence, was the owner of a distillery. In his will made at Mt. Vernon, July 9, 1799, we read as follows:

"I, George Washington, of Mount Vernon, a citizen of the United States and lately President of the same, do make, ordain and declare this instrument, which is written with my own hand and every page thereof subscribed with my name, to be my last will and testament, revoking all others: ..

Item—To my dearly beloved wife, Martha Washington, I give and bequeath the use, profit and benefit of the whole estate, real and personal, for the term of her natural life.

As I also do my household and kitchen furniture of every sort and kind with the LIQUORS and groceries which may be on hand.

I give and bequeath to the said Lawrence Lewis and Eleanor Park Lewis, his wife, and their heirs, the residue of my Mount Vernon estate, all the land north of the road leading from the ford of Dogue Run to the Gum Spring as described in the device of the other part of the tract to Bushrod Washington until it comes to the stone and three red or Spanish oaks on the knowl—thence with a rectangular line to the back line (between Mr. Mason and me), thence with that line westerly along the new double ditch to Dogue Run, by the tumbling dam of my mill, thence with the said run to the ford aforementioned, to which I add all the land I possess west of said Dogue Run and Dogue Creek bounded easterly and southerly thereby, together with the mill, DISTILLERY and all other houses and improvements on the premises, making together about two thousand acres, be it more or less."

(Signed) G. WASHINGTON.

State of Virginia, County of Fairfax, to wit:

I. F. W. Richardson, Clerk of the Circuit Court of said County, the same being a Court of Probate and of record, and having a seal, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the last Will and Testament of George Washington, deceased, as the same appears of record in the will books of said County in Liber H, No. 1, folio 1, and that the original of said will is now on file in my said office in said County.

SEAL IN TESTIMONY of all which I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said Court at Fairfax, Virginia, this 7th day of February, A. D. 1912.

(Signed) F. W. RICHARDSON, Clerk."

George Washington, who really gave us the liberty which is enjoyed to-day, was most certainly not a prohibitionist. It was Washington that made possible a Lincoln, and the above gives absolute proof that Abraham Lincoln was not a prohibitionist, and, moreover, went so far as to stock a tavern, and to obtain a license for the sale of liquors. With these facts before us, it seems that the business was not discredited at that time.

Mr. KUHN. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, on the western prairies, the custom has prevailed for many years, for the owner of large herds of cattle to gather them together at a certain period and place his brand upon all unbranded stock. This process of gathering together and branding the cattle is called the "round up." The mark of the owner was, with a hot iron, stamped on each animal.

and after the "round up," there was no doubt as to who was the owner of the cattle upon the plains.

To-day, we are going to have a "round up" and the purpose of this hour is to place a brand upon the brow of every member of this legislative body and after this hour, each of you will be enabled to know whose owner you are. It is self-evident that there is confronting us to-day, two great movements led by prominent representatives who embody in themselves and their work, the spirit they represent. The one spirit is the selfish spirit that centers in the greed for gain; the other, the genuine altruistic spirit that looks to the highest interests of another. The one is earthly, sensual and devilish, the other is the spirit introduced into this old world by the author of the sermon on the mount.

There has never been a time, so far as the history of the State shows, that the two spirits were more aggressive and better organized for business than at the present time. There has never been a time when the citizens of this great State were aroused to a higher determination to wipe out from within her borders the most obnoxious, the most pernicious and the most devilish business that can be found within her boundaries.

The cry comes from every hill top, from every valley, and from every section of the State, from the unfortunate, the down trodden and the weak and from those who need the care of the shepherd, to help them, and our object in coming together at this time and on this occasion is for the purpose of extending a helping hand to those who are not able to help or defend themselves.

I want to say to you, sir, that the great altruistic spirit has culminated in one of the most marvelous movements that the world has ever known, one to prevent one class of citizens from pursuing a business which demoralizes, pauperizes and in every way destroys another class of fellow beings.

I repeat to you again, sir, that it is no wonder that in this great and splendid age wherein our civilization is seeking to obtain the highest pinnacle that such a movement as is before us to-day should be projected, and it is not surprising that the inhabitants of this great State should rise up in arms and come as a mighty army to the defense of the helpless and come as they are coming to lend their aid and assistance in this great and momentous question.

I believe, sir—that the manifestation of the spirit of selfishness as shown by the Liquor interests is manifested in the institutions projected and operated for the absolute ruin of one set of citizens in order that another set may be benefited.

The question too, is not simply whether or not we shall have breweries, distilleries and filthy saloons in our midst, but the great question to me today and one of greater moment is the question of turning the reins of our government over to this, the most dangerous institution of our country, for I hold sir—that the liquor interest is the one great interest and power, that holds together and manipulates all the great and dangerous powers that not only corrupts our nation and State. This for the reason that we find this power working in our Legislative halls, trying in every form and manner to bring about legislation that is agreeable to their selfish interests that is not in any way antagonistic to the interest of which they are a part.

Should the brewer, the distiller, the saloon keeper and the wholesale liquor dealers continue to be our Political Bosses and use all the means within their power and bring together the class of citizens that they demand to be with them and help them to carry out their plans, and bring about measures that are of interest to them. I want to say to you that the four great corner stones upon which our great government is founded on are first, the Church, the Sabbath, Patriotism and the Ballot Box. Each of these is a distinct corner all of which must stand together or our country will go to wreck.

It is not necessary for me to define to you, the meaning of these four great cornerstones. But I want to say to you that these four cornerstones foster the good morals, the high morals of the nation and of the State and that I believe that the greatest enemy that they have and the enemy that is doing more to tear down these great cornerstones, are the Liquor interests and for that reason I want to call upon every man, every patriot and every citizen who loves his State, to join in the fight against these interests, and its constituency, and vote today to give us local option and home rule.

In the discussion of this question as it has come from the members opposed to this measure, we hear the cry of the confiscation of property and the cry of the encroachment upon personal liberty which I believe is a false one, and not in any manner worthy of consideration.

I might relate to you an instance that has been called to my attention. In a section of our country, there was one of the finest Jersey herds that was ever raised in the state, in fact sir, it was the pride of the whole country, and when this beautiful, fawn-colored herd came wilding o'er the lea, they made a picture that surpassed Gray's elegy. The whole state was proud of the herd, but in an examination a short time ago, every cow in that beautiful herd was found to have tuberculosis and an order was issued by the state to destroy them. Why, if you call that confiscation and appropriation of property, and unnecessary and destruction and confiscation to the owner of the property, we say, keep silent. Our women, our children and our homes are better than your death dealing producing property.

Your herd of cattle, beautiful and lovely as it is, cannot be weighed in the scales and in the balances against our women, our children and our homes. Your disease spreading, death breeding property? The saloon, the brewery and the distillery should not be allowed to exist any longer, and the object of the measure that we have presented to you today and of which you are soon to consider, and upon whose brow is going to be stamped the brand that will go with you to the grave and to the future generation which will follow you. I say to you that we are going to vote for or against the death dealing liquor traffic, for we are going to either protect our women and children and our homes, or we are going to say by our voice and our vote that we are going to leave them open prey for this vicious, death dealing business.

In one of the small towns of this state some few years ago, on one side of the city there was a great epidemic of typhoid fever which took some member of the family in almost every home until you could see the black crepe on almost every home in that vicinity. What did the people say? Did they say, Oh! I feel so sorry for those poor unfortunates that are dying off like that. They said, gentlemen, we have got to take this thing up and put the blood hounds of scientific investigation on the track of the disease. They traced the disease to the dairyman's milk and said to the dairyman, "If you ship another gallon of milk into our city, we will put you in jail." Oh, the cry came from the dairyman, you are confiscating my property, you are ruining my business. You are taking the bread and butter from the mouths of my children, you have no right to injure my business. I have vested rights here." These are my own cows and my barn. I have paid for them with my hard earned money. You have no right to interfere with me.

We again say to such, be silent. You are scattering diseases and death and you cannot continue longer. Therefore you must stop, for our homes, our children and our women are above such a business, are we going to settle this death-dealing business to-day by our votes? Time after time I have heard repeated that the open saloon helps the town financially because there is money in it. That may be true, but I believe we as loyal citizens of Pennsylvania place the honor of our boys and our girls above the dollar mark, but the cry from the saloon men is let the boys and girls take care of themselves, but give us the money that comes from this business. To-day we are endeavoring to wipe out by this County Local Option Bill, all of this by voting for this measure and I earnestly appeal to you to help to do so. But the saloon keeper, as I have tried to show you, is willing to take your dollar and mar you from head to foot.

Let me ask you sir, you gentlemen, who are standing in opposition to this bill, whether you have ever in your life seen the old blear-eyed, bloated, rum-soaked fellow taken by the saloon and exhibited at the fair as a product and as a result of his traffic? I will say to you sir, that you have never seen an instance of this kind, but you have seen the honest farmer gather together, the pride of his herd, his horses, his sheep and his cattle and wheat and grain, but you never saw the old drunkard brought to the fair, placed in a glass case and to illustrate what the saloons are doing for the country and how their great traffic is benefiting our people. The farmer does not take his plow. He takes his grain and the results that have come from the usefulness of the plow. The cattelmen do not take cattle feed to show at the fair, he takes his cattle. He doesn't take his tools, he takes his products.

The liquor dealer comes to the fair and brings his tools and says: here are the tools that I work with, but he never shows the products that have come as a result of their use.

It has been said that the State has no right to interfere in what the liquor people call their inherent rights, let us see, as the father has an inalienable right to protect his boy from immoral associations, so the State has an inalienable and inherent right to protect all the people from immoral influences. Every man has a right to be decent and to protect himself and his children from the indecency of others. The father may, by eliminating evil influences from the home, protect the morals of his boy. So may the State by eliminating evil institutions from society, protect the morals of the youth of the State and the people in general.

Laws regulating, restraining or prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors for beverages do not impair any man's constitutional rights of Personal Liberty.

The Liquor men have claimed that all men had the personal right to drink if they wanted to, and that every citizen had a personal right to manufacture for his own use.

On the contention that a man has the personal right to drink if he wants to, and therefore the dealer has the right to sell to the man who has the right to drink, the Court expressed itself and held that not even liberty itself is not an unrestrained license to act according to one's own will. It is only freedom from constraint under conditions essential to the equal enjoyment of the same right by others. The law has a right to regulate even the personal liberty of the citizen.

While liberty is sacred, personal liberty is no more sacred than private property. Private property may not be so used as to injure another. The personal right to one's liberty is no greater than the personal right to one's property. Personal liberty when used for gambling purposes, for example, is no more sacred than personal property, when used for gambling purposes. No man has any personal right to be immoral or conduct an immoral business when his immoral conduct or business injures others. When a man begins to do things which injure others, his personal liberty ends. Personal liberty of the individual cannot prevail against public welfare.

The saloon keeper cannot wash his hands of the blood of his patrons by saying that they are free to do as they please, and if they drink to excess no one is to blame but themselves and therefore the sale should be without restriction. This might be true if a man's use of intoxicants affected only himself. But besides injuring him in his health, in his morals and in his general standing, it leads to a neglect of business, habits of idleness, and to a waste of property. It also affects those who are immediately connected with and dependent upon him. No man liveth by himself. No man has any personal right to disgrace and debase those who are dependent upon him. A parent has an inherent right to bring up his own children. But he may so neglect his own children that the law will take them from him and give them to another or place them in some home. This is done for the reason that the State has the right to protect itself and the youth of the land against the neglect and immorality of worthless parents.

No man has the right to live with so much filth around him as to injure the health of his neighbor. The health officers can make a man clean up his own home, and surely if a man has liberty anywhere, it is in his home. Morals are certainly as essential in a State as health. Moral filth may be cleaned up as well as any other kind of garbage.

The sentiment against the saloon is further justified by the finished product which the saloon turns out. The saloonkeeper often dishonestly claims that his business is as honorable as any other business. Lets compare it with two common lines of business. Take a brick yard for example. The raw material used is ordinary mud. The finished product is brick which may be used for building houses, paving streets and various other purposes. The finished product is more valuable than the raw material, therefore, the business of brick making is justified by its fruits. Take a flour mill for a second example, the raw material is wheat. The finished product is flour. Flour is more valuable and serviceable than wheat, therefore, the flouring mill is justified by its fruit. With these compare the saloon business. The raw material is the bright boy and the pure girl from the home. The finished product is the drunkard in the gutter, and the scarlet woman on the streets. How the finished products compare with the raw material! By their fruits ye shall know them.

The cry has been made that the saloons should be reimbursed for the loss of property. Let us see about this.

There is no valid reason why compensation should be made. God never gave the devil any compensation for curtailing him in the exercise of any of his assumed privileges, because the devil never had any right to claim the privileges in the first place. The Law of God nowhere recognizes the principle that a man committing or about to commit an injury to the public health, public peace, or public morals, must be compensated to be prevented from committing the injury and if no such principle is acknowledged in the moral law, why should it be recognized in the civil law? Do you pay the thief for what you deprive him of when you drive him from your house and thus thwart his criminal purpose? Have you not a right to prevent an injury without compensation to the one intending to do the injury? Must men be compensated for the surrender of any evil practice?

No state is under any contract with its citizens, either expressed or implied to refrain from passing laws for the purpose of securing public health or of preserving public morals no matter how large a class the passage of such laws may embaras or bankrupt. And no state will refrain from the passage of such protective laws unless it is in the hands of unprincipled men. Rights and privileges arising from contracts with the state are subject to regulation for the protection of the public health, the public morals and the public safety.

If the right to sell liquor were one of the inherent rights of personal liberty such for instance as the right of the farmer to sell his corn, wheat or potatoes, the Legislature could neither burden or abridge it by imposing a special tax or requiring a special license The Legislature can burden those engaged in the liquor traffic because the right to conduct such a business is not an inherent attribute of personal liberty inasmuch as such a pursuit is harmful to the community and requires special legislation and restraint. If it were harmless and not inimical to the good of society, it could not be subjected to special burdens, restrictions or regulations, but to such burdens, restrictions and regulations, it may be subjected for the reason that if it is not regulated and restricted, society may suffer.

The local option law puts the whole saloon question in the hands of the qualified electors. We have both moral and legal right to conquer. The enemy is in our midst. The call to defend our land against armed rebellion was never greater than the present call to defend it against the organized corruption of the saloon in politics. It is just as dishonorable and unpatriotic to neglect our duty to the public in time of peace as in time of war The weapons are in our hands. So also is the future. The future depends upon the use we make of our weapons today. President Harrison once said: "God has never endowed any statesman or philosopher, or any body of them, with wisdom enough to frame a system of government which everybody can go off and leave." It was by the sacrifice of time, of talent, of treasure and of blood that our forefathers caused this nation to assume among the powers of the earth that separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and nature's God entitled her. If we wish to see our country speed on from glory to glory, we must be as willing as they were to sacrifice our time, talent, our treasure and our blood, if need be, in order to protect, to purify and to defend her sacred honor.

Mr. RICH. Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Assembly. About seven years ago, in conversation with the Judge of the Twenty-fifth Judicial District, I asked him what consideration a petition would have before the courts. He asked me to explain. I then made the following statement:

Presuming an application for license had been made, meeting all the requirements of the law, would a petition representing a majority of the citizens of a township remonstrating against the license be considered by the court.

His reply was "No."

If three-fourths petitioned against it?

He again replied "No."

If all beside the twelve men on the application for license remonstrate by petition would you consider it? Again "No" was the answer.

I asked him to give a reason for so decisive an answer. His reply was: "That would be local option and we do not have local option in this State. We are governed by the Brooks High License Law."

I said, Judge, do you mean to say that in our village where we have never had a license, where there could not be found one who would sign a petition, that from the other end of the township, seven miles away, where they have a licensed hotel, that the twelve men signing that license could sign again for an applicant to open a licensed hotel in our town and he would get it? His reply was in the affirmative.

Now, Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House, if this is our condition under the Brooks Law where is our boasted liberties? Where is our government of the people for the people, by the people? A man comes into our town clothed with authority by the law and the petition of twelve men and sanctioned by the judge, set up a privileged place of business; enticing by every possible attraction our citizens to "look upon the wine" and then by "putting the cup to our neighbor's lips" in violation of the commands of God; create appetites and thereby destroy our sons and neighbors, physically, financially, mentally and morally. Making drunkards of some, thereby destroying their souls; for "No drunkard shall enter the Kingdom of Heaven." And for what reason? To enrich the coffers of some hotel keeper! Our fathers overthrew the tea into Boston Harbor because they were taxed without representation.

They offer their lives upon the alters of their Country to gain a place in the formation of their Government.

Are we to submit to Law that not only takes toll of our money without our consent, but devestates our homes, takes toll of our boys, engaging their time, destroys their mental and physical manhood and blemishing their souls and are we expected to sit complacently by and see this go on? Again, I say, where is our boasted liberties? We read with honor the sacrificing of infants to the God Moloch, while we by legal process submit to the destruction of our sons, soul and body, to the God Bachus and are apitomized as religious cranks because wo do not recognize the unrightuous privilege granted to saloons as a sacred liberty.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen the House, as a Republican I voted for Martin G. Brumbaugh because I belieived he would do just what he said he would do and I believe hundreds of thousands of others did the same thing, and as he has done the very thing he said he would do, given us a Child Labor measure, a Workmen's Compensation measure and a Local Option measure, in the interest of our children, our laboring class and our homes, we proclaim him an honest Governor, a noble work of God. Now pray, tell us what kind of a Governor did you expect to elect who knew of his avowed and published platform and are now decrying him because he is doing the very things he said he would do. Did you expect you were electing a liar and a deceiver to the office of Governor? If so, we think it would be more befitting for you to skulk into hiding than to blatantly pronounce your disappointment. Gentlemen, we are with the Governor to the finish in the carrying out of his platform, for we believe in it, advocated it in the election and shall never cease until our lips are silenced by death or the liberty secured by our forefathers at so great cost is restored to the people.

Mr. GOODWIN. Mr. Speaker, local option means self-government. As applied to this bill it means the right of the voters in a county to determine whether or not intoxicating liquors shall be sold in that county. Many people seem to consider that local option is synonomous with Prohibtion. The contest over this bill is no more a fight between wet and dry programs than the framing of rules of International Law is warfare. This bill is simply a method of procedure. If this bill does become a law it cannot of itself increase or decrease the number of saloons in any county within this Commonwealth. It cannot of itself increase or decrease the amount of intoxicating liquors consumed. This bill is not automatic in its operation, it is simply a method of procedure to determine whether intoxicating liquors shall be sold. Local Option does not mean that a certain county shall be wet or dry any more than the present Brooks High License Law means that a certain county shall or shall not sell intoxicating liquors. Under Local Option, if a majority of the voters in a certain county want intoxicating liquors sold, they can have them. If a majority desire that no license shall be granted, then none shall be, for at least a period of three years. This bill does not affect counties where a majority of the voters declare that they are in favor of licenses. The operation of this bill would not inflict saloons upon any county where a majority of the voters were against them, nor would it withhold the granting of licenses in any county where a majority of the voters were in favor of them. This bill does not propose to disturb the operatio of the present license law, only in these counties where the majority of the citizens by popular vote shall say that the granting of licenses shall stop. In these counties where a majority of the voters favor the granting of licenses, the law remains as at present.

This bill proposes to give to the people the authority to determine this question. It will take the authority out of the hands of the judges of the Courts of Quarter Sessions, and place it in the hands of the people. This bill will again place in the control of the people the authority to determine this question. They delegated this power to the judges of the Courts of Quarter Sessions when the present license law was placed on the Statute Books. But to-day the prevailing sentiment is that the people should again have that power placed in their own hands. The majority of the judges throughout the Commonwealth would gladly have this authority lifted from their shoulders and placed in the hands of the people. The very nature of the question makes it one that can be dealt with more logically by the people than by the courts.

In this bill the county is the unit. This is the logical unit for Local Option. The county is the general unit of division throughout the State. It is the general unit for the purpose of taxation. The taxpayers in the county bear the burden of the county courts, the county jail and the poor district. It is but just that they should be allowed to determine a question that is so closely connected with their welfare and property. Some have advocated the ward, borough and township unit. But under such a unit, every ward, borough and township in the county, except one, might be dry, and that one might furnish more criminals and paupers, than all the rest of the county. Every taxpayer throughout the county would be assessed to take care of these criminals and paupers.

One of the evil effects of the present license law is the baneful influence it has upon the election of our judges The judiciary is the bulwark of our institutions. In the annals of American history its record is one of the brightest pages. But under the operation of the present license law, the election of our judges in many counties has degenerated into a contest between wet and dry forces. In these contests the selection of the judge is not based on his legal qualifications, nor his knowledge of the law, nor his ability to administer justice, but simply upon the question whether or not he will grant licenses to sell intoxicating liquors. This evil influence should be taken away from our judiciary and their election should be placed upon the high plane it was designed to occupy. In more than a dozen judicial contests this fall the liquor question is certain to be the paramount issue if this bill does not pass. This is a deplorable situation. These judicial elections should no longer be the football or the alignment liquor question.

The logic and justice of local option is so clear that it is remarkable that the issue should have been beclouded as it has been. We as Representatives have no just reason to deny to the people a right that is as fundamental to our system of government as that by which we were chosen to represent the people in this General Assembly. If the people are to be denied this right by what reason or logic are they to have the right to vote on any public question.

Pass this bill and we shall put into effect Section 2 of Atricle 1 of our State Constitution which declares that "All power is inherent in the people and all free governments are founded on their authority, and instituted for their peace, safety and happiness. For the advancement of these ends they have at all times an inalienable and indefeasible right to alter, reform or abolish their government as they may think proper."

Mr. SPANGLER. Mr. Speaker, there is no great question that has come before the Legislature during my two terms as a legislator to which I have applied more careful thought than to the one now under discussion. I have received numerous letters and petitions on the subject, which I regret press of legislative business prevented answering. I think my constituents know me well enough to know that I would not wantonly or frivously disregard their wishes in respect to any legislative question. In opposing this measure I feel that I am but keeping my word as expressed upon the subject before election. I openly expressed myself upon local option and my attitude as regards a bill of the character now before the legislature. I so expressed myself of my own volition and not in consideration of either campaign contributions or financial support from the liquor interests. From them I neither requested or received financial aid or support, but on the contrary active opposition. At the time I declared myself in opposition to a measure the character of the Williams bill I did so because I believed

1—Because it would take away from the city of York the right to decide for itself the question license or no license.

2—Because the most ardents advocates of local option admit that the proposition is not a solution of the liquor problem.

Under the provisions of the Williams bill the county of York is given the power to compel the city of York to be dry contrary to the wish of the majority as expressed at the polls. It is a well known fact that the larger cities rarely find prohibition advantageous. It is altogether probable that the city of York or any other city so situated would hesitate before it committed itself to the proposition of prohibition under this proposed law which would result in the confiscation of hundreds of thousands of dollars of property, throw many men out of work, abolish all regulation in the use of alcoholic liquors and forfeit thousands annually in liquor tax for the opportunity of accepta remedy that is not a cure and one which the prohibition party in its last convention openly condemned. Yet under the county unit local option plan (this is the plan proposed by the Williams bill) the city of York can be catapulted into prohibition against its local option as expressed at the polls. Permit me to use a few figures. The city of York has a population of 50,000. The county outside the city has a population of 90,000. Assume that the city would cast 8000 votes at a local option election and the county 15,000 votes; assume that the vote in the city would be 5,000 for wet and 3,000 for dry, that the county vote would be 6,000 for wet and 9,000 for dry. The result of the election would be that the county of York would go dry by 1,000 majority, carrying the city of York with it, although the city itself voted wet by 2,000 majority. Under such a condition would local option prove beneficial to the city of York?

The most ardent advocates of local option admit that it will not solve the liquor question. They say however that it is a step in the right direction. As a remedy in itself it has serious defects. The committee of fifty, a committee composed of the most eminent men in the country, who have conducted a series of far reaching investigations of the liquor question, do not advocate local option as a remedy for the drink evil.

The latest edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica (11th edition), Vol. 16, page 767, under the head of Liquor Laws in the United States, speaks of local option as follows:

It prevails mainly in rural districts and small towns; in the larger towns it is best tolerated where they are in close proximity to "safety valves" or licensed areas in which liquor can be obtained; the large cities do not adopt it. On the other hand, it has some serious disadvantages. The perpetually renewed struggle between the advocates and opponents of prohibition is a constant cause of social and political strife; and the alternate shutting up and opening of public houses in many places makes continuity of administration impossible, prevents the executive from getting the traffic properly in hand, upsets the habits of the people, demoralizes the trade and stands in the way of steady improvement.

If the step in the right direction leads to prohibition we should go slow before adopting this policy. Prohibition has obtained in nearly all the New England states, and has been abandoned in all but Maine, where it has been a farce for fifty years. The "Commercial," a newspaper of Bangor, Me., in speaking of the number of arrests in Bangor between June 1st and January 1st, last year, speaks as follows: "Now as the conditions, from June 1st the number of arrests for intoxication, according to the official records at the police station, was 1153 and 363 shelters. This is pretty conclusive proof that Bangor is not dry as Governor Haines has stated." During the entire last year let us see what happened in York. I quote from the York Dispatch.

"Attention is called by the report to the unusual freedom of the city from crime during the past year." Total arrests: females, 50; males, 838.

Mr. Speaker, my humble opinion is the trouble with all our liquor legislation has been the lack of pains-taking, thought and careful study of the question. For years we move along in the even tenner of our ways giving no thought to this great question, then suddenly we become awakened to the fact that our progress along the line of temperance is not what it should be and we rush from extreme laxity to extreme rigor in our hasty effort to procure a remedy. We select our remedy first and think about its merits or demerits afterward. No great question has ever been solved in this spirit, all the great questions before the American people, there is none before the public to-day so intricate and so much in need of a sane and wise solution as the liquor problem. It can be solved, but it calls for wisdom, for calmness and for fairness in the final analysis of its solution.

Mr. BARNETT. Mr. Speaker, today all eyes are turned toward Harrisburg. It goes without saying that for a year past, in Pennsylvania, Local Option has been in the limelight, and a burning question. One man even said, "To H— with Local Option." It may well be believed he was one of the most foolish men in the world. He was sending it where, a little later he may stand a good chance of meeting it again.

Abraham Lincoln, in the dark day of the Civil War, the life of the nation hanging in the balance, walked the streets of Washington with some Government friends. Seeing a humble bug on its back, its feet clawing the air, he turned back and put the bug upon its feet. His friends looked on in amazement and spoke with a sneer about what he had done. That greatest American replied: "Gentlemen, if I had not put that bug upon his feet, and given him an equal chance in the world with all the other bugs of his kind, I would not have felt quite right."

And now harken, gentlemen. Today in Pennsylvania there are thousands of men thrown upon their backs by John Barleycorn, and who are pawing the air and feeling upward for the ground. Shall we feel quite right, if we fail to do what we can to put them on their feet and give them an equal chance with all the other men in their class? How much is a man better than a tumble bug?

Years previoiusly, while that same greatest American was campaigning in Illinois with other candidates, as they neared the town where they were to spend the night, he saw by the roadside some little birds that had been thrown from their nests. He asked the driver to stop, alighted and turned back, telling the coachman to drive on, that he would walk the rest of the way. Arriving at the hotel the other candidates wanted to know what he turned back for. He told them and added, "If I had not put those little birds back in their nest in the care and protection of the mother bird, I could not have slept tonight."

Harken, gentlemen, there are today in Pennsylvania, more than 50,000 children who have been cast out of their home, or whose home is a hovel, because of strong drink. And shall we be able to sleep tonight if we fail to do all in our power to restore them to home and mother? How much are the little children better than the sparrows?

For one hundred years Lord Nelson has been the naval hero of Great Britain. On that Sunday morning before his famous victory at Trafalgar over the much stronger fleets of France and Spain, he reminded his officers and men, that at that hour their wives and mothers and sisters and daughters in England were on their knees praying for them. And again as they bore down upon their enemy, he signaled from his flagship, "England expects every man to do his duty."

At this very hour in Pennsylvania, April 21, 1915, a multitude of hearts are lifted to Almighty God that this great enemy of mankind may be destroyed. And Pennsylvania expects every man to do his duty.

Every man has his part in life, his work to do. He is responsible for this work. That work will be inspected It will pass before the bar of conscience. It will have to run the gauntlet of public opinion. It will be inspected by the Supreme Architect of the universe. An important work in our lives is immediately before us.

In childhood at our mother's knee, we learned to lisp, "Now I lay me." Some men never get too old to use that prayer. Among those was John Quincy Adams, ex-president of the United States, the "old man eloquent," who fell in the harness at four score years while addressing the U. S. House of Representatives. That is an evening prayer It might well have a companion prayer, a morning prayer, which might run thus:

"Now I get me up to work,
I pray Thee, Lord, my work's all right."
If I should die before the night,
I pray Thee, Lord, my work's all right."

Mr. MURDOCH. Mr. Speaker, I am against this bill for the following reasons: First, it does not take the granting of licenses out of the hands of the judges as those in favor of the bill claim. Second, I am here to represent the majority of my people or my constituents. The local option people of my district cannot expect me to vote in favor of this bill because they tried their best to defeat me, both at the primaries and at the election. I received a letter a few days ago begging and praying and demanding that I support the local option bill. In this letter they state—"think of your own mother," and many other such expressions. But allow me to say, Mr. Speaker, that the people who forwarded this letter did not think of my dear mother the Sunday previous to election day, when a certain man who is in this House now, ridiculed me, and by so doing my mother also, in every possible way. He made a statement in public, that I could not read or write and did not have a common school education, and many other things too ridiculous to mention. These remarks were made in the Methodist Church, Wilkinsburg, and only last night the Governor admitted that I had been mistreated, and this man agreed in the presence of the Governor on a former occasion that he was wrong When I proved that he made certain statements about me, he said, "I meant Mr. Benn, your colleague." I wish to say to the members of this House, that had this certain man called on the school authorities, he would have learned, I never failed in any studies, and never missed a promotion. I went to work after I passed for High School, because my father became sick and I had a mother and two brothers and a sister to support and care for, and I thank God that He furnished me health to make good, and lean upon Him. Some of the members of this House claim I never will be returned again, if I vote against the local option bill.

I again want to say to you I shall vote against this bill because I think many of its promoters are not fair and just.

Mr. LYNCH. Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House. I desire at this time to offer my reasons for voting on this question as I shall. Local option was a clear cut issue in Fayette County last fall and in my particular district there were three candidates for the one office. Two of us were on an anti-local option platform and the third man advocated local option. The two antis received nearly five times as many votes as the local option candidate. This clearly indicates the feeling in my district and I shall vote accordingly. I thank you.

Mr. HAPGOOD. Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to this bill because it is not a Local Option Bill but a County Option Bill.

At a meeting held in the City of Bradford, on the night of October 17th, 1914, having been put on the ticket by the Republican County Committee the same afternoon to fill a vacancy thereon, I said during my speech: "I am convinced moreover that every community in the State of Pennsylvania should have the right to say whether any liquor licenses should be granted in their community, and if elected I will support a Local Option Law to that end." The issue was joined and those newspapers opposing me as well as my opponents on the other tickets emphasized the fact that they were for County Option and I was not. The voters gave my colleague and I the majority and I had the honor of being the highest man on all legislative tickets. The majority ruled in McKean County last fall and the county unit was certainly defeated; and now those who opposed us want to vote again in spite of the majority against them then, and want us to vote the same as our opponents would have voted had they been elected; moreover we carried McKean County and the Governor did not.

The gentleman from York, Mr. Lanius, has made a strong speech in my opinion against this bill rather than for it.

We were told this morning in the executive interview published in the papers that the political party who opposes this is doomed, but what are the facts. On August 29th, 1914, the Republican State Committee met in Pittsburgh, and the handsome and distinguished gentleman from Chester County who has been the Field Marshal here in the preliminaries for to-day endeavored to have that committee put a plank in the platform endorsing local option; there were only six votes in favor of it and the candidate for Governor who at that time was present did not insist, urge, or request to have it inserted. In the absence of any plank in the party platform, I have the same right, and so have every member of this House to stand upon their personal statement on this question steadfastly and without alteration, just as much so as has the Governor. We all know the splendid and oldtime majorities given the Republican Party last fall at the polls.

Now Mr. Speaker and gentlemen what standing would any one of us have or any of our constituents to come here for Legislation or for patronage if we did not bring with us in support for such legislation or patronage, the endorsement of the representatives of our own county; yes and even our own Senatorial and Congressional districts. Without this we would not get very far nor even have a standing if we were to come thus bereft before the Governor on the question of patronage for our county, therefore it is not surprising that Governor Brumbaugh should fail in this question when even the representatives from his own legislative district are not in favor of this bill and those from his own city and county are in the majority overwhelmingly against it; surely it is not asking too much when we ask should he not at least get after his own representatives before he tries to use methods to defeat representatives from other districts. The Grangers of my county and the other counties and the Anti-Saloon League have never been to any Legislature with a County Option Bill. They were not for it in the campaign last fall and they were not for Brumbaugh but were for McCormick. This bill will fall and when a bill does pass it will be a Home Rule bill, in reality, with the unit a town, borough or city and also upon a basis that will not violate the seventh commandment "Thou shalt not steal."

County Option is not Local Option and County Option would only turn back the clock of progress along these lines. It is now the law and the court proceedure that petitioners for, or remonstrants against the granting of a license, must come from the town, borough or city in which the license is to be granted. This bill would make every voter in the county in many cases thirty and forty miles away, to have the functions or either a petition or a remonstrant against such a license. The people of Ludlow and Corryville and Ceres and so-forth in McKean county have a perfect right to say whether there will be a license granted in their towns but they are not interested one iota in the question as to whether the Hotel Holly and the Hotel St. James, etc., get a license in the city of Bradford, and they should not be considered either as petitioners for or remonstrants against such licenses.

The Governor on the night of April 6th, at the big mass meeting in this city said: "Let there be no mistake, no man dare say that he voted for me and did not know that I stood for County Option." That is a correct statement and the man to honor is the man who stands after election true to his pre-election promise and that should be the standard for your vote today gentlemen of the House and will be of mine for I can just as truly say that no man dare say that he voted for me and did not know that I did not stand for County Option and the Governor cannot and should not deny to you and to me the same consistent conclusion which he reserves for himself.

We as members of the General Assembly constitute the legiislative branch of this government co-ordinate with the executive and judicial branches. Let us not forget this and let us not allow any other branch of the Government to forget it. Let us vote on this and let us vote on all other questions regardless of how we may have failed to do so in the past during this session, entirely upon the question as to how the people of our County wish us to vote to represent them and for the best interests of the Commonwealth; and not allow any other inspiration or program to be paramount, whether it be promulgated by any association or individual even though that individual be an official of the Commonwealth, and regardless of how embarrassing the situation might become through any unusual and improper methods of seeming intimidation that may be used.

I asked to have the committee amend this bill to a town, borough and city unit and also proposed same when on second reading, but the sponsor refused to consider any amendments and therefor, I refuse to support it.

Mr. LEIGHNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say a few words defining my position and answering some remarks made here to-day, which I think both unkind and unfair. I am in favor of Local Option or any other fair measure, having for its purpose the lessening of the drink habit or that tends to sobriety. I claim for County Local Option that it is just and fair, because the county supports the courts, jails and prisoners. Its taxes are paid into a common fund for these purposes. Among others, and as a taxpayer, I as well as others, have a right to say what shall contribute to the expenses of the county of which we are citizens, and the same rights which apply to people of my county applies to the citizens of other counties. The question before us to-day is not whether license shall be granted in the several counties of the State, but it is, have the people in the counties a right to say with their vote whether or not liquor license shall be established within their borders. That is the question and no other.

We have heard much to-day of the rights of individuals and of patriotism, but these same gentlemen object to giving the people of a county the right to say how they shall govern themselves. Are they fearful lest the people are incompetent to rule the county in which they live. If so, then why so much talk of our forefathers' spirit of self-government. The people shall rule has been and is to-day the boast of all patriotic people.

We are responsible for our votes not only to the people living to-day but to those of future generations—the world is either better or worse because we have lived in it.

Instead of finding fault or criticising our noble Governor we should thank God for giving us such an executive. We must all admit that it was his pure and upright life, clear brains and noble character, which was the great recommendation for his selection to the high and honorable position which he now occupies. He declared his position on the question of Local Option publicly and plainly during the campaign when a candidate and why should he now be criticised for trying to put into operation that which he then believed and still believes to be right.

What moral or helpful organization was ever conceived by or put in operation by any man while in the liquor business. I will not sacrifice right principle for office. I will stand by the Governor on this question because he believes it is right. I believe it is right, and I believe my constituents think it is right.

Mr. BRUMGARD. Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House: We are met in this session of this Legislature where great moral questions are the issue. Among them, is the question as to whether the people of this Commonwealth shall have the right to say at the polls whether or not the saloon shall longer exist. What we say here will soon be forgotten but what we do shall be remembered by those living and blessed by unborn generations. Gentlemen, we are engaged in a great battle, and what we do here will be recorded and after the Western sun of life has lingered around our doors, we shall have to give an account before the judgment Bar of God. Mr. Speaker, before I shall go further into my speech, I shall not prevail upon myself to refrain from answering the two Gentlemen who preceded me, namely, the Hon. Gentlemen, Mr. Kitts of Erie and Mr. Stein of Allegheny. First as to Mr. Kitts, he boasts that he does not belong to the Catholic Denomination and he ridicules the ministry, the Y. M. C. A., and the sainted mothers of our land. Now since he is not a Catholic and we can take it from his ridiculous remarks upon the ministry, where does he belong. Our Jewish friends could not claim him therefore this honorable body and those present may form their own opinion. He has given us a fair essay on compensating the liquor dealers and the dastardly attack on Billy Sunday. I challenge the Gentleman to prove his assertions. In regard to compensation, let us go to the city of the dead, call back the ruined and wrecked manhood who have been sent out into eternity reeling drunkards to fill a Christless Grave. And have them reformed and prepared for such an untried journey, also have the liquor dealers pension the widowed mothers and the orphans, all of which is a direct cause of the liquor interests, then we might consider compensation. Now in regards to Mr. Stein, the Gentleman gives us as his authority, Bishop Potter and Cardinal Gibbons as opposed to temperance. Allow me to give you as my authority, the good God who has taught us to be pure and holy, also Saint Paul who imperatively says, "be not drunk with wine." Again the Gentleman quotes from the deckalogue thundered from Mt. Sinai "Thou shalt not steal." I heartily agree with the gentleman. We should not steal the virtue and morality of the Human Race with such a nefarious business and I will go on further and in the some breath the words came thundering forth from Sinai, "thou shalt not kill;" and the saloon is the most deadening institution that was ever instituted. He also boasts that he does not drink himself for this. I most heartily commend the honorable gentleman, but why should he impose an evil upon some one else that he himself refrains from? Mr. Speaker, we have just passed the workman's compensation act, and I am told by a President of a large Corporation that they will not take into their employment, anyone who uses intoxicating liquors as a beverage and now we are considering as to whether or not we shall legalize the saloon which will bar a workingman from our mills and factories.

The County which I represent has a population of 231,000, of which the majority is pleading to do away with this monster evil. In my home town of Monessen, we have a pay roll of $6,034,000. annually. In a statement made by Wallace H. Rowe, President of the Pittsburgh Steel Company, who emphatically says that 20 per cent. of the above wages goes direct for drink which is worse than wasted not saying anything of the crime and what it costs the taxpayer. Now in view of these and numerous other incidents that I could give you I appeal to you, gentlemen, to stand to your true manhood and do away with this evil. In conclusion, let me say be not like the quarry slave, scourged to his dungeon but may we be like the one who wraps the drapery of a God given conscience around him and lies down to pleasant dreams.

Mr. STEEDLE. Mr. Speaker, in lieu of the fact that we have sat here and listened attentively for the past four hours, to the deliberations of this great and important question, and as I feel that all of the oratory we have and what might be said here for four hours more, would not change an iota the question of the votes, I therefore move the previous question.

The motion was seconded by the following members:

Messrs. Adams, McCaig, Woodward, Sullivan, Neville, Hoffman, Geiser, Lawlor, Hubler, McArdle, Ehrhart, Ostrander, Cummings, Lipschutz, McNichol, Dawson, Fruit, Baker, Bayer, Curry and others.

On the question,

Shall the main question be put?

It was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HESS. Mr. Speaker, I move that any gentleman who desired to speak on this question and who has been prevented, by this motion, from having that privilege, be permitted to hand his remarks to the Chair and have them printed in the Legislative Journal.

The SPEAKER. Under the rules of the House every member has the right to file his reasons with his vote.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE.

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, I understand that these reasons cannot be filed except at the time the member's name is called.

The SPEAKER. Under the rule they can be filed after the roll is called.

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, that is the point I wish to bring out.

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires to say that they must be filed within this legislative day to be printed in the Journal.

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, I desire further to ask for information whether the Legislative day will expire when this House takes a recess, or when it adjourns.

The SPEAKER. When we adjourn tonight.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken.

The SPEAKER. The roll will be verified.

Less than the majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the bill falls.

REASON FOR VOTE.

Representing as I do, a district in which the sentiment is overwhelmingly opposed to Local Option, I vote in accordance with the wishes of my constituents.

I. G. GORDON FORSTER.

REASON FOR VOTE.

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, I desire to state my reason for voting against House Bill No. 283, known as the Local Option Bill, first, because I deem it an unfair proposition without compensation; second, because elected from my district over Local Option candidate by a greater majority than these candidates had votes.

WM. T. WEIR, JR.

REASON FOR VOTE.

I give as my reasons to-day for voting for House Bill No. 283, known as the "Local Option Bill," that since the November election I have received personal letters and petitions, along with personal requests, asking me to support this measure, amounting to between 3,000 and 4,000 of my constituents of the Third Legislative District, believing that I should represent their wishes, I, therefore, vote "Aye" on this bill.

JOSIAH M. LANDIS,

Member of the Third Legislative District of Montgomery County.

REASON FOR VOTE.

I am convinced that many more than a majority of my constituents are opposed to this legislation. For this reason I vote "no.'

A. B. HESS.

REASON FOR VOTE.

I desire to be placed on record in support of my voting in the negative on House Bill No. 283, as follows:

Soliciting at a very recent date an expression from my 28th Ward constituents as to their wishes in respect to my course of action as to my support of this "Local Option" measure, the returns gave me no conscientious alternative but to vote as above.

CLARENCE A. ROWELL.

RECESS.

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair will declare a recess until 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Whereupon, at 3:15 o'clock P. M. the House took a recess until 7:30 o'clock P. M.

AFTER RECESS.

The House reconvened at 7.30 P. M.

The SPEAKER (Charles A. Ambler) in the Chair.

PETITIONS.

FAVORING PASSAGE OF COUNTY LOCAL OPTION LAW.

Mr. ALCORN presented the petitions of citizens of Clearfield County favoring the passage of the County Local Option bill.

Referred to the Committee on Law and Order.

Mr. DELL presented the petition of citizens of Mapleton Depot favoring the erection of a monument to Molly Pitcher.

Referred to the Committee on Appripriations.

Mr. DELL presented the petition of Camp No. 171, Patriotic Order of Americans, Washington Camp No. 662, Patriotic Order Sons of America favoring the erection of a monument to Molly Pitcher.

FAVORING ERECTION OF MONUMENT TO PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND THEIR FOUNDERS.

Mr. DELL presented the petitions of Washington Camp No. 662, Patriotic Order Sons of America, Washington Camp No. 374, Patriotic Order Sons of America favoring the erection of a monument to public schools and founders thereof.

Referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

FAVORING PASSAGE OF THE OAKS BILL TO PROVIDE FOR THE INSPECTION OF DETENTION HOMES, ETC.

The SPEAKER presented the petition of citizens of Huntingdon county favoring the passage of the Oaks bill to provide for the inspection of detention homes, etc.

Referred to the Committee on Judiciary General.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED.

Mr. EHRHARDT ask and obtained unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

By Mr. EHRHARDT. House Bill No. 1630.

An Act authorizing the commission appointed to investigate the Pennsylvania Oral School for the Deaf to accept the said school, including all buildings, grounds and equipment, taking an assignment of the surface rights of said grounds only; providing for the payment of all claims, debts and liens against said institution not exceeding the sum of thirty thousand dollars, and making an appropriation for that purpose.

On the question,
Will the House concur to the resolution of the Senate?
It was agreed to.

SENATE MESSAGE.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced informed that the Senate has insisted upon its amendments non-concurred in by the House of Representatives to Senate Bill No. 245, entitled:

An Act to amend an act entitled "An Act authorizing appeals from assessments of taxes in this Commonwealth to the courts of common pleas" approved the nineteenth day of April Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine by giving the right to an appeal to other property owners and to the city borough county township school district or other public corporations entitled to levy and collect taxes on the assessment complained of

And has appointed Messrs. Patton, W. W. Smith and Farley, a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee of the House of Representatives, (if the House of Representatives shall appoint such committee), on the subject of the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

Mr. BEYER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House adhere to its non-concurrence in the amendments made by the Senate to Senate Bill No. 245 and appoint a committee of conference to confer with a similar committee of the Senate already appointed to consider the differences existing between the two Houses in relation to said bill.

Mr. ROWELL. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

APPOINTMENT OF CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON SENATE BILL NO. 245.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on final passage of House Bill No. 1516, as follows:

An Act to amend the twenty-third subdivision of corporations of the second class in section two of an act which became a law on the seventeenth day of April Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six entitled "A supplement to an act approved April twenty-ninth one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four entitled "An Act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of certain corporations" providing for the further regulation of such corporations and for the incorporation and regulation of certain additional corporations" providing for the incorporation and regulation of stage and omnibus lines specifying their purposes and defining their motive power

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That the twenty-third subdivision of corporations of the second class in section two of an act which became a law on the seventeenth day of April one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six entitled "A supplement to an act approved April twenty-nine one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four entitled 'An Act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of certain corporations' providing for the further regulation of such corporations and for the incorporation and regulation of certain additional corporations" which reads as follows

"XXIII The formation and operation of stage and omnibus lines" be and the same is hereby amended so as to be and read as follows

XXIII The installing maintaining and operation of stage and omnibus lines for public use in the conveyance of passengers and commodities on highways and elsewhere and the using of horse drawn vehicles or motor-vehicles propelled by electricity from overhead wires Provided however That nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize corporations formed hereunder to lay or maintain rails or tracks upon the highway Also provided That no company incorporated hereunder shall install and operate its lines upon and along any street in any city upon which a street railway is laid or authorized to be laid and no company incorporated hereunder shall install and operate its lines on any highway in any borough or township upon which a street railway line is constructed or authorized to be constructed for more than a distance of one and one half miles and then only when so doing is necessary to complete a continuous route to connect points at least one and one half miles distant along the route on each side the points of intersection with the said highway

Section 2 When any such line using power from overhead wires shall be installed on any street or highway within the supervision of any city county borough or township the same shall be installed therein under and subject to such reasonable rules and regulations as shall be made by the local authorities thereof in pursuance of the authority vested in them by law and when any such line using power as aforesaid shall be installed on any highway within the supervision of the State Highway Department the same shall be installed therein only under and subject to such reasonable conditions restrictions and regulations as may be prescribed by the State Highway Department

Section 3 The said vehicles and the use thereof when other than horse drawn vehicles shall conform in all respects with legislative requirements relating to motor-vehicles

Section 4 The formation and conduct of the affairs of companies incorporated hereunder shall be subject to and in conformity with legislative requirements relating to public service companies

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. LIPSCHUTZ. Mr. Speaker, I would like the sponsor of this bill to explain it.

Mr. SONES. Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, this bill provides for electric omnibuses. I will try to explain the features of it. These electric omnibuses get their power through overhead wires. They resemble a trolley car. They are heated and lighted by electricity generated by a power house with overhead wires.

Now the purpose of this bill is to avoid confusion in getting charters to incorporate these companies. Under the Corporation Act of 1874, Clause 23 of the second class corporations provides for the formation and operation of stage omnibus lines. Now, if a charter is gotton under this clause the Courts may say that such omnibuses did not exist at the time of the passage of this act and in that way knock out the charter. Then Clause 20 of this same act of the second class corporations has a general clause which provides for the incorporation of companies for any other purpose not otherwise provided for. Now if they apply for a charter under that clause the courts may say that they should have applied under clause 23; so you see there is confusion, and to avoid confusion and get these charters and not have them disturbed after they get them is the purpose of this act, so that these companies may be properly incorporated and thus avoid this confusion. This is an excellent bill. It does not interfere with trolleys or railroads, but it provides for facilities out in the rural districts. It is a benefit to the county districts. I have in mind now a district where I taught school some years ago, where they almost prayed for a trolley line and the trolley companies say they cannot afford to go into that district and they have tried to get a railroad but in vain. This will provide facilities for the farmer and in the outlying districts where trolley lines will not go.

BILL POSTPONED.

I understand that there are some that would like to look into the merits of the bill and, therefore, Mr. Speaker, I move you, sir, that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion .

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE.

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 1507, entitled:

An Act for the protection of sheep and the incidental destruction of certain dogs

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, in response to the dogs of war (referring to barking and baaing by the members of the House) I wish simply to state that this bill is not a joke. It is in line with the principles of protection for which the Republican Party stands and which this State and this Nation is so much in need of. This bill is not a protection so much for the sheep in themselves but for a great industry which can be built up and will be built up in this State when there is proper protection given. This bill does not in any way make an effort to intimidate or to in any way interfere with the proper propagation and ownership of dogs, but it simply requires that if you have a dog which you value and which you wish to keep that you go to the trouble to keep that dog out of a field in which there may be sheep so that the owner of the sheep may have a fifty-fifty chance of cultivating the industry of sheep and of raising in this State an industry which will amount in our community alone to one hundred thousand dollars and may reach two hundred and fifty thousand dollars during a year. We ask for this protection of the sheep inustry, or any other industry in this State, and this is a protection that is needed and which all the States need.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, we are not apposed to any bill that protects sheep but some of us having valuable hunting dogs and according to this bill, if you will read it carefully, you cannot use a chain on your dog heavy enough; you cannot put enough men around your dog to protect him if you were leading him through a field in which there happened to be sheep. We don't object to a reasonable bill; we are in favor of a reasonable bill, but we do believe that when you pay a tax on a dog for the protection of that dog and he is our public property that we should at least be permitted to put him into an iron grate and put him on our shoulder and carry him through a field in which there are sheep. According to this bill you cannot do that, if a man wanted to shoot him, even if he was on your shoulder.

Mr. HABGOOD. Mr. Speaker, as there are a number of members of the House absent to-night, and not having any desire, whatever, to have this bill considered on snap judgment, if the gentleman from Huntingdon thinks that he needs further consideration for the benefit of the members who are absent, before voting on this bill, I would like to have him say so.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, I simply wanted to file my reasons for voting.

On the question, recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—1.

Baker.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 865, entitled:

An Act relating to the assessment of real estate for taxation

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. ALBEE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have the sponsor of this bill explain it.

Mr. W. H. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, this bill is to correct a condition which has practically resulted in making the Act of 1844 a dead letter. The Act of 1844 provided that in the assessment of real estate for the purpose of taxation, tools and machinery were to be included. In many of the counties of the State it has never been enforced in applying to tools and machinery. Some years ago special legislation was passed exempting Allegheny County from the operation of the Act of 1844, and then subsequently exempting Lackawanna County. This makes it general so that tools and machinery not actually in use in manufacturing establishments shall not be included in the assessment of real estate for the purpose of taxation.

Mr. McVICAR. Mr. Speaker, if I read this bill correctly it exempts machinery from taxation, from assessment and taxation in the boroughs and townships of this Commonwealth. This is not true at the present time, and I believe that this would be a serious interference with the taxing power of the boroughs and townships. In the manufacturing district in which I live I know that our people are in favor of the taxation of machinery and tools in manufacturing establishments. Further I know a number of boroughs that if you would eliminate from their assessed valuation the machinery they would have already exceeded their constitutional limitation. Now I have no objection personally to the bill, if the boroughs and townships are eliminated, but this makes a serious change so far as they are concerned, and I believe it would be a hurt and injury to those districts. Take for instance, in Allegheny County in some of the large boroughs and townships, I presume one-third or possibly one-half of the assessed valuation is upon machinery, in these big manufacturing places. It will seriously hurt them if we take that amount from the total valuation, and it will mean that the owners of residences and other places will have to be additionally taxed in the future.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. W. H. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, in view of the objections raised by the gentlemen from Allegheny, I move that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present, in order to see whether we cannot get it in shape satisfactory to all.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 1478, as follows:

An Act to amend section four of article four of an act entitled "An Act defining public service companies; and providing for the regulation by prescribing and defining their duties and liabilities; prescribing, defining, and limiting their powers, and regulating their incorporations, and to a limited extent regulating municipal corporations engaged or about to engage in the business of public service companies; creating and establishing a public service commission for the regulation aforesaid; prescribing and defining the powers and duties of such commission and its officers, including the exclusive power to regulate the construction, alteration, re-location, or abolition of the crossings of railroad corporations, street railway corporations, or other public service companies and of public highways by the tracks or other facilities of said companies; providing for the ascertainment by the Commission of the expense and damages resulting from such construction, alteration, re-location, or abolition, and for the payment of such expense and damages, severally or proportionately by the public service companies interested, the State, or municipal corporation concerned and giving persons whose property is thereby taken, injured, or destroyed, authority to sue the Commonwealth for damages in such cases; providing for the terms, salaries, and compensation of the members of the commission, its officers, counsel, and employes; prescribing and regulating the practice and procedure before such commission, and upon appeal and judicial review of its orders and determinations by the courts of common pleas; and giving the court of common pleas of Dauphin County exclusive jurisdiction of such appeals in certain cases, and all injunctions, mandamus, or other appropriate proceedings to enforce the provisions of this act and the orders of the commission, and to restrain such orders, subject to an appeal to the supreme court; prescribing penalties, fines ,and imprisonment for the violation of the provisions of this act, and for the violation of the orders of said commission; making it the duty of the public service commission to enforce the provisions of the act approved the nineteenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eleven, entitled "An Act to promote the safety of travelers and employes on railroad, by compelling common carriers by railroads to properly man their trains;" by amending section nine thereof; repealing the act approved the thirty-first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and seven, which provided for the appointment of the Pennsylvania State Railroad Commission; and sections one and two of the act, approved the fourth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, entitled "An Act to enforce the provisions of the seventeenth article of the Constitution, relative to railroads and canals;" and an act, entitled "To provide the maximum car service charges, including car storage charges, that railroad companies and corporations or associations may charge and collect on each car loading, and not unloaded within the free time for unloading cars, and fixing the free time that shall be allowed for unloading cars," approved the twenty-fourth day of May, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and seven; and the proviso of clause three and the proviso of clause seven of section thirty-four of the act, entitled "An Act to provide for the incorporation and regulation of certain corporations," approved the twenty-ninth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four and all other legislation inconsistent with or supplied by this act," approved July twenty-sixth, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

SENATE MESSAGE.

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE.

House Bill No. 756.

An Act to amend an act approved the seventh day of May one thousand nine hundred seven entitled "An Act regulating and defining the powers and duties of the Dental Council and the State Board of Dental Examiners providing for appointment of examiners defining qualifications of applicants for examination condition of granting licenses regulating and limiting the practice of dentistry prohibiting practice by or employment of unlicensed persons and providing punishment therefor and disposition of fees and fines and fixing the appropriation to the Dental Council" with the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives is requested.

The SPEAKER. The clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk then read the amendments as follows:

Section 1 in line 158, after the word "Examiners" strike out the following: "After the first day of July one thousand nine hundred sixteen the required course shall be four years instead of three years and the Board of Dental Examiners may examine applicants for license in the fundamental branches at the end of the second scholastic year" insert, after the word "society" in line 307, the following: "After July first one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one the State Board of Dental Examiners shall require that candidates for license for the practice of dentistry in the State of Pennsylvania shall have been graduated from a dental school maintaining a course of study consisting of four annual sessions each in separate academic years and further When this provision shall become operative the State Board of Dental Examiners may examine prospective candidates for license to practice dentistry in the fundamental branches of the curriculum at the end of the second year of the four years' course"

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments of the Senate?

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I do not understand the amendments as read and I think there has been some mistake, as that is not my understanding of the amendments, and for that reason I would move that the House nonconcur in the amendments made by the Senate.

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

BILL RECOMMITTED.

Mr. LIPSCHUTZ. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill No. 625, File Folio 6063, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Lying-In-Charity Hospital Philadelphia Pennsylvania on page 19 of to-day's calendar, be recommitted to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

TIME OF BILLS EXTENDED.

Mr. W. H. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, on page 47 of to-day's calendar, bills on Third Reading Postponed, there are three bills, as follows:

House Bill No. 200.

An Act amending the first and seventeenth sections of an act approved the seventeenth day of June one thousand nine hundred thirteen entitled "An Act to provide revenue for State and county purposes and in cities coextensive with counties for city and county purposes imposing taxes upon certain classes of personal property providing for the assessment and collection of the same providing for the duties and compensation of prothonotaries and recorders in connection therewith and modifying existing legislation which provided for raising revenue for State purposes" relating to taxing bonds mortgages and other securities and also by removing the exemption of life and fire insurance corporations having no capital stock from the provisions of the act

House Bill No. 199.

An Act to raise revenue by subjecting to taxation certain real estate not heretofore taxable as such of railroad companies street railway companies canal companies bridge companies gas companies pipeline companies ferry companies electric light heat and power companies water companies telegraph companies telephone companies express companies and all other public service corporations or so called quasi public corporations of the same or other kinds the sponsor of which is the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Roney. Mr. Roney is now conducting a hearing on the Anthracite Coal Tax Bills and I understand this is the last day on which these bills can be called up. I therefore ask unanimous consent to extend the time one week.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent to extend the time on these bills one week?

Is there any objection?

The Chair hears none and the time is extended one week.

HOUSE BILL NO. 566 MADE A SPECIAL ORDER.

Mr. SPANGLER. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill No. 566, File Folio 5557, entitled:

An Act relating to and regulating self propelled traction engines or tractors equipped with metal tired wheels, and vehicles trailing after or propelled by traction engines or tractors; providing for their registration and the licensing of certain operators, by the Highway Department; prohibiting the operation of any traction engine or tractor by any person when intoxicated; forbidding the passage of any law laying a tax upon, or requiring the registration of traction engines or tractors, by any county, city, borough or incorporated town or township; establishing the rights of traction engines or tractors upon the public highways, with relation to other vehicles; providing for their equipment and for the width of tires to be used upon vehicles trailing after or propelled by traction engines or tractors; regulating the service of process and proceedings in actions of damages arising therefrom; providing for arrest, and for service of process, and proceedings for violation of this act; prescribing the penalties therefor; and providing for the disposition of fees and fines imposed thereunder.

Mr. LEIGHNER. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE.

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, I move that the vote by which the House refused to concur in the Senate amendment made to House Bill No. 756, entitled:

An Act to amend an act approved the seventh day of May one thousand nine hundred seven entitled "An Act regulating and defining the powers and duties of the Dental Council and the State Board of Dental Examiners providing for appointment of examiners defining qualifications of applicants for examination condition of granting licenses regulating and limiting the practice of dentistry prohibiting practice by or employment of unlicensed persons and providing punishment therefor and disposition of fees and fines and fixing the appropriation to the Dental Council" be reconsidered.

Mr. BAUERLE. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The amendments will again be read by the Clerk.

The Clerk then read the amendments as follows:

Amend section one, line 158, by striking out after the word "examiners", the following: "After the first day of July one thousand nine hundred sixteen the required course shall be four years instead of three years and the Board of Dental Examiners may examine applicants for license in the fundamental branches at the end of the second scholastic year"

Also, after the word "society" in line 307, by adding the following: "After July first one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one the State Board of Dental Examniers shall require that candidates for license for the practice of dentistry in the State of Pennsylvania shall have been graduated from a dental school maintaining a course of study consisting of four annual sessions each in separate academic years and further When this provision shall become operative the State Board of Dental Examiners may examine prospective candidates for license to practice dentistry in the fundamental branches of the curriculum at the end of the second year of the four years' course"

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. FORSTER. Mr. Speaker, the amendments which have been inserted in this bill are satisfactory to me as sponsor, and I ask that the House concur in them.

VOL. 3. HARRISBURG, PA., THURSDAY, APRIL 22, 1915. No. 47.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, April 22, 1915.

The House met at 10:00 o'clock A. M.
The SPEAKER (Charles A. Ambler) in the Chair.

The Chaplain, Rev. F. W. Staley, offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, we thank Thee this morning for the possession of life; a life that has vast endowments; as the little grain of wheat holds within it the vast harvest of a nation and as the acorn holds within it the mighty forests, so these lives of ours hold within them vast possibilities; tremendous possibilities, and these possibilities go out in achievements in scholarship, in statesmanship, in morals and in religion. It is a life that has been redeemed and is being redeemed by the church in heaven and the church upon earth. O God, may we value these lives of ours and use them for Thy glory and for the upbuilding of Thy Kingdom and for the salvation of men. We ask for Christ's sake. Amen.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the Journal of yesterday's proceedings.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday's proceedings when, on motion of Mr. Lee Smith, the further reading was dispensed with and the Journal was approved.

Mr. HARPER presented the petition of Washington Camp No. 875, Patriotic Order Sons of America, favoring the erection of a monument to Public schools and Founders thereof.

Referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker I move that the vote by which House Bill No. 554, File Folio 5037, entitled:

An Act to provide a standard form of policy contract to be issued by fire insurance companies transacting business in Pennsylvania designating the provisions thereof exempting certain policies and prescribing penalties for any violations was defeated on final passage on April 15th, be reconsidered.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, this bill is the standard policy bill that was defeated a week ago with only 107 members in the House. This is to have a Standard fire policy in the State of Pennsylvania as I explained to you a week ago. We are working now on the New York standard. The Insurance Commissioners of the United States and the Insurance Commissioners of the State of Pennsylvania and the committee which investigated the insurance proposition last year, the result of which work is to attempt to have the standard throughout the United States the same. Now, if you gentlemen will vote to put this bill on the calendar I will ask you to take a copy of it home with you and compare it with the insurance policy that each and every one of you probably have. You will find that this proposed standard is in the interests of the public as compared to the present standard that is in use throughout the State. In the present standard policy that each and every one of you probably hold, you will find a provision there that if your neighbor erects a building near your building that increases the fire hazzard, unless you notify the company, your policy is null and void. We find that the present standard policy in that respect is not fair to the public. Now that is the kind of policy you have at home? If we pass this standard policy you will not be responsible for any increased hazzard because of the actions of your neighbor. In addition to that, your present policy provides that arbitrators can be appointed in case of a loss. The company appointing one arbitrator, the insured appointing another arbitrator and the two arbitrators agree upon a third referee. The present conditions result in many instances, where companies desire to take advantage of time, they instruct their arbitrator not to agree upon the third referee. The result is that frequently the insured after he has met with a loss is held up for months before he can get the arbitration committee completed. Now the policy I am asking you to vote for, provides that if in thirty days the arbitrators do not agree upon a referee you can go into the court and ask the court to name a referee. I am satisfied there is not a member in this House if he understands the question would vote against this standard policy. However, I do not want you in voting to put this bill on the calendar to feel that you are pledged to support it. I only want you to put it on the calendar, and I will promise to postpone it immediately and then you can take a copy of the bill home with you and compare it with your policy and see if I represented it correctly—I try to represent it correctly. This is really legislation in the interest of the public.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill No. 554, File Folio 5037, be postponed for the present.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House has passed it without amendments.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1290, entitled:

An Act validating and authorizing certain proceedings and elections of counties cities boroughs townships school districts and other incorporated districts or municipalities held in pursuance of section fifteen of article nine of the Constitution of this Commonwealth for the purpose of increasing the indebtedness of said districts or municipalities to an amount not exceeding ten per centum of the assessed valuation of taxable property therein and the bonds obligations or securities issued or to be issued in pursuance thereof

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. KUHN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to have the sponsor of this bill explain it

Mr. H. I. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, this is merely a curative act to take care of an error in regard to the publication of notices in the placing of advertisements of bonds in a certain borough in my county, where we wished to bond the borough for water. The work started and they found errors in the technical proceedings, and it has to be done by a general law. This is a very usual proceeding, to cure such defects. I assure the gentleman it is perfectly harmless and that it has passed the Judiciary General Committee.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

NAYS—2.

Davis,
Eppley,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House has passed the same without amendments.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1317, entitled:

An act fixing fees for notaries public

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. WOOD. Mr. Speaker, the purpose of this bill is to bring about uniformity in the fees that are charged by notaries public throughout the State. At the present time these fees are regulated by special cases in the different counties so it is hard to tell, uniformly, what these fees are. The only purpose of this bill is to work out a system of fees which will apply to all counties. There has been no attempt to raise the fees or to increase them, but because of the different conditions in Philadelphia and Allegheny counties, these fees may be somewhat higher for some of the districts, under this bill, than they are at the present time. In voting on this bill I will ask the members to do just as they think the bill justifies. The bill was handed to me by a friend who is an attorney in Philadelphia and he wanted this measure passed because he thought it would do away with a great deal of inconvenience. I will ask the members to vote on what they think are the merits of the bill.

Mr. BAKER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. Wood, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WOOD. Mr. Speaker, yes sir.

Mr. BAKER. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that the fees provided for in this bill, in some instances, are three or four times greater than at present—take in the matter of an affidavit of certificate

Mr. WOOD. Mr. Speaker, I will have to go into some detail if the member insists on it. Making the payment for a promissory note the charge at the present time is seventy-five cents in Philadelphia, in Allegheny county fifty cents. In this bill it is made seventy-five cents. We merely take the Philadelphia fee and make it uniform. If the gentleman thinks it is too high he can vote against the bill. In the matter of a promissory note it is one dollar and fifty cents in Philadelphia, in Allegheny county fifty cents, and the figure in this bill is one dollar. The fee for registering protest of promissory note is thirty-seven and a half cents in Philadelphia, fifty cents in Allegheny and it is made fifty cents in this bill. I don't think it is necessary for me to go through this entire list. I have referred to just a few to show you how they have been arrived at. There has been a compromise between the rates charged in Philadelphia county, Allegheny county and in the country districts. The conditions in large cities are different from those in the smaller communities. It is hard to make a uniform fee that will work well throughout the State. I don't think it is worth our time to try to amend this bill. If there are any members who have objections to it, I would like to have them either vote for or against it as it stands.

Mr. BAKER. Mr. Speaker, the effect of this bill, if it is passed, with the large increase of the fees would be a combination of the notaries which would make it almost impossible for some people with limited means to pay for each oath administered. If a man takes out a commission as a notary public he will be in favor of this increase and they will all stand together and they will have their fees fixed and will stand by this fee the same as attorneys do. Take the matter of pension vouchers coming back from the government: they have to be executed before a notary public and it will work a hardship on a large number of people. Under the provisions of this bill "they may," it does not say they shall, but they will do it if they may.

Mr. KUHN. Mr. Speaker, I am sorry indeed that at this time it becomes necessary for me to protest against the passage of this bill. Here there is an increase of the fees charged and when a man receives his commission as a notary public he will charge whatever he is permitted to charge and for this reason I believe the bill should be defeated. It is a fact that cannot be denied that there is scarcely a bill that comes into this House but that it is for the purpose of raising salaries or fixing fees or making fees and salaries higher and I am here to enter my protest against this kind of legislation.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. WOOD. Mr. Speaker, I move this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. EBY. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Mr. GEISER asked and obtained unanimous consent at this time to call up House Bill No. 1600, Senate Bill No. 847.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the consideration on third reading of House Bill No. 1600 (Senate Bill No. 847), entitled:

An Act to incorporate the Knowlton Bridge Company of Northampton county Pennsylvania

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. GEISER. Mr. Speaker, this is the same bill the identical bill which we passed here about three weeks ago, and when the bill reached the Senate, it was found that the people back of the bill had not advertised as required by the Act of Assembly, so an entirely new bill was introduced, but it is the same identical measure. It passed the Senate unanimously Monday evening and was brought over here and I now desire it to go through the House again.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—0.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk return the same to the Senate with information that the House has passed it without amendment.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1106, entitled:

An Act to amend section five of an act approved the nineteenth day of June one thousand nine hundred eleven entitled "An Act regulating the exhibiting or using of moving pictures and stereopticon views providing for and regulating the examination and approval of moving-picture films or reels and stereopticon views and fixing penalties for the violation of this act

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to say a few words in explanation of this bill. This bill does not repeal the moving picture censorship law, it simply provides that the price of the examination of a film shall be reduced from two and one-half dollars to fifty cents per reel. The reason for the reduction being that the Moving Picture Censorship Bureau now has a great deal of money on its hands that is not necesary and it is a hardship on the moving picture men. I want to say, Mr. Speaker, that there is a bill in the Senate which provides for the regulation of the entire Moving Picture Censorship Bureau in the State of Pennsylvania. I believe that the bill that is in the Senate will pass there and come to this House, and I ask the gentlemen of this House to vote for this bill now, so that the moving picture men have something left that will give them justice.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Stern.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, has it the endorsement of our State Censor

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I do not know.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, is he in favor of or opposed to it

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether he is in favor of it. I never consulted him about this legislation. I only know that before this bill was presented on the floor of the House, I spoke to the Attorney General who prepared the other bill that is in the Senate and I told him that I thought it would be wise to keep this bill on the calendar and have it passed by the House, so that in case the other bill would fail of passage, the moving picture men would have something to fall back on.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker I understood the gentleman to say that the State Board of Censors had a large fund of money at this time

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, that was my understanding, yes sir.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Then, Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman be kind enough to explain to this House, why they are asking for a large increased appropriation to maintain their department. The item in the General Appropriation Bill calls for $64,000,00 for the payment of salaries for employes for two years, and for additional clerks ten thousand dollars and for contingent and travelling expenses, ten thousand dollars, or in all $84,000.00.

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Tioga I desire to say that I have been informed that the appropriation is for the new act about to be passed and does not take into consideration the present situation. That is the information I have.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Stern permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I will.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman be kind enough to tell us what the increase is this year over two years ago in the appropriation?

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I have no idea of the figures. In view of the fact that I have been interrogated so much and know so little about this bill, I move that it be postponed for the present.

Mr. GLASS. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I shall have to object to that motion unless the gentleman will fix a time for a special order so that we will know when the bill is coming up.

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I will agree to notify the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Baldwin.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I am perfectly satisfied to raise no objection if the gentleman will fix a time for the consideration of this bill, but under any other consideration I will make an objection.

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I am perfectly willing to accommodate my friend from Delaware and I will let him suggest the time.

The SPEAKER. This motion to postpone is not debatable, if it is merely to postpone for the present.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I make the motion that it be postponed indefinitely.

The SPEAKER. The Chair informs the gentleman from Delaware Mr. Baldwin that there is a motion before the House.

The question is,

Will the House agree to the motion of Mr. Stern?

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, yes, but I move for an indefinite postponement.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Delaware move to amend the motion made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Stern, to postpone the same indefinitely.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker, I understand the gentleman from Philadelphia is perfectly satisfied to let me fix a time, and I would suggest 9 o'clock on the following Monday evening as a special order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair would inform the gentleman that there is a special order for that hour.

Mr. BALDWIN. Mr. Speaker then I suggest ten o'clock.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from Philadelphia accept the amendment offered by the gentleman from Delaware to his motion?

Mr. STERN. What hour did he fix, Mr. Speaker?

The SPEAKER. Nine o'clock next Monday evening.

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, yes sir, that is acceptable to me.

The SPEAKER. The motion now is that House Bill No. 1106, File Folio 5347 be made a special order for Monday evening at 9 o'clock.

Mr. STERN. Mr. Speaker, I would suggest that you make that 10 o'clock.

HOUSE BILL NO. 1106 MADE A SPECIAL ORDER.

The SPEAKER. It is now suggested that the time be 10 o'clock.

The motion is that House Bill No. 1106 be fixed for a special order at 10 o'clock Monday evening next.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Mr. C. A. SHAFFER. Mr. Speaker I ask unanimous consent of the House to call up House Bill No. 1136, File Folio 6651, entitled:

An Act making it unlawful for the commissioners of any county in this Commonwealth to contract to repair build or rebuild any county bridge without due advertisement for sealed proposals and the employment of a competent engineer. Making it mandatory that location plans be submitted in duplicate to the Water Supply Commission of Pennsylvania and requiring the Attorney General to defend all suits where any county within this Commonwealth is made defendant in a suit for the recovery of damages where infringements on patents royalties designs and patented processes or features are alleged where a county has complied with the provisions of this act excepting contracts not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars on page 28 of to-day's calendar for amendment.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent?

Mr. McCLINTOCK. Mr. Speaker I rise to offer objection at this time.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears objections.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 1341, entitled:

An Act authorizing Charles H. Sleuchter and Mary E. Sleuchter citizens of Green Township Franklin county to bring suit in the court of common pleas of Dauphin county against the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

And said bill having been read at length the third time, considered and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

Reel,

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Mr. AMBLER in the Chair.

Mr. EVANS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up at this time House Bill No. 1025, File Folio 5363, on page nineteen of to-day's calendar. It is only the second bill in order now and I wish to offer amendments. It will not put it any further ahead on the calendar by doing this and I therefore ask unanimous consent to call it up at this time.

Mr. WOBENSMITH. I would like to know why we cannot wait a minute until we reach that bill in its order.

Mr. EHRHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I object.

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears objection

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The Private Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows:

VETO OF HOUSE BILL NO. 800.

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
Executive Chamber, Harrisburg, April 21, 1915.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Gentlemen:—I return herewith without my approval House Bill No. 800 entitled "An Act to repeal an act approved the first day of June one thousand nine hundred and eleven entitled 'An Act to tax traction-engines and providing that the same shall be assessed by the several assessors of the counties of this Commonwealth in the same manner as other articles of personal estate liable for taxation are assessed.'"

This Bill proposes to exempt from taxation traction-engines. The Act of 1911 (P. L. 542) makes these subjects of taxation. These engines use our highways and are as much a subject of taxation as a horse or any other personal property.

For these reasons the Bill is not approved.

(Signed) MARTIN G. BRUMBAUGH.

On the question,

Shall the bill become a law? The objections of the Governor to the contrary notwithstanding?

Mr. HERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that this veto be laid upon the table.

Mr. LIPSCHUTZ. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

RECONSIDERATION OF VOTE.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, I move you that the vote by which House Bill No. 868, File Folio 5073, entitled:

An Act to regulate the operation of motor vehicles for public use in the transportation of persons and the issuance of licenses therefor to prescribe the qualifications of the owners and drivers or operators thereof to define certain rights and duties and fixing penalties for the violation of this act and to provide revenue from the operation of such vehicles for the maintenance of streets and highways was defeated on final passage, be reconsidered, for the purpose amending the bill.

Mr. SONES. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. DELL. Mr. Speaker, I move that further consideration of this bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. SONES. Mr. Speaker, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

RESOLUTION RELATING TO PREVENTION AND SUPPRESSION OF FOREST FIRES.

Mr. PHILLIPS asked and obtained unanimous consent to offer the following resolution which was twice read and agreed to:

Whereas, the parched condition of the woodlands throughout the State and the unusually high winds are responsible in combination for the destructive forest fires now ravaging almost every region in the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, the provisions made by the State government are, at the present juncture, inadequate to accomplish the purpose of forest fire prevention or extinguishment; therefore, be it

Resolved that the Governor of the Commonwealth be requested to call into consultation the officials of the Department of Forestry, the Fire Marshal, the State Police, the Department of the Adjutant General, and such others as to him may seem desirable, and devise a method of prevention and attack for the suppression of forest fires as may be necessary in the present emergency, and to use such means and make such expenditures of money to accomplish the same as may seem desirable

Mr. BARNETT. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to present a bill at this time.

The SPEAKER. The title will be read by the Clerk for information.

The Clerk read the title as follows:

The SPEAKER. The Chair hears objection.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the consideration of Senate Bill No. 35, as follows:

A Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to section eight article nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania

Section 1 Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof

Amend section eight article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania which reads as follows "Section 8 The debt of any county city borough township school district or other municipality or incorporated district except as herein provided shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law but any city the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum in the aggregate at any one time upon such valuation except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes or for the construction of wharves and docks or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks as public improvements owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenue in excess of the interest on said debt or debts and of the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted Provided That a sinking-fund for their cancellation shall be established and maintained" so that it shall read as follows

Section 8 The debt of any county city borough township school district or other municipality or incorporated district except as herein provided shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law but any city the debt of which on the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four exceeded seven per centum of such assessed valuation and has not since been reduced to less than such per centum may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum in the aggregate at any one time upon such valuation The city of Philadelphia upon the condition hereinafter set forth may increase its indebtedness to the extent of three per centum in excess of seven per centum upon such assessed valuation for the specific purpose of providing for all or any of the following purposes—to wit For the construction and improvement of subways tunnels railways elevated railways and other transit facilities for the construction and improvement of wharves and docks and for the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of wharves and docks owned or to be owned by said city Such increase however shall only be made with the assent of the electors thereof at a public election to be held in such manner as shall be provided by law In ascertaining the borrowing capacity of said city of Philadelphia at any time there shall be excluded from the calculation a credit where the work resulting from any previous expenditure for any one or more of the specific purposes hereinabove enumerated shall be yielding to said city an annual current net revenue the amount of which credit shall be ascertained by capitalizing the annual net revenue during the year immediately preceding the time of such ascertainment Such capitalization shall be accomplished by ascertaining the principal amount which would yield such annual current net revenue at the average rate of interest and sinking-fund charges payable upon the indebtedness incurred by said city for such purposes up to the time of such ascertainment. The method of determining such amount so to be excluded or allowed as a credit may be prescribed by the General Assembly

In incurring indebtedness for any one or more of said purposes of construction improvement or reclamation the city of Philadelphia may issue its obligations maturing not later than fifty years from the date thereof with provision for a sinking-fund sufficient to retire said obligation at maturity the payments to such sinking-fund to be in equal or graded annual instalments Such obligations may be in an amount sufficient to provide for and may include the amount of the interest and sinking-fund charges accruing and which may accrue thereon throughout the period of construction and until the expiration of one year after the completion of the work for which said indebtedness shall have been incurred and said city shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking-fund charges as required by section ten of article nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania until the expiration of said period of one year after the completion of such work

An Act to amend an act approved the eighteenth day of May one thousand nine hundred and eleven entitled "An Act to establish a public school system in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania together with the provisions by which it shall be administered and prescribing penalties for the violation thereof providing revenue to establish and maintain the same and the method of collecting such revenue and repealing all laws general special or local or any parts thereof that are or may be inconsistent therewith"

And said bill having been read at length the third time and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. W. W. SMITH. Mr. President, I would like to have an opportunity to say a few words on behalf of this bill. This bill has been framed by Mr. Dunn, who is a member of the Legislature from my district. It concerns the Eighth Pennsylvania District only. It refers to an opportunity for the School Board in that vicinity to reduce the school tax of the farmers in the suburban districts so that they cannot be charged as much as those who have the benefit of more school facilities and are nearer to the high schools. I thought it possible that some of the members of the Senate might not understand the details and I deemed it wise to say a word at this time.

BILLS ON FINAL PASSAGE.

Mr. KLINE. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now resume the consideration of Senate Bill No. 953 (House Bill No. 1180), bill on final passage postponed for the present, on page four of today's calendar, entitled:

An Act to prohibit in cities of the second class the construction or erection of public or community vaults crypts or mausoleums (that is to say vaults crypts or mausoleums or parts of mausoleums intended for sale to the public) for the interment of human bodies where the building containing such vaults crypts or mausoleums is wholly or partially above the surface of the ground

Mr. CLARK. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate resumed the consideration of Senate Bill No. 953 (House No. 1180), entitled:

An Act to prohibit in cities of the second class the construction or erection of public or community vaults crypts mausoleums (that is to say vaults crypts mausoleums or parts of mausoleums intended for sale to the public) for the interment of human bodies where the building containing such vaults crypts or mausoleums is wholly or partially above the surface of the ground

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. KLINE. Mr. President, so that the Senate may have some idea about this bill which we have before us for our consideration, I have here a statement made by a man who has made a thorough investigation of these mausoleums erected in cities of the same class in public places, not in cemeteries, who has made a thorough study of the subject. He says:

"The building of Community Mausoleums in thickly populated districts, or in cemeteries located in such districts, or on Public Streets and Boulevards, is against public policy and a menace to the health of the citizens living in the district.

In the 14th Ward, City of Pittsburgh, with a population of 16,000 and assessed property valuation of $54,921,000, are located three cemeteries that are exempt from taxation and their charters do not allow them to sell space to other corporations for profit.

The promoters of a recent projected Mausoleum for a capacity of 2,000 crypts, after finding they were unable to secure space in a cemetery in the City of Pittsburgh, purchased a site on one of our prominent boulevards, the Beechwood Boulevard, and within 200 feet of one of our main thoroughfares, Forbes Street. This site is located in the very midst of the finest residential section in the City of Pittsburgh. The mere advertisement of the site or location of the proposed Mausoleum, has already depreciated the property in the vicinity and has stopped the erection of twenty new residences, one of which was to cost over $100,000, and located directly opposite this site. The others ranging down to $15,000 each. It has stopped the sale entirely of all classes of property in the vicinity and depreciated not only the homes of the wealthy, but of the wage earner who has invested his life earnings in a little home.

These public Mausoleum propositions are nearly all promotion schemes and I would cite that the cost of this proposed Mausoleum was to be $400,000 and they expect to sell space for the sum of $1,200,000, leaving the promoters a profit of $800,000, less promotion expenses.

These people do not care whether the building is sanitary or not and it usually becomes a public nuisance and a burden upon the taxpayers, as they have all their money before the building is started and when completed they move to some other profitable neighborhood.

From a sanitary standpoint, these Community Mausoleum, as erected by promoters, became a menace—as the methods employed for the destroying of the odors depend upon strict attention to the renewal of chemicals or other apparatus which in time wears out. But even If neglected for a day or two will permit an odor that can be detected within a radius of a mile of the Mausoleums. There is nothing to prevent the interment in Community Mausoleums of bodies of persons who have died of contagious diseases.

The City of Cleveland and the County in which it is located do not permit the erection of Community Mausoleums within 7 miles of the city limits.

I am enclosing you a number of duplicate pamphlets from which you can obtain some facts which have been fully investigated by the Information Bureau of Ohio. I am indeed sorry to trouble you this matter, but I believe that this bill should be passed as it is, without amendment."

I desire to read for the benefit of the members of the Senate from the report of the Community Mausoleum Investigating Committee of Kenton, Ohio:

"The proposition as it is now being promoted throughout the country, in all cases which have come to our notice is nothing short of a "Get Rich Quick" scheme. We have investigated buildings that have been built under practically all the different patents that have been granted on this character of structures (of which there are many) and we have yet to find that any one knowing the first principles of mortuary architecture would not pronounce a joke. To be more specific, we will say that no building of this character, unoccupied by heat and life, containing a greater number of crypts than can be covered by a solid slab of granite or a granite keystone roof and surrounded by walls of granite of proper thickness, with each piece of heroic size, having the crypts made of granite, marble, slate or glass, can withstand the climatic conditions of this country for any reasonable length of time unless it is being continually repaired.

In contrast to this, the Community Mausoleum is practically all built of concrete (the poorest material in the world in our opinion for this class of structure on account of its absorptiveness), the promoters through their talk and advertisements lead the public to believe that their buildings are constructed of granite, marble and bronze (or Stone, Marble and Bronze, while in fact, the whole buildings including walls, roof, crypts, floors, etc., are first moulded of concrete and then a thin veneer placed around it with either small pieces of rough Granite, some of which are so small that they could be tossed with the hand, laid up in rubble work with many outlandish joints, or, with Stone or Brick. The interior is veneered with marble which adds beauty but not permanency and in many buildings we have inspected we have found that the builders even used wall plaster, the thought of which in connection with such a structure is ridiculous, to say the least."

The promoters of this scheme use very pleasing arguments, show elaborate plans, which are Creek to most people who inspect them, and they usually have a picture of their proposed building drawn in perspective, which they place on display in the town where they are attempting to build. This picture represents from a point of proportion what the building will be, if built, about as nearly as would a picture of the White House."

"The methods adopted by Community Mausoleum Companies for the sanitation of their buildings is to have air inlet and outlet pipes with automatic valves connected with each crypt, supposedly have the air pass through a tank containing formaldehyde, but in many buildings inspected, we found that no arrangement had been made for the placing or renewing of this chemical, and even if there had been, many noted chemists claim that a chemical of so rapid deterioration as formaldehyde, would not sufficiently purify the air coming from decomposing bodies to not render it detrimental to public health. In addition to this, the air inlet and outlets are usually constructed of common black pipe, which being contained in a building that cannot be otherwise than damp because of the condensation that takes place with every change of the temperature, will soon rust out. The automatic valves, after standing unmolested for a time, become corroded, and stick the same as any hand operated valve."

Mr. President, this committee who made this investigation also cited many cities throughout the United States who prevented the erection of these crypts on the ground of public policy, that no matter how much protection you may use in keeping down the odor, especially where people died of contagious diseases, it will be a particular menace. On the ground that this being erected in one of the best residential sections of our city, right in the public thoroughfare, where it has deteriorated the value of property in that district, and also that the air will become permeated for squares and squares around, I want to bring this to the attention of the members of the Senate so that they may know the reason for the introduction of this bill. In this behalf, I ask the members of the Senate to vote for this bill.

An said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HOKE. Mr. President, I want to state for the information of the Senate that this bill on which we are now to vote makes a radical change in the School Code of 1911 by providing that those teachers throughout the Commonwealth who held local certificates prior to the passage of the Act of 1911 shall be entitled to permanent State certificates without examination under the State Board of Education. The Act of 1911 was passed to make education uniform throughout the State and this bill is a step backward to the old methods which prevailed prior to the passage of that act, and should not be passed.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, I desire to state emphatically that this bill does not give any teacher a permanent certificate without an examination. When the School Code was adopted in 1911 there were a large number of teachers in this State who held what were then known as permanent certificates. These permanent certificates were obtained by passing an examination which was held by examiners appointed by the State Ssuperintendent of Public Instruction in all the Counties of the Commonwealth. The only change that the School Code worked in that regard was that instead of having an examining board in every county the State was divided into twenty-six districts and the examining boards are now twenty-six instead of sixty-seven. This bill provides that every teacher who held a permanent certificate which was obtained by having passed the examination under the prior board can get the present certificate if he passes all the requisite subjects which are required under the School Code, for the present permanent State certificate, and any teacher who has had a certain number of subjects which he acquired and for which he held a permanent certificate will be given credit for these subjects only, and the subjects which are not on the certificate must be obtained by passing the State Board examination. There is absolutely no reason why the certificate that had been issued by the Department of Public Instruction under the system as it existed from 1901 to 1911 should not be recognized and there is no reason why a teacher who passed the requisite number of subjects as required by the present school code should not get the certificate as this bill calls for.

Mr. HOKE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Lehigh, Mr. Schantz.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Lehigh, Mr. Schantz, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, Yes, sir.

Mr. HOKE. Mr. President, I desire to ask the Senator from Lehigh whether the Examining Boards prior to 1911 were appointed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction?

Mr SCHANTZ. Mr. President, Yes, sir, at the recommendation of the County Superintendent, the same as they are now.

Mr. HOKE. Mr. President, my understanding is that these examining boards were elected and appointed by the local Superintendent and not under the State Superintendent at all and that there were as many different forms of examinations as there were counties in the State, and there was no uniformity among them at all.

Mr. SCHANTZ. Mr. President, since 1901, the examining Boards were appointed by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. The examinations were held by the examining boards and all the papers submitted to the Department of Public Instruction and by them examined before a permanent certificate was issued, the same as now. The only difference was, as I have said, that instead of sixty-seven examining boards, there are now only twenty-six.

The PRESIDENT. Is there any objection ? The Chair hears none.

The amendment was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading as amended?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the bill as amended be printed for the use of the Senate.

BILLS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 721 (House No. 153), entitled

An Act to protect the public health by regulating the manufacture preparation handling storage sale transportation and possession of meat and meat food products prescribing the powers and duties of the State Livestock Sanitary Board incidental thereto

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, I would like to call the attention of the Senate to Section 7 in this bill, which says: "It is unlawful to feed offal, blood or slaughter house refuse to swine within two hundred yards of an establishment." An establishment means where the slaughtering is done. Nobody desires to feed carrion, but I want you to understand that there are slaughter houses placed upon land where men cannot feed this offal two hundred feet away. So that man, who butchers, must either buy more land, go out of business, or violate the law. Section 9 says: "It is unlawful in an establishment to permit any meat or meat food product to be touched or handled by any percon other than the owner, lessee or manager of an establishment or other than the agent or employee of such owner lessee or manager, or to permit any meat or meat food product to be exposed to insects, animals or fowls." Now, my fellow Senators, if I have a beef that I cannot raise myself, I must employ a neighbor in order to come in and help me. He cannot come in free of charge, as he usually does and help raise this beef, because he must touch it. Now you all know that that is absolutely wrong. It is as arbitrary as it can be. It is a innovation and we do not propose to stand that. None of you gentlemen will consent to such arbitrary measures as that to be enforced by any department. A little further down says: "It is unlawful to sell, offer for sale, or to expose for sale, any meat or meat food product from swine to which have been fed any offal, blood, slaughter house refuse or carrion." Nobody would feed them carrion, and any of you who have ever been on the farm know that the offal of all the slaughter houses is fed to hogs, and they get fat. And you also know that we buy beef scrap to feed to hogs which is the refuse of the slaughter houses and mix them with other food that we feed to hogs, and yet we are prevented by this law from feeeding this offal to our hogs and other animal, and further along that line we buy beef scrap which is a by-product of the packing house to feed our chickens, and I am sure if any of you Senators come to our houses and eat our pork or our eggs, the only complaint that you would make possibly would be that you would not get quite enough. It is good all the same.. Another thing I do not want to take much of your time. The agents of the Sanitary Board shall make this inspection, and as many of them as may be needed, and also the agents of the packing houses by authority of the same Board shall also be allowed to inspect the establishments. The Sanitary Board is going into partnership with the packing houses, and recognizing their Inspectors. Why do not these department inspectors inspect all these butcher shops themselves, whether they are under the control of the packing houses or individuals, and also the Inspecors of the United States Sanitary Department can have the privilege of inspecting these butcher shops. Gentlemen of the Senate I want to say to you that it seems to me that the time will soon come if these conditions are to prevail when you and I will have to have our hands sterilized before we can clasp the hand of another. If these conditions prevail we will have to be inspected before we can draw our breath or draw our salaries. I hope, gentlemen, that this bill will be killed, and all others like it. I want to say to you that weare inspected and we are departmented until we are scarcely a free people anymore.

Mr. BEIDLEMAN. Mr. President, this bill has been prepared by the State Veterinary Department, and by the State Livestock Sanitary Board after a careful study of the disease of hoof and mouth which extended among the cattle of the Commonwealth. There are many butcher shops in this Commonwealth where the hogs are permitted to come into the butcher shop and eat the offal. In that shop the result has been that the State Livestock Sanitary Board has almost found it impossible to take care of the spread of these various diseases among cattle. The gentleman from Greene is not aware of the fact that if his neighbor comes in, as he suggested, he does not have to pay him, in order to create him his agent, because when he asks him to come there he creates the neighbor his agent within the meaning of this act so that it does not prevent the neighbor or any other person coming in and helping the man who is doing the butchering, but as I have already said, this is the result of a careful study of the State Livestock Sanitary Board and the State Veterinary Department. They have put into this bill the result of their experience which has cost the State hundreds of thousands of dollars in recent years in order to curb this disease, and the purpose of asking that this bill should be passed and enacted into a law is to put these various matters under the control of the State Livestock Sanitary Board and be properly controlled there.

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, section 9 says: "It is unlawful in an establishment to permit any meat or meat food product to be touched or handled by any person other than the owner, lessee or manager of an establishment."

Mr. BEIDLEMAN. Mr. President, will the gentleman read the rest of the section?

Mr. STEWART. Mr. President, I have read enough to show that what has been stated is true, "or manager of any establishment, or other than the agent or employe of such owner, lessee or manager, or to permit any meat or meat food product to be exposed to insects, animals or fowls." Now it cannot be touched by anybody but an employe, and that is what I said, and section 9 says so.

Mr. BEIDLEMAN. Mr. President, section 9 expressly provides: "by any person other than the owner, lessee or manager of an establishment, or other than the agent, or employe of such owner, lessee or manager." That language certainly means, if it means anything, that a man can constitute any person he desires to have assist him in his butchering to be his agent. He does not have to pay the agent or employe in order to make him such agent, or employe. The minute you ask him to come in and assist you you create him an agent or employe and he is permitted to help and assist you, and there is not a member of the Senate but who feels that meat which is taken in the market and sold to the public should be free from insects, animals or fowls.

Section 11 This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the first day of December Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and fifteen

And said bill having been read at length the second time, and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL NO. 581. (HOUSE BILL NO. 550).

Mr. GRAFF. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 581 (House Bill No. 550), on page 4 of last Monday's calendar, entitled:

An Act to amend an act approved the twenty-third day of May one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three entitled "An Act to authorize the election of a chief burgess for three years in the several boroughs of this Commonwealth who shall not be eligible to the office of the next succeeding term and providing that such officer shall not be a member of the town council giving him the power to veto ordinances providing for the election of a presiding officer of councils and abolishing the office of assistant burgess"

The PRESIDENT How did the Senator vote?

Mr. GRAFF. Mr. President, I voted "No."

Mr. CATLIN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?"

Mr. CATLIN. Mr. President, I voted "No."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion.

Mr. GRAFF. Mr. President, I think the Senators misunderstand this bill or they would not vote against a reconsideration. It is a bill that does not grant what it appears to grant here, and that is, that burgesses succeed themselves. That would seem to be the objection to the bill, I understand from Senator Endsley that there is some slight correction that is made in the bill which does not change the existing law but very little, it simply extends the councils' power. The purpose of having this vote reconsidered is simply to get this amendment in that he wants to have inserted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. JENKINS. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator will state his point of order.

Mr. JENKINS. A motion to reconsider must be made, as I understand, within five days, of the vote.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would inform the Senator that those five days mean five legislative days.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

And the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL POSTPONED.

Mr. GRAFF. Mr. President, I move that the question, together with the further consideration of the bill be postponed for the present.

Mr. SENSENICH. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON SECOND READING.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 519 (House Bill No. 637), entitled:

An Act validating contracts bonds or obligations of or belonging to corporations of other states made entered into or acquired prior to the passage of an act entitled "An Act to regulate the doing of business in this Commonwealth by foreign corporations the registration thereof and service of process thereon and providing punishment and penalties for the violation of its provisions and repealing previous legislation on the subject" approved the eighth day of June Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred eleven Pamphlet Laws seven hundred ten without such corporations first having established known places of business and designated authorized agents for the transaction of their business within this Commonwealth and providing for the enforcement of such contracts or obligations upon the payment of a penalty and taxes to the Commonwealth

And said bill having been read at length the second time, and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 651 (House Bill No. 789), entitled:

An Act giving to dependent neglected incorrigible delinquent and other children committed to the care custody or control of any institution or citizen or training school or industrial school or any association willing to receive them or to any other person or persons by any court of this Commonwealth sitting as a juvenile court or any judge or magistrate sitting as such the right to reviews and rehearings on petition of their parent or parents or next friend requiring the testimony to be made a part of the record and providing for appeals to the Superior Court

And said bill having been read at length the second time, and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 661, as follows:

A Supplement to an act entitled "An Act to provide for the incorporation and government of street railway companies in this Commonwealth" approved the fourteenth day of May Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine authorizing companies chartered under the said act to construct equip and operate such parts of their railways as are located on private property or turnpikes and such parts thereof as with the consent of the local authorities of cities boroughs and townships are located within the limits of the public streets roads or bridges or other highways of such cities boroughs and townships without first obtaining the consents of the local authorities of all of the cities boroughs and townships through which the said companies are by their charters authorized to build their lines

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That from and after the passage of this act if any railway company heretofore or hereafter incorporated under the provisions of an act entitled "An Act to provide for the incorporation and government of street railway companies in this Commonwealth" approved the fourteenth day of May Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine and the several supplements and amendments thereto shall by grant by the exercise of the right of eminent domain or by any other means have acquired for the line of railway which it is authorized by its charter to build or any extension or branch thereof a right of way or such easement as may be necessary for the accomplishment of its corporate objects over and through private property or over upon across and along any turnpike or of any railway company incorporated under the said act shall in like manner have acquired for its line of railway or any extension or branch thereof such right of way or easement within the limits of any public street road or bridge or other highway and in addition to the easement or right of way last mentioned has obtained the consent of the local authorities of the city borough or township to which the said public street road or bridge or other highway belongs to the use of the same for the railway of the company last mentioned then and in any such case any such railway company shall not be required before proceeding to construct equip and operate its railway over and through the said private property or over upon across and along the said turnpike or within the limits of the said public street road or bridge or other highway to obtain the consent of the local authorities of all of the cities boroughs or townships through which its said line of railway passes but the said company may forthwith enter upon the said private property or the said turnpike or the said public street road or bridge or other highway and construct equip and operate thereon or therein any part or parts of its said railway as fully and with the same rights powers and effect as if the part or parts so constructed and put into operation were the entire line which the said company had been authorized by its charter to build Provided that the construction equipment or operation of any part or parts of its line of railway as aforesaid shall not be deemed to be an abandonment of any other part or parts of the line of railway which it is authorized by its charter to build or any extensions or branches thereof And Provided Further that nothing herein contained shall limit or affect the jurisdiction or powers of the Public Service Commission or the State Highway Department in the premises

Section 2 All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading,

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in committee of the whole being in this case dispensed with,
